

JURY FAILS TO EX BLAME IN TRAFFIC DEATH

A coroner's jury at McAlister and Suters funeral chapel, Fullerton, yesterday afternoon was unable to determine the blame in connection with the traffic death of Joe Valdivia, 24, Fullerton, early Sunday morning. Valdivia was walking on Manchester boulevard, near Buena Park, when struck down by a car operated by Francis H. Lowry, 33, Anaheim. Valdivia, who died a few hours later at county hospital, was the county's sixty-second traffic victim this year. None was injured yesterday afternoon as cars operated by Charles Patterson, 55, 705 South Ross, Santa Ana, and Dorothy Singh, 21, Phoenix, collided at Newport road and South Main street. Miss Singh was reported as attempting a U-turn on the highway, when the collision occurred.

ATTEMPT MADE TO BURGLARIZE HOME

An attempted burglary, similar to the successful burglary of the H. J. Stoller place, 1612 Bush street, here last night, was made at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Tyrrell, 409 North Orange street, Orange, about 6 o'clock last night. The burglar, discovered as he was about to make off with rugs of the Tyrrell home, dashed out of the front door without his loot, Orange police reported. Returning to her home from Dr. Tyrrell's office with the office attendant, Miss Esther Meyer, Mrs. Tyrrell said "good-bye" to Miss Meyer and entered the rear door of the home. As she did so, the would-be burglar, who had all of the rugs rolled up neatly, ready for removal, ran out of the front door and disappeared. Mrs. Tyrrell said he was of medium build and had dark hair.

SPECIAL PANEL IS CALLED FOR TRIAL

With a special panel of 35 jurors summoned to court today by Constable J. L. Elliott, appointed to the task in place of the sheriff, who is connected with the prosecution trial of Alex Anderson and four other Balboa men charged with bookmaking, court underway today before Superior Judge H. S. Ames.

Deputy Prosecutor Harold McCabe, for the state, and Attorneys E. B. Kaufman and Z. B. West, for the defense, questioned the various prospective jurors closely on their attitude toward points of law that may arise in the case, and their prejudices for or against gambling.

Each side has 35 challenges to wield, if desired, in the selection of the jury.

J. W. TAYLOR BUYS STORE AT AVALON

J. W. Taylor, Jr., formerly of Santa Ana, has acquired the Avalon Dry Goods store on Catalina island, it was announced today. Taylor has been employed at the store since 1933. The business was acquired from Mr. and Mrs. E. T. McMillen.

Taylor formerly was in business here with his father, J. W. Taylor, of 418 West Santa Clara avenue, and brother, Kemper Taylor, in the Taylor Cash store on West Fourth street. The store was destroyed by fire in 1933. He attended grammar and high schools here and Redlands university.

Mrs. Ella Wiley Called by Death

Funeral services for Mrs. Ella Josephine Wiley, 55, of 1889 Fullerton street, Costa Mesa, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow from the Dixon mortuary at Balboa Beach. Interment will be in Westminster Memorial Park. Mrs. Margaret Burlingame will read the services.

Mrs. Wiley, who had been a resident of Costa Mesa for the past 17 years, was a member of the First Church of Christ Scientist, Newport Beach. She is survived by her husband, John D. Wiley, and her son, Charles Harrell of Newport Beach.

Piles All Gone

Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles go quickly, if you remove the cause. Bad blood circulation in the hemorrhoidal veins causes piles by making the affected parts weak, flabby and lifeless. Salves and cutting often fail because only an internal medicine can actually correct these conditions. Dr. J. S. Leonard discovered a real internal Pile medicine. After a fine record of success with it in his own practice, he named it HEM-ROID. All druggists invite every Pile sufferer to get HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.

Don't let a LAPSE OF MEMORY lapse your POLICY.

KEN Murray SAYS:

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—That old game of "knock knock" still seems to be popular in New York City, where a house to house canvass is revealing that thousands of the voters who registered for election gave fictitious addresses or empty houses as their residence. . . . Apparently this year the politicians are doing something for the forgotten mansion.

Back in 1932 "The Sidewalks of New York" was just a campaign song. . . . Now it is a voting address.

After years of the charitable organizations trying to find homes for the more unfortunate, the politicians settle the housing problem overnight.

Of course, in Spain they have a different system. . . . If the voter doesn't have a permanent residence, the opposition party gives him one.

RUGS STOLEN FROM HOME BY BURGLARS

Detective Lieutenant Charles W. Wolford was conducting an investigation today into the burglary last night of the H. J. Stoller residence, 1612 Bush street, where burglars cut a screen from the kitchen window, pried the window open with a bar, broke down the door, and entered.

Leaving the furniture in top-heavy condition, the burglars loaded two rugs into a waiting automobile and disappeared. The theft occurred between 6 and 8:15 p. m., while the Stoller family was away.

Santa Ana police and other officials of Orange county were seeking thieves who stole a quantity of fruit and vegetables from a truck early this morning while it was enroute to Huntington Beach from Buena Park. The loot included a box of Golden Delicious apples, a box of red Delicious apples, and a box of asparagus.

VIRGIL SPARKS IS HELD FOR TRIAL

Alleged to have "held out" approximately $1700 from collections he made for the Langley Oil company, but specifically charged with grand theft involving $500 in collections, Virgil I. Sparks, 31, salesmen of College and Pine streets, Garden Grove, waived preliminary examination before Judge Kenneth Morrison in Santa Ana justice court today and was immediately bound over to superior court for trial. Information against Sparks will be filed Friday, it was announced. Bail of $10,000 was reduced to $2500 following Sparks' arrest last evening by Deputy Sheriff John Ryan.

Local Briefs

The tiny, one-year-old daughter, Anita Longoria, of Mr. and Mrs. Leonardo Longoria, La Jolla camp, Anaheim, was severely burned on her left hand yesterday when her mother accidentally dropped a hot iron. The baby suffered second degree burns for which she is being treated at county hospital today.

Wind velocity yesterday averaged 2.3 m.p.h., according to records at the Santa Ana junior college meteorological station. Temperatures ranged from 47 at 6 a. m. to 81 at 2 p. m. Relative humidity was 63 per cent at 5 p. m.

The series of four talks on presidential candidates conducted at the Unitarian church the past several weeks, will conclude this evening at 7:30 when B. Z. McKinney, chairman of the Orange county Democratic central committee, speaks on "Vote for Roosevelt." He will be introduced by Mrs. Worwich. Preceding speakers talked on voting for Landon, Thomas and Browder.

GETS 180 DAYS IN JAIL AFTER ATTACK TRIAL

Convicted by a jury, sitting all day in Santa Ana city court yesterday, of assault and battery upon the person of D. M. Terhune, chief clerk for the Edison company, here, James Rosendahl, Route 1, Anaheim, today was sentenced by City Judge Mitchell to serve six months in county jail. Rosendahl "asked for it."

"Give me the limit, your honor," Rosendahl said in court.

"That's just what I was going to do," Judge Mitchell replied, after permitting Rosendahl to "have his say." "One hundred eighty days in the county jail."

Rosendahl was accused of walking into the local Edison office on October 10, in an angry mood. Terhune alleged Rosendahl immediately "grabbed me by the neck and started to choke me."

Rosendahl, court records show, exclaimed "You're a liar!" several times yesterday as the complainant and his witnesses testified.

Occasion of Rosendahl's appearance at the Edison office, testimony shows, was his receipt of a form letter from the company, asking for approximately $25 owing the company on an old account. Rosendahl said he owed but about $7 of the total. Company officials alleged the extra amount was for electricity taken by Rosendahl without permission and for which alleged offense he was ordered to jail some months ago. The defendant was arrested by Special Company Officer D. C. Dunbar. Meter Reader A. N. Kluthe testified he tried to separate Rosendahl and Terhune during the scuffle. W. H. Kennedy and Frank L. Turner were character witnesses for Rosendahl.

COMPLETE PARALYSIS OF HARBOR IS SEEN

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Oct. 28.—(UP)—Shippers today announced no strike-breakers will be hired and no attempt will be made to carry on shipping activity at Los Angeles harbor if the threatened marine walkout occurs tonight.

The policy, which indicated a complete paralysis of the waterfront here if the strike is called, was announced by the Waterfront Employers' association. The group represents most shipping interests. Two ships are tied up here, forcing cancellation of sailings to Hawaii by labor disputes independent of the coast-wide maritime contest.

Brush Fires In Canyon Reported

A brush fire in the Santiago canyon and one at the Santiago creek and Tustin street, Orange, called out the state fire department with headquarters at Orange late yesterday afternoon. When rubbish and weeds were being burned on vacant ground on Serra drive, Santiago canyon, at 5:30 p. m., the fire escaped control and made its way to the C. E. Short ranch property. It was put out in a short time.

The other blaze was caused by three boys who were playing with matches on the creek bank at 5 p. m. near Tustin street in the vicinity of the Otto Ristow home. The fire burned over a small area of grass and weeds.

WHITNEY WILL IS FILED FOR PROBATE

The will of the late Lewis R. Whitney of Santa Ana, who died August 8, leaving an estate valued at "not exceeding $10,000," was filed for probate in superior court today by the executor, Franklin G. West.

The will leaves $1000 to a nephew, Raymond D. Metzgar, Collins, New York; $1000 to another nephew, Harold Metzgar, Elmira, N. Y.; $2000 to a grandniece, Marguerite Metzgar, St. Louis, Mo.; $1000 to Mrs. Oveda Farwell, Santa Ana; $500 to Lewis Creel, Gerber, Calif.; $500 to the Orange County Tuberculosis and Health association. The residue was left to the widow, Mrs. Augusta Whitney, of Santa Ana.

Workers' Wages To Be Adjusted

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(UP)—A plan for readjustment of the basic wage structure of the 216,709 employees of the United States Steel corporation was being perfected today, according to Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board.

The announcement was given out in connection with release of the earnings statement for the third quarter showing net income amounting to $13,686,177 or 84 cents a share on common stock. Net income for the first nine months was $29,874,904 or $3.23 a share on preferred, against $4,341,469 or a deficit of $1.17 on preferred for the corresponding period of 1935. The directors declared a dividend of $3.75 on preferred, against $1 in the previous quarter, and 50 cents quarterly during the depression.

BARN DAMAGED BY FIRE

An estimated $25 damage was done by fire which apparently resulted from sparks which dropped upon the roof of the old German feed barn along the Santa Fe railroad tracks between Fourth and Fruit streets this morning. The fire department brought the fire under control.

Police News

Moses Ochoa, 33, Anaheim, was rebuked at county jail today for failing to support minor children. Bail was set by Judge Charles Kuchel, Anaheim justice court, at $1000.

Sam A. Mitchell, 64, Los Angeles janitor, today began serving a 75-day term in county jail after conviction on a drunk driving charge. He was brought in by Chief W. H. Williams, Brea.

The tramp reported by Officer W. B. Moreland to be looking the cars over near Fourth street and the Santa Fe tracks last evening, with the possible purpose of theft, had fled when Officers L. W. Foster and A. F. Moulton arrived to question him.

Called to the Payne residence, 512 West Eighth street, about 9:30 o'clock last night, Officers W. B. Moreland and Ralph Pantuso sought premises reported in the vicinity. They found the front door of the Payne residence open but nothing inside had been disturbed. A youth, apparently breathless from running, was overtaken by the officers, at Eighth and Ross streets. Appearing very nervous, the youth was taken to police headquarters, questioned and then taken home.

D. H. Thomas, 1448 North Broadway, Santa Ana, was fined $200 by City Judge J. G. Mitchell in city court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving. Thomas paid $50 and agreed to pay the remainder at rate of $15 per month. Records show Thomas was arrested upon a previous occasion, charged with the same offense. Harold D. Hoffman, Fullerton, was fined $6 for speeding, Francis North, South Pasadena, $8 for the same offense, and J. W. Casper, $1 for illegal parking.

H. C. Head, owner, and Roy Russell, builder, were granted a permit yesterday by the building department, for construction of a frame six-story residence, with garage, 36x38 feet in dimensions, at 715 Kilson drive, for $3500.

NEUTRALITY IS DISCUSSED AT KIWANIS CLUB

It may be possible for America to retain its neutrality in the event of another European war but it is a doubtful possibility, according to C. Eden Quantan, professor of history at the University of Washington, who was the speaker today at the noon meeting of Kiwanis club.

"As one surveys the so-called civilized world in 1936," the speaker said, "one may well be alarmed. It has been nearly 18 years since peace was concluded and 22 years since the beginning of the World war and in this year, 1936 we see the same madnesses and insanities that marked the pre-war period being reproduced all over the world. Europe is hurrying along the road to war and possible destruction—faster than it did in 1914."

"Before 1914 there was one characteristic of Europe and that was the piling up of armaments. This piling up of armaments was for the avowed purpose of security. The nations hoped, and believed that war would be avoided through the piling up of arms. In 1936 we are conducting ourselves in the same way only in a more intensified manner. Yet the armaments of 1914 seem small to the present preparations with all the present preparations with all the nations joining in the race. We know by experience that for the nations to arm themselves to the teeth does not prevent war."

Prior to 1914, Quantan pointed out, Europe was divided into two armed camps. The same situation prevails today with the Fascist block on one side and a rival group, with all the opponents of Fascism, including Russia on the other side. The economic factor was another element that led up to the catastrophe of 1914. He pointed out that today the struggle for markets is continuing in an even more intensified manner.

Referring to the League of Nations, he declared "The League of Nations, as Woodrow Wilson conceived it, has never been in operation. The mistake was made in trying it to the peace treaty, which was a purely punitive document. The league has been dominated by England and France. I do not think that the failure of the league to function has been due to America's refusal to join but because the dominating powers did not want it to work."

Discussing attempts to fix the blame for the World war and to determine how America got into it he said that no one group or individual could be held responsible. The bankers, he said, could not be held wholly to blame, despite revelations that have been made through recent investigations. Neither can the armament manufacturers be held responsible. He pointed out that the war gave a tremendous impetus to pursuits that, while they are normal peace time pursuits, are of vast importance in the time of war.

He suggested that the price of possible neutrality, in the event of another war, would be a complete cessation of all economic activities with belligerents, or Europe for its entirety. That, he pointed out, would mean that America would have to forego all foreign business, forsaking the benefits of a war boom to all industry. "That would be a terrific price to pay for neutrality," he said, "and would we be assured of neutrality even then?"

Concluding his talk Quantan said that he favors enactment of mandatory neutrality legislation enacted into the statutes of the nation, "not because I believe that such legislation would solve the problem but it would show to future generations that we, at least, tried to do something about it. I favor mandatory rather than discretionary legislation because I do not believe that there is any one person, or groups of people in America with sufficient discretion to be entrusted with such an important problem and that goes for both political parties."

Quantan was introduced by E. Steffenson of the Inter-Club Relations committee.

The meeting today was dedicated as "Old Timers' Day" with the following former Kiwanians being introduced by Charles Walker: O. A. Haley, first pres-

RAIL LINE WILL SPEND $7,000,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure today signed an order permitting the Western Pacific railway to spend approximately $7,000,000 for new equipment and improvements to present equipment next year.

The company now is operating in reorganization under bankruptcy.

The order permits the company to spend $4,079,995 for new equipment, $368,000 for maintenance, and $2,605,000 for improvement of present equipment.

Solomon Arrested On Parking Charge

Max M. Solomon, 49, proprietor of the Polyana Apparel shop, 203 West Fourth street, was in the toils of the law again today as he was arrested on a warrant and haled before City Judge J. G. Mitchell on a charge he failed to answer a summons for illegal parking. He paid a $2 fine—double the usual penalty—and was released.

Solomon is now free on $250 bond, awaiting his appearance in Santa Ana justice court tomorrow to face Judge Kenneth Morrison and a jury on a charge he violated the state law regulating employment for women by working his six women employees more than eight hours on Saturday, October 3. It was reported today, the Solomon trial may be postponed tomorrow to a later date, at Solomon's request.

S. A. Players Win At Roller Hockey

Santa Ana roller-hockey squads scored a double-barreled victory over Anaheim at the Santa Ana rink last night, the Tiernan Typewriter company's team of boys winning 1-0 after the girls captured a 2-0 thriller.

McCasky, Heinly, Messerall, Reynolds and Sharpe were in the boys' lineup, McCasky shooting the winning goal. Jewel McIntyre, Marilyn Wright, Babe Flood, Marian Clark and Babe Shands played for the girls.

Court Notes

Joseph J. Fitzpatrick, Anaheim mining prospector and developer, today sued fellow townsman, Bert R. Wilkins Jr., in superior court, asking $3425 damages in connection with a traffic accident at Broadway and Walnut, Anaheim, September 2. Fitzpatrick suffered injury, damage to his car, medical costs, and loss of earnings, he claimed.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd B. Smith have brought suit in superior court against Edgar H. Marshall for $1736.92 on a note.

When a felony charge of committing statutory offenses against his 14-year-old girl companion, who accompanied him on his milroute frequently, was reduced to a misdemeanor, charging contributing to delinquency of a minor, today, Joe Hosack, 24, appeared in Santa Ana justice court and waived preliminary examination before Judge Kenneth Morrison. Immediately, he was bound over to superior court, which will sit as a juvenile court in hearing the case.

Will Demonstrate Electric Roaster At Horton Store

Demonstrations of the Nesco Automatic Electric Roaster will be given tomorrow and Friday at the J. C. Horton Furniture company store by Willa McGrath, factory representative of the National Enamel and Stamping company.

Miss McGrath will use one of the large size roasters, capable of cooking a 16-pound turkey. In addition to several vegetables under one cover, Miss McGrath will demonstrate the roaster by preparing a complete dinner, including meat and vegetables. The demonstration will start each morning and continue throughout the day.

CANADIAN LEGION POSTS PLAN PARTY

Members of the Canadian Legion posts of Orange county and their friends will celebrate Halloween Friday night in Hillcrest park, Fullerton, with a "tattle and herding" supper and dance, it was announced today by Russell Munro, of Santa Ana.

The party will start at 8 o'clock and the supper will be served at 9:30 p. m. During the evening the Highland pipers from Los Angeles will furnish music and dancing will follow the supper. The public is invited to attend the affair.

THREE HURT IN AUTO MISHAPS DURING NIGHT

Accidents involving the ex-wife of California Highway Patrol Officer Horace Inge, and his daughter, Doris, 16, and Santa Ana Officer A. F. Moulton, occurred on Santa Ana thoroughfares last evening and early this morning, with but slight injuries to three persons.

At Santa Clara and Santiago streets, last evening, a car driven by Mrs. Pearl Inge, 413 North Center street, Orange, collided with an Edison company truck operated by W. P. Harmon, 2068 South Parton, Santa Ana, with Mrs. Inge suffering a small cut on the forehead. Harmon was driving a truck and trailer, bearing five long poles, south on Santiago, when the Inge car collided against the side of the trailer, damaging the car's front, badly. Doris escaped injury, according to report of Officer Ed Lentz.

At First and Sycamore, about 6:45 a. m. today, Officer Moulton's couple overturned as a car operated by Robert E. Strauss, 21, San Juan Capistrano, collided with the right rear wheel of the Moulton car, according to report of the officer. G. E. Kellogg and Orval Kilton of Grand Central garage, witnessed the accident, he said. Moulton and Strauss escaped with a cut finger, each.

DEATH NOTICES

A WORD OF COMFORT

Some things endure. Having learned the alphabet, it is yours forever. While it does not change, you use it to form different words and to express new meanings.

Similarly elemental and enduring are God, your own soul and love for your dearest one. The relationship with one another persists whether you are consciously together or seemingly separated. The quality of your unending devotion to each other is not affected by the fact that you live here and your dear one is in Paradise.

When your tasks here are done, you will be together again as if neither of you had ever been away.

LIPPIATT—In Santa Ana, Oct. 27, 1936, Elizabeth Y. Lippiatt, aged 82 years. Wife of James H. H. Lippiatt; mother of Mrs. H. A. Collins, of Santa Ana; Mrs. Stanley Roberts, of Fullerton; J. Henry Lippiatt, of Santa Ana; Lionel J. Lippiatt, of La Habra; and Leslie H. Lippiatt, of South Pasadena. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 10 a. m. from Smith and Tutthill's chapel, Rev. P. F. Schrock officiating.

(Funeral Notice)
GUTHRIE—Funeral services for Mrs. Isabel Guthrie, aged 88 years, who died Oct. 27, 1936, will be held Friday at 10:30 a. m. from Smith and Tutthill's chapel, Rev. O. Scott McFarland officiating. Interment Modesto, Calif.

DODD—In Santa Ana, Oct. 27, 1936, James Dodd, aged 78 years, a resident of Freewater, Oregon. Burial of John M. Dodd, of Touchet, Washington, and Jess Dodd, of Parker, Kansas; cousin of G. W. Gurney, of Santa Ana. Shipment will be made to Walla Walla, Washington by Smith and Tutthill.

GOP WOMEN HEAR LONDON'S FRIEND

Mrs. E. P. Johnson, college friend of Gov. Alfred M. Landon, attended the afternoon tea of the Republican women in their meeting place in the Hiesler building yesterday to address the group in an interesting talk bringing many colorful reminiscences of her friendship with the Republican candidate for presidency.

Preceding the address, several Republican women attended a luncheon at the Mad Hatter honoring Mrs. Johnson. Those present included: Mesdames Harry Gordon Martin, Leslie F. Kimmell, Ajax Wolf, Annette Arnold, H. Y. Smith, Frank Elder, Lou Merritt, Alfred M. Churchill, Mrs. Lucy Dowse and her daughter, Mrs. Andrew Taylor of Claremont.

While in Laguna, Mrs. Johnson is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Griffith. Griffith introduced the speaker with amusing anecdotes of the time when Mrs. Johnson was one of his art pupils at Kansas university.

Mrs. Mary Lantry Herrick was hostess at the tea which was attended by approximately 50 Republican women.

CLUB RE-ELECTS MRS. L. SCHOFIELD

BUENA PARK, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Lester Schofield was re-elected chairman of Modern Home Makers club, when that group met yesterday in the Congregational church. Future sessions of the group, originally planned for the fourth Tuesday in each month at the Centralia school, will be held at the Congregational church in Buena Park.

The membership of the organization comprises women from the Magnolia, Cypress, Centralia, and Buena Park districts.

Serving with Mrs. Schofield will be Mrs. George Cole as vice-chairman and a member of the board of directors, and Mrs. Victor Moffett, secretary-treasurer.

"Efficient Kitchens" was the lesson topic for yesterday afternoon's session presented under the direction of Miss Frances Liles of Santa Ana, county home demonstration agent.

Mrs. Victor Moffett and Mrs. Clarence Henderson will be project leaders for the lesson on "Poetry Cookery" which has been meeting which will be held at 10 a. m. in the church. Special attention will be paid to holiday menus. A covered dish luncheon will be served at noon.

RESIDENT HERE 24 YEARS IS CALLED

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Y. Lippiatt, 82, who died at her home, 1315 Bush street, yesterday, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the Smith and Tutthill chapel. The Rev. Perry F. Schrock, pastor of the First Congregational church, will officiate and interment will follow in Fairhaven cemetery.

Mrs. Lippiatt, who had been ill for several weeks, had lived in Santa Ana for the past 24 years. She was a native of England but moved to California 35 years ago. In addition to her husband, James H. H. Lippiatt, she is survived by two daughters and three sons.

Surviving daughters are: Mrs. H. A. Collins, Santa Ana, and Mrs. Stanley Roberts of Fullerton. Sons surviving Mrs. Lippiatt are: J. Henry Lippiatt of Santa Ana; Lionel J. of La Habra and Leslie H. Lippiatt of South Pasadena.

BROWDER BACK TO THE WARS

Violence for the second time prevented Earl Browder, Communist candidate for president, from speaking before a mass meeting and by radio in Terre Haute, Ind., the disorder being climaxed by an egg and tomato shower directed by a mob at the candidate and his companions. Browder went into court to ask legal protection and here is shown, center, as he made his appeal. Behind him are ranged several supporters. At the left is David J. Bestall, his Chicago attorney, and at the right is Seymour Waldman, New York Communist leader.

LEGION ASKS MERCHANTS OF L. A. AID CELEBRATION HERE

Veterans of Foreign Wars posts in Orange and Los Angeles counties are being asked to co-operate in obtaining co-operation of Los Angeles merchants in the matter of paying tribute to veterans on Armistice day. This co-operation is taking the form, according to an announcement today, of requesting that Los Angeles merchants refrain from capitalizing the fact that stores in Orange county will be closed for the celebration to be held in Santa Ana this year.

G. D. Hendrickson, commander of Ernest L. Kellogg Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars and C. M. Featherly, commander of American Legion Post No. 131, Santa Ana, yesterday signed letters addressed to the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Business Men's Association of Los Angeles requesting co-operation.

Copies of these letters are being sent to all Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion posts in Orange county and to the 13 posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Los Angeles county with a request for co-operation.

In asking Los Angeles merchants to refrain from capitalizing on the co-operation of local store operators with the Legion, it was pointed out that for several years the larger mercantile establishments have advertised special "Orange County Day" for shoppers in this area on Armistice Day and offered special inducements to draw trade from this area on that day.

A copy of the letter signed by the commanders of both organizations of veterans follows: "The merchants of Orange county are closing their stores on Armistice Day, Wednesday, November 11, 1936, to participate, and so enable their employees to participate, in the ceremonies being conducted in Santa Ana and throughout the county by our National Guard units, veteran organizations and various patriotic societies in honor of our illustrious war-time dead who made the supreme sacrifice in order that our nation and the principles of democracy might survive.

"This voluntary tribute from our many mercantile establishments is a fitting honor appropriate not only to this county, but one that might well be observed by all the cities and counties of the state because they have always eminently demonstrated the veneration in which they hold our fallen heroes.

"We therefore invite your organization and members to join with us in dedicating this and future Armistice Days to one of tangible honor in recognition of our departed and disabled veterans."

MRS. WESTON IS P.-T. A. SPEAKER

GARDEN GROVE, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Golden Weston, director of adult education in Santa Ana, spoke on the subject, "Our Responsibility to Our Children," at the meeting of the high school P.-T. A., held in the high school gymnasium Monday evening.

Mrs. J. G. Allen, president of the organization, announced the district P.-T. A. meeting to be held at Anaheim on November 19 and urged all who could to attend. She also announced the topic of the November meeting as "Enriching Character Through Parental Education." There will be a panel discussion.

A report of the meetings for presidents in the county P.-T. A., was given by Mrs. D. S. Jordan. Mrs. E. Gilbreath, membership chairman, reported 45 new members. A prize was awarded to the Junior class for having the most parents present.

Leland Green, music chairman, led in group singing. Miss Marjorie Allen sang "The Green Cathedral" and "Nightfall" accompanied at the piano by Miss Helen Meyer.

Preceding the meeting a pot luck dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock.

SULLIVAN IS ELECTED HEAD OF 40 AND 8

Members of the Orange County Vulture Locale No. 527, Forty and Eight, American Legion organization, will hold a Halloween costume party and dance at the American Legion hall here, Thursday, October 29, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. R. H. McCalla, publicist of the sponsoring group, announced today.

The party is open to any American Legion man who is able to present his 1937 paid-up membership card. Cards may be played by those who do not care to dance. Prizes will be awarded for the best costume and best dressed couple, with possibly other prizes to be offered.

Orange County Vulture Locale No. 527 held its annual election of officers recently at which the following men were named to serve in 1937:

Chief de Gare, E. S. Sullivan, Santa Ana; Chief de Train, Dale Schmid, Anaheim; Correspondent, Ed Fisher, Orange; Sous Correspondent, George Bickford, Orange; Commissaire Intendant, Dr. P. E. ## C. OF C., CITY COUNCIL AND JEROME THANKED BY PAXTON

Appreciation for the assistance of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, the city council and Supervisor W. C. Jerome in securing consolidation of the Parker Machinery company with the former Paxton Nailing Machine company plant in Santa Ana was expressed in a statement today by Hale Paxton, general manager of the combined plants to be operated by the Food Machinery company here.

"Naturally we are pleased at the decision to locate the combined plants in Santa Ana," Paxton said today.

"In making the announcement of the merger, we were named to carry on the further active negotiations. "It became necessary to secure the cooperation of the county board of supervisors and the city council to handle phases of the situation. Supervisor W. C. Jerome, at the request of the committee, undertook this part of the work, requested a special meeting of the city council and, through the enthusiastic help of the Santa Ana city council with Supervisor Jerome, all further obstacles were overcome. This included the need of sewer connections some street grading, and other assistance.

"Negotiations were started with the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, and the following capable committee was appointed by President Rex Kennedy: W. D. Ranney, Chairman, J. C. Horton, A. N. Zerman, Herbert Rankin, R. C. Holles, W. E. Baker, Frank Was, and A. I. Mellenthin. The general policy of the negotiations was determined by this committee, and a sub-committee, including W. D. Ranney, Chairman, Frank Was, R. C. Holles, A. N. Zerman, and Howard I. Wood, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Members of the 20-30 club of Santa Ana staged a "stag" get-together and dinner party at Santa Ana Country club last night as a means of bringing fellowship between new and old members closer. Forty-five members and friends attended. The program was arranged by Chairman Paul Beckman of the entertainment committee, assisted by Larry Mitchell, John Knox and Bill Miller.

"The fact that many of our principal employees own their homes in Santa Ana was one of the compelling motives in desiring to consolidate the plants here.

"We confidently expect, and sincerely hope, to develop steadily into a larger and more important manufacturing concern," concluded Mr. Paxton.

Mr. Paxton.

INSURANCE AGENTS ATTEND L. A. MEET

Reporting that the California district was leading all others in the nation in the amount of business done and that the general business picture was showing definite improvement, Grant L. Hill of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, director of agencies for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, addressed the agents of the company at the regional conference in the Biltmore hotel, Los Angeles, yesterday.

Attending the conference from the Orange county district agency office were Paul W. Neff, W. B. Moore, Mayor Fred C. Rowland and Jack E. Gould. Sessions opened Monday and closed yesterday afternoon. Company underwriters were present from California, Arizona, Nevada and Utah.

STAG PARTY HELD BY TWENTY-THIRTY

Members of the 20-30 club of Santa Ana staged a "stag" get-together and dinner party at Santa Ana Country club last night as a means of bringing fellowship between new and old members closer. Forty-five members and friends attended. The program was arranged by Chairman Paul Beckman of the entertainment committee, assisted by Larry Mitchell, John Knox and Bill Miller.

Welcome Neighbor....

One more step in the amazing progress of a Greater Santa Ana is the opening of Vandermast's Fine New Store... just across the street from us.

We are proud to see yet another beautiful building bear witness to the surging prosperity of our times... and our location.

Here, where the good neighbors of our own community and Orange County gather daily by thousands... here beats the heart of the city.

SPOILS SYSTEM DENOUNCED BY LANDON IN PITTSBURGH; HOUSE CLEANING PROMISED

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28. — The text of Governor Landon's address last night follows:

This great gathering of Americans is a stirring sight. It is proof of your deep concern in the problems that face us. One of these I want to discuss with you tonight—the problem of the mismanagement of our government by the present administration. I am going to talk about the most open, the most crude, and the most brutal use of the spoils system this country has ever seen.

Put Civil Service on Map

It is fitting that I should discuss this subject in Pennsylvania on the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt. You in Pennsylvania were devoted to him. You in common with all Americans recognize the great lift he gave to the ideals of American government.

And I may recall to you that Theodore Roosevelt began his national career in Washington as a member of the civil service commission and he put this commission on the map.

Government is a public service enterprise. Every official is a trustee for the people. Men and women who work for my government should devote themselves without conflicting loyalties to the public service. They should be selected on the basis of their ability and irrespective of their politics.

Merit System

We had every reason to expect that these principles would be observed by President Roosevelt when he came into office. He had frequently, in the course of his public life, heartily endorsed the merit system of classified civil service. After his election he continued to endorse the merit system.

For instance, in a letter to the Civil Service Reform league in August, 1932, the president wrote: "The merit system in civil service is in no danger at my hands."

Two years later in a letter to the Civil Service Reform league, dated September 17, 1935, he again wrote: "The merit system has been and will continue to be extended during my administration."

Support Merit System

And in a letter to the League of Women Voters, read on the radio, January 30, 1936, he said:

"There can be no question of greater moment or broader effect than the maintenance, strengthening and extension of the merit system. . . I am glad to assure your great organization, of my support in this effort."

These are words that could not help but meet the approval of all those interested in the cause of good government. Now let us look at the record of the past four years.

Spills Set-Up

In July, 1933, in a signed article in the American Magazine, called "Passing out the Patronage," the Postmaster-General of the United States said: "The Democrats have the right. . . to supplant one-fifth, or 150,000 of the Federal office-holders. . . the final decision on all these questions naturally rests with the President himself. I am fully his helper."

Then the Postmaster-General continued: "The patronage is a reward to those who have worked for party victory. It is also an assistance in building party machinery of the next election. . . I am a trustee of something that does not belong to me. The patronage belongs to the Democratic party."

Political Mercenaries

Those were frank words. It is not even necessary to read between the lines to understand them. They meant that every job that could be made available to party workers was to be made available. They meant that every dollar of the public money that could be used to help the party, was to be used. They meant that the Postmaster-General—who was also chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and who was also chairman of the New York State Democratic Committee—was authorized to create a vast army of political mercenaries in order to strengthen the present administration in power.

There you have the sordid, operating plan of a President, who claims to believe in the ideals of civil service—a President who only a month later wrote: "The merit system in civil service is in no danger in my hands."

Patronage List Boosted

Now let us see how this plan was put into effect. Here are the figures:

On March 4, 1933, there were 100,000 jobs available for patronage; 100,000 jobs that could be given to loyal party workers. But apparently this was not enough. So the personnel of the innumerable new alphabetical agencies created was exempted from civil service requirements.

By June 30, 1934, the patronage list had more than doubled—it was 222,000.

A year later, it was 264,000.

And by June 30, 1936, it was 325,000.

Violation of Promises

In other words, the patronage has tripled under the President and his Postmaster-General. This is a direct violation of the President's promises. This is not good government.

Now I know there has been patronage under all administrations. No party has a monopoly of virtue in this respect. But never before has distribution of patronage been organized into a gigantic business conducted in government buildings by a Cabinet officer. And this is not good government.

And in this case the now threadbare excuse of emergency does not hold water. The President should recall that the Wilson administration, of which he was a member, actually increased the percentage of those under the merit system during one of the greatest emergencies we ever faced—the war.

The army available for this administration's political machine is twice as big as the regular army of the United States. It is more than twice the patronage that any President has ever had in this country.

Pay Roll Increased

The increase in the Federal pay roll as a result of this political army is more than $500,000,000 a year.

Yet with all the expansion of patronage jobs what happened to the faithful civil service employees of regular departments? They had their pay reduced and many were discharged in the name of economy. And this is not good government.

The net result has been that the proportion of executive employees under the civil service has dropped from above 80 per cent in 1932 to approximately 60 per cent last June. The progress of a quarter of a century under five Presidents has been lost—lost in three and one-half years under one President—a President who said only a year ago: "The merit system has been and will continue to be extended during my administration."

This administration insisted that the depression had all the aspects of a great war. It maintained that ordinary traditional methods must be set aside—that great power must be centralized temporarily in the Executive. It pleaded that all partisanship be forgotten—that petty advantage be sunk in this time of common need.

Along with the great majority of my fellow citizens I co-operated with the chief executive in our common fight for national reconstruction. We all had the right to assume that the administration would set aside partisanship and work as a genuine national government. This it has not done. The great authority asked, and given, in the name of emergency has been used for personal and party advantage.

System Disregarded

For three and one-half years both the letter and the spirit of the merit system have been cynically disregarded. Government employees have been forced into the ranks of a national political machine, headed by the President and his postmaster-general—a machine organized by the president's campaign committee, supported off the public payrolls, and controlled by the president's power of appointment and removal. And this is not good government.

This administration has gone hog-wild in adding new agencies and accumulating new powers. It has created 75 new alphabetical what-nots. Many of these are little more than duplications of agencies already in existence. The conflict and confusion among all these agencies is so great that finally the president has appointed a grand co-ordinator whose functions overlap the functions of three overlapping agencies studying the problem of overlapping functions of overlapping agencies.

Immense Powers

Some of these agencies have immense powers, yet are responsible to no cabinet officer. They report only to the president or to some independent agency.

In addition, under this administration 42 corporations have been created by congress or incorporated under state laws.

Many of these are absolutely independent of congress. Many have the power to pledge the government's credit without control by congress and can even compete with private business. And this is not good government.

Small wonder that the president told congress in his report on the state of the union last January that his administration had set up new instruments of public power—instruments capable of shackling our liberties and enslaving the people unless they were in the hands of a people's government.

Machine Politics

The Republican party is opposed to powers and policies that could be used by anyone to shackle the liberties of the people or enslave the public. It is doubly opposed to such powers and policies when the people's government is itself threatened by a disciplined national political machine. We are selling to-day, for the first time, the machine politics of our large cities, applied on a national scale. We are getting the first taste of the bitter fruits of personal government. We are feeling the yoke of a government of spoilsmen, by spoilsmen and for spoilsmen.

Trained Employees

With the increasing responsibilities of government, it is absolutely essential that we have a body of trained public servants. The merit system must be restored, expanded and improved. The extension of the system must include the opening of higher positions to advancement through merit.

Building a better and broader civil service will raise the standards of both the administrative and legislative branches of our government. It will save us money. It will not only give us better administration, it will give us better legislation. It will enable our legislators to concentrate on legislation.

The time has come to end this political debacle. The chief need of the federal government today is a good old-fashioned spring house-cleaning.

Vast Housecleaning

When I am president, I propose to make such a housecleaning. This will not disturb the employees under the classified civil service. They are not overpaid. They are not responsible for the waste and extravagance of the administration. The waste and extravagance is outside the classified civil service.

As chief executive I intend to give my close personal attention to the actual administration of government departments.

I intend to ask congress immediately for legislation giving me authority to extend the merit system by executive order. Every position in the executive departments and agencies below the rank of assistant secretary should be filled by promotion for merit or by competitive examinations.

Plans Consolidations

At the same time, I intend to ask for authority to insure real reorganization and consolidation of government bureaus and agencies. And I intend to ask that adequate appropriations be given to the civil service commission.

I shall appoint to the cabinet and other executive positions only those whose belief in the merit system will lead to its full support. I shall appoint only men of ability with records of actual accomplishment. And under my administration no man who remains a member of the Republican national committee will be connected in any capacity with the executive branch of the government.

Open Hearings

It is imperative that the members of the civil service commission should thoroughly understand the problems of government personnel. It is imperative they administer the civil service laws impartially and humanely. I shall ask the commission to study at once the best way to place part-time and contract employees within the merit system.

And I shall ask that the civil service commission provide open hearings—a court of appeal—for employees against whom charges have been made that may lead to the loss of their jobs. When such charges are made the accused should face the accused. In my opinion anything short of such protection to our government worker is unjust and un-American.

Sound Investment

A trained and efficient civil service personnel is a sound economic investment. It should appeal to every taxpayer. Political turnover in government offices encourages waste, inefficiency and neglect of duty. It destroys morale. It lowers respect for government service. We need in government more civil servants like the rank and file of postoffice employees—faithful men and women who have been appointed on merit and have advanced on merit.

It is my intention to broaden the system of promotion in each department so that employees may look forward to continuous advancement.

Roosevelt Drops His Own Challenge

More than ten years ago Mr. Roosevelt wrote to the National Civil Service Reform league as follows: "I should like to see one of the great parties come forward with a challenge to the other party offering to enter into a pact to uphold and maintain the civil service; to recognize that while a few positions at the top—policy making positions, must of necessity be filled by party men, the overwhelming majority of government employees should be something more than party workers."

Since writing those words Mr. Roosevelt has become President. As the head of one of the great parties and as President he not only has been shadow-boxing with his own challenge; he has abandoned his own principles.

Tax Eating Bureaucracy

The time has come to get rid of this tax-eating bureaucracy. We must return to a liberal democratic system.

The task of those who follow this administration will be no bed

COUNTY BOOST BODY LISTENS TO TED CRAIG

Mixing business and pleasure, the Orange County Associated Chambers of Commerce met in Anaheim last night for its regular monthly session, considered ballot propositions and witnessed a showing of motion pictures of the "Lindbergh Trail."

Ted Craig, speaker of the California assembly, explained the 23 propositions without giving a recommendation. Arguments neither for nor against the proposals were given.

Charles L. R. Smith, of the traffic department staff of Pan-American Airlines, Inc., presented the motion pictures, showing actual flying conditions and principal points of interest on the route from Miami, touching 30 Latin-American countries and back to Brownsville, Tex. The pictures were accompanied by a screen announcer, music and sound effects.

John P. Cassidy, assistant secretary of the fish and game development association, appeared with a plea for public support for proposed legislation designed to regulate the sardine industry. Last year, he said, three reduction plants took 150,000 tons of sardines, mostly within the three-mile limit off shore. The catch was taken to floating reduction plants off the three-mile limit where it was converted into fertilizer and valuable commercial oils.

George A. Raymer of Santa Ana brought before the meeting a report on plans for a tour of Mexico. The trip will start January 10 and end 18 days later. It is being planned under sponsorship of the associated.

Delegates and visitors last night were welcomed by Victor Lohy, president of the Anaheim chamber, George W. Reid, secretary of the same group, and by Herb Eldred, president of the Anaheim Merchants association. All invited the public to attend the Anaheim Halloween party to be held Friday night of this week.

Special guests introduced included Congressman Sam Collins, Supervisor Leroy Lyon, Assemblyman Jimmie Utter, Mrs. Thomas L. McFadden and Ross Crane, assistant Orange county farm adviser.

The next meeting of the group will be held December 8 at a place to be selected by the directors, who will meet at Santa Ana the evening of November 9.

14 PLEDGED TO
OF BACHELORS

Santa Ana Junior college's oldest men's service club, Brotherhood of Bachelors, has pledged 14 men to serve a six weeks pledgeship. Until the first week of December Bachelor pledges are required to garb themselves in blue shirts and blue jeans, and to continue wearing the freshman "beanie."

Men pledged to the brotherhood include: Russell Roquet, Ed Stanley, Roy Divil, Bob Faul, Bob Wilde, Carl Lenhardt, Lawrence Todd, Cyril Nichols, Warren Kennedy, Joe Crawford, Bill Semmacher, Erwin Youel, Jack Schilling, and Johnny Sauer.

Membership in the Bachelors is distinguished by athletics, extracurricular activities, or scholastic marks. Members are distinguished on the campus by the wearing of red windsores the Tuesday following the meeting. The day is known as the Bachelor Sabbath. Pledges wear green windsores on this day.

This semester's officers are: Bill Greschner, grand exalted; Fred Lentz, senior exalted; Vernon Koepel, junior exalted; Dick Connell, keeper of the writ; and Carl Benson, houncer. Active members include: Dave Phoenix, John Eichhardt, Howard Rash, Al Titensor, Jack Wilson, Bain Alexander, and Hal Mosiman.

Americans eat the heartiest breakfasts of any people on earth. Canadians rank second.

of roses. It will not be a job for geniuses who despise arithmetic. It will be a grinding undramatic responsibility—without fireworks and without showmanship. It will call for the simple virtues without which no family, no business and no government can long endure.

But the task can be performed. It can be performed by an administration determined to give our people a government that is efficient, economical and honest. It can be performed because the American people will support an administration which is looking after their affairs instead of trying to perpetuate itself in power. As chief executive I shall devote myself to this task with all the energy and determination that I possess. As chief executive I intend to have good government.

Jimmy Fidler in HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—Jewellers hereabouts (especially those who socialize with movie folk to sell them wares) have established the custom of permitting actresses to wear gorgeous trinkets without purchase. Especially does this privilege prevail among lovely newcomers. It is common for an ingenue whose salary barely covers rent and food to blossom forth with a ten-carat diamond ring or headlamp sapphire.

At first glance this practice seems ridiculous. The girls are given no instructions to announce at intervals, "This ring furnished by courtesy of Umpty-ump Jewellers, Inc." And of course, gem salesmen must pay high insurance premiums on their "loaned pretties." Your natural question: "What profit the jewellers?"

There are three possible sources of revenue: (1) The newcomer may zoom to four-figure salary overnight and become a real patron. (2) There may be a boyfriend, lover or would-be lover (anxious to win his case by display of wealth) who will make the purchase. (3) Other actresses, jealous of the newcomer's display, may hasten to buy costlier stones with which to shadow the "fresh" youngster.

These reasons may seem inadequate, but you may take my word for it the jewellers have found their "loan system" a miracle road to sales. There are more purserat gem dealers in this town than in New York City.

Presence of Franchot Tone in "Gorgeous Hussy" with Joan Crawford was not accomplished without long, fiery arguments from Joan. She persistently fought against sharing the screen with her husband, and these were her reasons:

"The public takes seriously what players do on the screen. Let an actress portray a wicked woman, and she is indelibly stamped wicked. I have not wanted Franchot to make love to me in a picture—or worse, to quarrel with me—because I am positive audiences would whisper to each other, 'Uh huh, that's how they really kiss' or 'Look at 'em fight! I bet they act the same way at home!'"

So Miss Crawford fought the idea. I understand it was Tone himself who finally persuaded her to change her views, primarily because the role in "Gorgeous Hussy" was a fine opportunity.

Hundreds of movie-mad girls answered RKO's advertisement for young ladies to dance with Fred Astaire in a picture. It was a publicity stunt, of course, but a few were really chosen from among those who responded to the ads. One New York woman telegraphed: "I would walk 3000 miles to Hollywood to dance one step with Astaire." The director wired back: "If you walk 3000 miles, you will not be able to dance one step."

JUDGE MILNE IS SPEAKER AT WPA MEETING

An appeal for special consideration of the boy who has just been released from a juvenile institution and is returning to his home community, was delivered by Judge Milne, superintendent of Whittier State School, in an address last night to the Willard P. T. A., at the Willard library.

"Our problem," he said, "is not with the boys in our institution; it is what you will do with them when we send them back to you."

Sympathy, cooperation and protection for the boy who has just won back his confidence and self-respect, was urged by the speaker, who stated that the chief problem was to look out for the boy's leisure time. Boy Scout work, or similar activities, are excellent spare-time occupations for the boy, Judge Milne recommended.

Discussing the causes of juvenile delinquency, Judge Milne said that when he tried to find the cause from the boys themselves, one boy told him it was arithmetic. The boy then explained that arithmetic caused the most cutting of classes in school, with resultant entry into mischief.

Judge Milne himself seemed to have a different idea.

One inquirer, he said, came to the school to study the causes of delinquency.

"Why don't you come here on the second and fourth Sundays," Judge Milne told him. "That's visiting day for the parents. You should come when the causes are here, and you can see them."

"It is a tragedy that, when we have completed rehabilitating a boy, we must virtually nullify our work by turning him back to the community and the environs that produced him."

Parent-Teacher associations and Boy Scout workers could put juvenile institutions out of business, if they would cooperate in the preventing of juvenile delinquency, said the speaker.

He described the handling of boys at Whittier, where 344 boys now are enrolled, the normal capacity of the school being 330. The "turnover" of boys coming and going is about 22 per month, he said.

That boys appreciate the training and rehabilitation given them at Whittier is shown by their frequent reluctance to leave the institution when the time comes, said Judge Milne. One boy, he said, complained that he did not want to leave, for fear that he would get into bad company outside.

An instrumental quartet of boys from Sousa Cottage, at Whittier, entertained the group with a series of numbers, including several vocal selections, before Judge Milne spoke.

Mrs. George C. Calhoun, head of Willard P. T. A., presided over last night's meeting, at which various department chairmen rendered reports, and a budget read by Mrs. George Platt was adopted.

It was "father's night" and several new members were recruited from the men present.

Refreshments were served in the Willard cafeteria by a hostess committee, of which Mrs. William Tway was chairman.

ARTHRITIS VICTIM FINDS EFFECTIVE TREATMENT
Genuine RO-MARI, from Great Britain, Relieves Agony

From the British Isles, where it has been used with excellent results by eminent doctors, comes the new scientific prescription RO-MARI—for the relief of Arthritis, Sciatica, Neuritis, and allied ailments resulting from over-acid conditions in the system. Hundreds of people who have tried every kind of treatment in vain now find in this remarkable formula the relief and relief from pain, stiffness, and invalidism caused by these troubles.

A typical example of the effectiveness of RO-MARI in striking at the cause of these ailments is shown in this letter from C. E. of San Diego, Calif.: "I enclose check for another bottle of RO-MARI. My wife has been told she has Arthritis of the spine. I have a touch of Neuritis, but as I say we have both been benefited so wish to continue the treatment."

If you suffer—don't delay! Try this new British preparation that has been so helpful to others.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT GIVES ADDRESS ON LIBERTY AT 50TH ANNIVERSARY PROGRAM TODAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(UP)—The text of President Roosevelt's address at Bedloe's island today commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Statue of Liberty follows:

Fifty ears ago a neighbor and a friend from across the sea gave us this monument to stand at the principal eastern gateway to the new world. Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, accepted this gift with the pledge that "we will not forget that liberty has here made her home; nor shall her chosen altar be neglected."

During those 50 years that covenant between ourselves and our most cherished convictions has not been broken.

Liberty of Speech
Four hundred years ago, in Europe as well as in Asia, there was little hope of liberty for the average man of courage and good will. The ambitions of a ruling class and the times alike, conspired against liberty of conscience, liberty of speech, liberty of the person, liberty of economic opportunity.

Wars, dynastic and religious, had exhausted both the substance and the tolerance of the old world. There was neither economic nor political liberty—nor any hope for either.

Then came one of the great ironies of history. Rulers needed to find gold to pay their armies and increase their power over the common men. The seamen they sent to find that gold found instead the way of escape for the common man from those rulers.

What they found over the western horizon was not the silk and jewels of Cathay but mankind's second chance—a chance to create a new world after he had almost spoiled an old one.

And the Almighty seems purposefully to have withheld that second chance until the time when men would most need and appreciate liberty, the time when men would be enlightened enough to establish it on foundations sound enough to maintain it.

Beacon of Liberty
For over three centuries steady stream of men, women and children followed the beacon of liberty which this light symbolizes. They brought us strength and moral fibre developed in a civilization centuries old but fired anew by the dream of a better life in America. They brought to one new country the cultures of a hundred old ones.

It has not been sufficiently emphasized in the teaching of our history that the overwhelming majority of those who came from the nations of the old world to our American shores were not the laggards, not the timorous, not the failures. They were men and women who had the supreme courage to strike out for themselves, to abandon language and relatives—to start at the bottom without influence, without money and without knowledge of life in a very young civilization. We can say for all America what the Californians say of the forty-niners: "The cowards never started and the weak died by the way."

Place of Second Chance
Perhaps providence did prepare this American continent to be a place of the second chance. Certainly, millions of men and women have made it that. They adopted this homeland because in this land they found a home in which the things they most desired could be theirs—freedom of opportunity, freedom of thought, freedom to worship God. Here they found life because here there was freedom to live.

It is the memory of all these eager seeking millions that makes this one of America's places of great romance. Looking down this great harbor I like to think of the countless number of inbound vessels that have made this port. I like to think of the men and women who—with the break of dawn off Sandy Hook—have strained their eyes to the west for a first glimpse of the new world.

They came to us—most of them—in steerage. But they, in their humble quarters, saw things in these strange horizons which were denied to the eyes of those few who traveled in greater luxury. They came to us speaking many tongues—but a single language, the universal language of human aspiration.

How well their hopes were justified is proved by the record of what they achieved. They not only found freedom in the New World, but by their effort and devotion they made the New World's freedom safer, richer, more far reaching, more capable of growth.

Even Better Home
Within this present generation that stream from abroad has largely stopped. We have within our shores today the materials out of which we shall continue to build an even better home for liberty.

We take satisfaction in the thought that those who have left their native land to join us, may still retain here their affection for some things left behind—old customs, old language, old friends. Looking to the future they wisely choose that their children shall live in the new language and in the new customs of this new people. And those children more and more realize their common destiny in America.

That is true whether their forbears came past this place eight generations ago or only one.

Common Future
The realization that we are all bound together by hope of a common future rather than by reverence for a common past has helped us to build upon this continent a unity unapproached in any similar area or population in the whole world.

For all our millions of square miles, there is a unity in language and speech, in law and in economics, in education and in general purpose, which nowhere finds its match.

It was the hope of those who gave us this statue and the hope of the American people in receiving it that the Goddess of Liberty and the Goddess of Peace were the same.

The grandfather of my old friend the French ambassador, and those who helped him make this gift possible, were citizens of a great state republic established on the principle of the democratic form of government. Citizens of all democracies unite in their desire for peace. Grover Cleveland recognized this unity on this spot 50 years ago.

He suggested that liberty enlightening the world would extend her rays from these shores to every other nation.

Message of Peace
Today the symbolism should be broadened. To the message of liberty which America sends to the world must be added her message of peace.

Even in times as troubled and uncertain as these, I still hold to the faith that a better civilization than any we have known is in store for America and by our example, perhaps, for the world. Here destiny seems to have taken a long look. Into this continental reservoir there has been poured untold and untapped wealth of human resources. Out of that reservoir, out of the melting pot, the rich promise which the New World held out to those who came to it from many lands is finding fulfillment.

The richness of the promise has not run out. If we keep the faith for our day as those who came before us kept the faith for theirs, then you and I can smile with confidence into the future.

Must Be Guarded
It is fitting, therefore, that this should be a service of rededication to the liberty and the peace which this statue symbolizes. Liberty and peace are living things. In each generation—if they are to be maintained—they must be guarded and vitalized anew.

We do only a small part of our duty to America when we glory in the great past. Patriotism that stops with a patriotism out of step with the patriots. For each generation the more patriotic part is to carry forward American freedom and American peace by making them living fact in a living present.

To that we can, we do, rededicate ourselves.

Department Head Recalls Intimacy With Walt Mason

Perhaps it isn't such a far step after all, from the workaday world of men's clothing to the poetic world of Walt Mason and his heart-reaching "Frodo Poems," familiar to readers in the United States. Regardless of the distance separating the two worlds, it has been bridged by William B. McConnell ("Mac" to a host of friends), head of the clothing department of Vandermast Inc.

McConnell, who is oldest in point of service, on the staff, aside from members of the Sunflower state, and while in the clothing business in Emporia, was intimately acquainted with two "Favorite Sons," on the staff of the Emporia Gazette, William Allen White and Walt Mason.

"Mason used to drop in at the store every day to call a cheery 'Good Morning' on his way to editorial duties on the Gazette," he recalled today at his post in the new Vandermast store. "I remember well the day his first prose poem was published. When the editorial page was made up, there was a little blank space across two columns. William Allen White, the Progressive Republican of the old world, suggested to Walt Mason, the 'Stand-Patter,' that he write something at the last minute, to fill this space. The results were the first of a long series of prose poems. It met with such instant success, that it was immediately made a daily feature, from which Walt Mason's name became a household word."

Mr. and Mrs. McConnell and their two sons, Herbert and George, came to California more than 21 years ago, locating first in Pomona, where McConnell, like Carl Stein, one of the members of the Vandermast firm, was with the John P. Evans company. He was with this company for five years, and in August, 1911, came to Santa Ana as a member of the Vandermast staff.

Always interested in Masonry, McConnell had served Masonic lodges in his native Kansas in various official capacities, and has been identified with Lodge No. 241 ever since coming to Santa Ana. He is a past patron of Hermosa chapter O. E. S. and a past watchman of the shepherds in Damascus White Shrine. Mrs. McConnell, too, is active in Masonic circles, and is at present worthy high priestess of Damascus Shrine, and a member of Hermosa chapter O. E. S.

Both are identified with First Presbyterian church. Their home at 3218 Orange avenue, is a hospitable one, scene of frequent gathering of Masonic, church and social groups.

HAWAII TAX VALUE SET
HONOLULU (UP)—The assessed value of real and personal property for taxation purposes in Hawaii totals $378,472,433, according to a report of Territorial Treasurer W. C. McGonagale. That is an average of nearly $1000 a person.

Ninety per cent of the world's clothing is made of cotton.

YELLOW SPRINGS, O., (UP)—In a group of more than 200 new students at Antioch college there is not one Smith or Jones. This breaks a record of long standing at this college.

UP-AND-DOWN
WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—President Roosevelt's final speaking trip, more commonly known as whirlwind drive, was supposed to whirl him out into Ohio and Indiana again. He had half-planned to make a speech at Fort Wayne and a stop at Toledo. You may have noticed that he is now whirling only through the east and driving no further west than Harrisburg. Thereby hangs a tale which involves more than travel.

The way the insiders here tell it, Indiana's Governor McNutt did not want much help from Washington early in the campaign. He even disassociated his state ticket as far as possible from the presidential slate, and consequently, in about 22 counties, the Hoosier voters will be provided with separate ballots, one for Mr. McNutt's ticket and the other for presidential electors.

But since then, the polls, which measure the blood pressure of voters weekly up and down for Mr. Roosevelt, have reported increasing popularity for the President and less for Mr. McNutt's state ticket. For that reason or others, Mr. McNutt's friends besought the White House for assistance.

While Mr. Roosevelt was making up his latest itinerary, the stack of Indiana telegrams on his secretary's desk one morning reached an altitude of three inches. As Mr. McNutt is being mentioned as the possible heir apparent for 1940, as the probable next secretary of war and, in fact, for every federal job now open, it was assumed the President would certainly comply.

Yet he did not, and countless thousands of Mr. Roosevelt's friends are asking why, why, why.

CONFLICT
The gentleman in the woodpile is not an Ethiopian, but apparently only Chairman "Sunny Jim" Farley. Those who should know say that Mr. Farley advised the President not to go galloping westward just to help Mr. McNutt's state ticket. For one thing, the Farleyites thought it would look bad. They thought such strenuous activity at the last minute would indicate lack of confidence on the part of the President.

Where that leaves the heir apparent is not apparent, but Governor McNutt certainly is not in the same spot he once occupied. That is the way it goes in politics, up one minute, down the next, here today and gone tomorrow.

TODAY'S FEEDBOX GLEANINGS
The surveys indicate a much smaller majority for Mr. Roosevelt in Maryland than generally expected, possibly no more than 40,000.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS CHANGE HAT STYLE

Santa Ana football fans still recall with pride, Tex Oliver's winning team of 1931-32. But salesmen of Vandermast Inc. have fully as much pride and a little undercurrent of story triumph in recalling those championship days. For they swung the tide of no-hats-for-youth back into quite as strong a tide of "hats-for-youth's-formal-wear."

You see it was this way. Young men of high school and prep school age had suddenly decided to go bareheaded. Hats apparently, were taboo. And no matter what the occasion, what the style of garb required, Santa Ana youth, in common with that of the state as a whole, appeared triumphant hatless.

Now there are occasions of course, when hats are a disadvantage. But there are far more occasions when bare-headedness is the height of poor taste. And Vandermast did not like the idea of the city's pride, the High school football players, appearing on all occasions, with locks flying to the wind, and no head covering whatever. So on the eve of the "big game," played, as you will remember, with San Diego, two of the leading players were provided with smartly dashing hats, especially appropriate to their youthful vim and vigor.

You can guess the results. When the team appeared in San Diego, each and every player was correctly turned out in sports attire topped with smartly dashing HATS! What if they did exchange their suits and new hats for padded uniforms and helmets? They won the championship—and what is more, they established a steady demand for hats. The occasion was so unique that it was written up at great length in one of the leading trade magazines.

Ever since that date the Vandermast store has made a special study of catering to youth and its costume needs. Experience has shown that while the boys know exactly what they want, it sometimes needs just such an apparent trifle to deflect the current into what they should have. The old time sentiment that "Aw! Fellows don't need hats," is gone.

In its place is a steady demand for hats distinguished by snappy, youthful designs, narrow brims, probably rolled up slightly in the back, streamlined crowns in Tyrolean style—all a little more extreme than styles chosen by older men, and therefore essentially youthful and dashing.

This statement applies not only to the prep school ages, including junior college, but quite as definitely to the smaller lads from 6 to 12 years of age. No longer does a cap that may be wadded up and thrust into a convenient pocket, suit these younger boys. They too have their hats, styled quite as carefully, and with due regard to youth's demands for smartness and the inevitable dash of "joie de vivre."

MODERN MODE USED IN STORE DETAILS

To the interested visitor at the new Vandermast store, the decorative effect which has been worked out in walls and fixtures offers the last word in modernism. Show cases and woodwork in the store are in walnut, rubbed to a rich gloss and especially effective in combination with the wall finish. To the walls has been given a treatment of warm ivory verging on apricot tones. This is heightened in the display windows, where accent is provided by longitudinal lines of a deep rose rust, repeated in the floor covering.

Patrons of the recent Community Players' success, "Hay Fever," will find that the windows strike a reminiscent vein in their memories. For the colors and long lines are almost the same as those used in the modernistic setting given that clever comedy drama.

Instead of silver, the accent is provided by the rose-rust trim, but otherwise, one notes the same lack of angles, the same note of modernity, and the same pleasing color scheme as a background for clothing displays.

Lights are so arranged in the windows as to furnish the maximum of radiance with the minimum of glare. The same thing may be said of the lights within the store itself, where the modern metal fixtures blend in color and design with the general decorative scheme.

In addition to the striking store entrance with its well arranged display windows and a central counter, the side windows on Sycamore street offer opportunity for showing some of the interesting styles for men. There are three of these, deeply recessed, and given the same careful decorative and lighting effect as the main windows.

The whole interior effect of the store is one of simplicity and quiet good taste. The walnut woodwork lends itself well to this pleasing effect in combination with the glass display cases and the wardrobe-lined wall space.

The excellent lines of the completed store were designed by the Burke and Kober architectural firm. Plans were carried out by Therman Means, general contractor. Other business houses contributing to the completed building include Ray Teter, plasterer; S. F. Sorenson, brickwork; W. F. Sorenson, painting; Westco Company Ltd., marble; Santa Ana Lumber company and Barr Lumber company, mill work; Gilbert, Weston, Stearns, electric wiring; Friend-Christy Light and Fixture company, electric fixtures; W. P. Fuller company, glass, and McCoy Sheet Metal company, signs and flower boxes.

Business Manager Believes In Joys Of Large Families

Erwin H. Spicer's chief claim to fame is not the more than six years of continuous service as office manager of the Vandermast store. For he will tell you himself that it is the interesting family of which he and Mrs. Spicer are so proud, and about which all their home life at 2415 North Main street, revolves.

Just the same he is a valuable and a valued member of the store staff, and has been ever since he came from Imperial Valley over half a dozen years ago, to fill the position which he still occupies. Nebraska was Mr. Spicer's native state, and he exchanged his breezy plains and low rolling hills for the hottest valley of the western hemisphere, back in 1913.

While of course his business interests are centered in those of the firm which he serves so capably, his home interests are varied, as is to be expected when there are three charming daughters and two sons to watch develop into womanhood and manhood.

Miss Katherine Spicer is a member of the clerical staff of First National Bank, and is prominent in Wrycende Maedenu, Beta Sigma Phi sorority, and other groups. Miss Dorothy graces the ticket window at the Broadway theater. Edgar is with the Bay District Lumber company, and Miss Eunice and Barney are yet in school.

This interesting family certainly seems to fit E. H. Spicer for his position with a store founded upon family life and interests, as Vandermast Inc., undoubtedly is.

Advertising In Early Day

Thirty years ago, when Santa Ana was a very small western city indeed, readers of its daily paper, the "Evening Blade," fore-runner of the Register of today, would have noted on the front page of the issue of Saturday, May 12, the advertisement reproduced here, of Asa Vandermast's "Cash Clothing House."

Just as the Evening Blade grew and eventually developed into the present Daily Register, so the Cash Clothing House grew and developed into the present Vandermast's, Inc. In all the intervening years, both businesses have stood for reliable service to the community. The copy of the Blade from which the advertisement was taken, is a cherished keepsake of Asa Vandermast. Its columns make interesting reading, and even after the lapse of three decades, there are innumerable familiar names.

It was a special Odd Fellow and Rebecca edition, and one item states that Keller Watson, Orange druggist, had ordered many copies to be sent eastern friends. Prominent men pictured in their lodge regalia include W. B. Tedford and B. Uttley. Among the women active in Rebekah work whose pictures were reproduced were Mrs. Fanny Lacy and Mrs. Belle Buck. News items included that "Mr. and Mrs. James Rice went to Modjeska's ranch today for a few days' stay;" "J. W. Mitchell went to El Toro last night to play for a dance given under auspices of the Modern Woodmen;" "Miss Vera Heathman entertained First Presbyterian Christian Endeavor society last night."

Ballot Travels 14,000 Miles
CADIZ, O. (U. P.)—To record the vote of Miss Olive I. Givin, a missionary at Rosario de Santa Fe Argentina, an absentee ballot is off on a 14,000-mile round trip by land, water, and air. Air-mail postage for the ballot amounted to $2.20.

STORE FOUNDER SEES BUSINESS GROW STEADILY

Although Asa Vandermast has retired from active business life after more than three decades as one of Santa Ana's pioneer clothiers, that does not mean that his aims and ideals are not being continued by the store that proudly bears his family name, Vandermast's, Inc.

A native of Holland, where he was born at Schedam in 1852, Asa Vandermast was barely four years old when his parents came to the United States and settled in Iowa. There he grew to young manhood, and learned the shoe business. But it was in a clothing store that his interest centered, and by the time he attained his majority he had his own store in Rhodes, Iowa, later opening a similar business in Prairie City.

In the meantime he had married and had three children, the sons, Walter N. and Murray C. Vandermast, who followed in their father's business path, and one daughter, Besse Vandermast, now the wife of W. N. Prince, 725 South Ross street.

With their little family, Mr. and Mrs. Vandermast came to California thirty or more years ago, and selected Santa Ana as the ideal community in which to establish a permanent home and a permanent business. The rest is history. The Vandermast store has grown into one of the outstanding businesses of its kind in the Southland for cities of the size of Santa Ana, and the sons and daughter, reared to the fine Dutch traditions of the head of the family, have taken their places in the business, civic and social life of Orange county.

The happy family life is an object lesson to everyone who comes in contact with Mr. and Mrs. Van-

FORMER EXECUTIVE

Although no longer actively engaged in business, Asa Vandermast has left the stamp of his fine personal integrity and his high business ability on the prominent Santa Ana business house which continues to bear his name, Vandermast's, Inc. It has been more than three decades since he founded this men's clothing store, of which his son, Walter Vandermast, is now part owner.

dermast, whose home at 425 South Birch street, is always the center of interest on holidays and family anniversaries. Falling eyesight necessitated Mr. Vandermast's retirement from active business life, but he may rest serene in the knowledge that the business which he built up so carefully, will be carried on in the same traditions.

Wife Bequeathed 25 Cents
SYDNEY, (U. P.)—"One shilling tram fare to some place to drown herself," was the only bequest made by the late Francis Reginald Lord, of Campsie, to his widow, Lillian Lord. The residue of his $3,850 estate was left to his daughter.

J. C. Graduate In Office Post

When Miss Thelma Hicks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Jaques, 507 Normandy Place, elected to take the commercial course at Santa Ana High school and the secretarial course at Junior college, where she graduated in June, she probably had in mind exactly such a position as that in which she now finds herself, office assistant in the new Vandermast store, with a pleasant little booth which she supervises on the main floor, making change and answering queries.

Miss Hicks has been in her present post only a few weeks, going to the position from a summer place in one of the court-house divisions. But like all members of the staff, she is as proud of the new store home as though it were a personal achievement. Which is after all, why the Vandermast staff is such a fine business family.

Although born in Globe, Ariz., Miss Hicks has spent the greater part of her life in Santa Ana.

Like all girls she is fond of dancing and water sports, and is in fact, interested in all sports, from an onlooker's standpoint. But her favorite diversion is reading. She is a member of the Evangelical church.

It is not yet known where sprats, a fish found in British waters between November and February, go during the rest of the year.

Formal Opening Of Clothing Store Comes Tomorrow

TRADITIONS OF FAMILY UPHELD AS YEARS PASS

Father, son, and now grandson. Thus goes the tale of the Vandermaast generations in Santa Ana. When Asa Vandermaast was ready to resign the burdens and responsibilities of the men's clothing business which he founded more than three decades ago, he had a son, Walter Vandermaast, upon whose shoulders could fall the "Mantle of Elijah."

Now Walter Vandermaast's son, Newell Vandermaast, is stepping into a prominent place in the store staff, as manager and buyer of the men's furnishings department at the new store.

Newell Vandermaast, christened with the family name of his grandmother, Mrs. Asa Vandermaast, has really grown from childhood in the store atmosphere, and while he was still a lad in high school, used to give all of his spare time to the store. When he entered Stanford University after his high school graduation, it was natural that he should seek and find a post in a similar store, and he became identified with the Phelps-Terkel company, which maintains smart college shops throughout the west.

After his graduation from Stanford in 1933, he graduated as well from the Palo Alto shop of Phelps-Terkel, to what was at that time the main store, on the U. S. G. campus. It was from this store that the other store policies were dictated, and there all the wide buying was centered. Vandermaast remained there for two years, in charge of all stock records and orders and as assistant buyer for the entire chain of stores.

His years with this establishment were like an advanced course in merchandising in all its ramifications, and fitted him thoroughly for the position which he now holds in the business founded by his grandfather and continued by his father. Like them he will carry on the traditions of both the Vandermaast and the Newell families. His grandmother's brother operated the Newell Clothing store in Long Beach for many years.

Naturally as Stanford alumnus, Newell Vandermaast is affiliated with the Stanford club. He is active also in the Twenty-Three club, and among his social interests is Tux and Gown, the popular dancing club for Santa Ana's younger social set.

Economy Shop to Have Big Appeal

"Business as usual." Such might well be said to be the slogan of the Vandermaast store at Fourth street and Broadway, yet there is an element of the unusual to be found there since transference of general men's wear took place to the new store at Fourth and Sycamore streets.

For unusual features, might be cited the fact that all the garments which have been found in the basement store, now are on the ground floor, in charge of a staff composed of Murray Vandermaast, Celia Vandermaast (Mrs. Murray Vandermaast), Charles A. Spurrier, and from time to time, of three young men from Santa Ana Junior college, Jack Wallace, Warren Mann and Major Anderson.

The "Economy Shop" is an idea which is expected to meet with general enthusiasm from those who want plain, substantial clothing at a nominal cost. There too will be found the various uniforms of white duck, corduroy, etc. Even the shoe department, while essentially planned with youth in mind, boasts a size range that makes it possible for many men to be comfortably fitted, according to Murray Vandermaast.

As younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Vandermaast, Murray C. Vandermaast has been familiar with men's merchandising since his boyhood days. As soon as he was old enough, he stepped into a post with the store, working in intervals of his high school course.

His main interruption to a merchant's career came with the World War, and he spent two years with the A. E. F. in France. It is natural then that his main interest outside store activities, should lie with the American Legion and with the Disabled American Veterans. So he holds membership both with Santa Ana Post No. 131 and with Jack Fisher chapter.

Difference In School Attire

When Santa Ana schoolboys seek the special boys' department of Vandermaast Inc. for the flannel slacks and sport jackets of their favorite school attire they do not realize that schoolboys in far-away England, are following their example perhaps, but with entirely different garments in mind.

Olive Roberts Barton, staff writer for NEA, has described a school scene in London. Writing from the "Right little, tight little isle," she declares "There are no children to speak of. They live away from the center of town naturally, and the center of this town is quite some place for size."

Tophatted Schoolboys
"Oh yes, I saw some boys from top hats and wide white collars and long trousers. Slipped up no end. You would never believe that up to some few years ago, their fellows had carved their initials all over the soft marble figures of kings and queens in the great Abbey. Even noses are gone here and there. And the Coronation Chair bears the share in the alphabet owned by Dickie Jones and Johnny Smith."

"One day, someone woke up to the fact that boys will be boys, and now the young blades are barred from the great church. And the throne is carefully guarded. It is six hundred years old, oak, with a compartment under the seat for the huge rock called the Great Stone of Scone, the former coronation seat of the kings of Scotland."

Swing Music Disturbing

Alterations Are Important

For the past three years, Mr. and Mrs. Claude L. Gideon, 702 West Sixth street, have dreamed of the time when they could call Santa Ana "home."

Gideon, a tailor with Nielson's Clothing company in Long Beach over a period of many years, liked his work there all right, but both he and Mrs. Gideon liked Santa Ana better than they did Long Beach. This was partly because Mrs. Gideon's mother, Mrs. Charles Johnson, lives here, at 618 East Second street.

"For the past three years I have looked for an opening here," declared Gideon. "When Vandermaast's were ready to launch their new store, that opening presented itself, and at last our dreams have come true. I have been familiar with the Vandermaast store for many years, and am very happy to be identified with such a progressive institution."

Gideon is to have charge of the tailoring department at the new store location, where his department will be on the second floor.

NATIVE SON IS FIRM HEAD HAS PROMINENT "GROWN UP" IN IN PARTNERSHIP CLOTHING LIFE

"What was your home state?" is such a general question here in the Southland, that when it received the answer, "I'm a Native Californian" from Carl Stein, member of the firm of Vander-mast, Inc., it was almost a surprise.

For Carl Stein is not only a native born son of the state, but he is an Angeleno as well, and had all his school work in that city. From his high school days he was interested in the business phases of men's clothing, and had his first opportunity of salesmanship with the Los Angeles firm of James Smith and Company, Clothiers. Here he studied display as well, and two years later went with Tom Postl, Clothier, as salesman and display man, with opportunity to devote much time to the intensive study of merchandising.

Stein's training in his chosen field was rounded out with his duties as department manager and buyer first with a San Francisco firm, and later in Arizona where he spent four years before returning to California. For three years he had charge of window displays and also of the hat department of the John P. Evans company in Pomona, from which post he came to Santa Ana a dozen years ago to take charge of the men's furnishings, hats and display for Vander-mast's store.

This well rounded training in all departments of the clothing business had its definite results in his being admitted to the firm in 1929, since which time he has filled his present capacity of secretary-treasurer and store manager.

Business and home are of equal importance in Carl Stein's "Design for Living," and he and Mrs. Stein care little for the wider ramifications of social life, preferring to keep their pleasant home at 2133 Greenleaf street, a hospitable spot for their close friends and for the friends of their daughter and son, both of whom are in Santa Ana High school. Miss Marcela is a senior this year, and her brother Richard, is a junior.

However there are civic interests in which Mr. Stein is definitely concerned, especially the Chamber of Commerce of which he is a director. His fraternal affiliations include the B. P. O. E. and he is active in the Lions club and in El Toro club.

To have grown up in the clothing business is the unique experience of Walter Vander-mast of Vander-mast, Inc., an experience that adds special interest to the company's new departure in establishing a branch store at the busy corner of West Fourth and Sycamore streets.

As the son of Asa Vander-mast, veteran Santa Ana clothier, Walter Vander-mast's earliest boyhood dreams were of entering the same business. After he completed high school and commercial college in his native Iowa, he decided to give reality to his boyhood dreams by entering the employ of the Continental Clothing company in Monroe and later in Newton, Iowa.

In the meantime his father, engaged in the clothing business in various Iowa cities, had visited California, and determined to identify himself and his family with what was recognized as one of the most prosperous and promising little cities of the Golden State, Santa Ana.

It was 20 or more years ago that the Vander-masts came to Santa Ana, and the men's clothing store which was founded here, has grown and developed with the community.

Asa Vander-mast has now retired from active business life, but the principles upon which his store was founded, are proudly retained and continued by the present company, Walter N. Vander-mast and Carl Stein.

"We feel that the Vander-mast store is not merely a business house, but that it is a component part of the civic life of Santa Ana and Orange county," today declared Walter Vander-mast. "As a business house, we have always striven to give value for the money. Cheapness and value are entirely different terms, and while our goods are selected to be sold at the lowest possible prices, without in reach of all our patrons, we really pride ourselves on maintaining good values. In fact best values for lowest prices might be said to be our store creed."

While Vander-mast, Inc. takes first place in point of interest with Walter Vander-mast, he feels that as representative of such an establishment he should take active part in all affairs of civic interest. He is active in the Rotary club, of which he is a charter member; he serves the Home Owned Business association as its president, and is actively identified with the Orange County Farm bureau through his citrus ranch interests.

Social and fraternal organizations in which he is interested include Santa Ana Country club, Silver Cord Masonic lodge, and the Elks club in which he is a life member.

Mr. and Mrs. Vander-mast, whose home is at 416 South Main street, have one son, Newell Vander-mast, who has grown up in the same traditions that marked his father's life. He too is associated with the store and exercises his judgment as to "What the well dressed man will wear" by serving as buyer of men's furnishings, the shirts, robes, sports attire and incidentals to dress that men require.

New Autumn Suits Styled to Answer Fashion's Demand

Good morning, Mr. Man. So you are ready to get your new suit, to dazzle the home folks when you drive 'way back east for the annual Thanksgiving feast?

That's fine. We're the new Vander-mast store you know, with our formal opening tomorrow, and maybe you think we're not all set to show you some of the most attractive and up-to-the-minute outfits that you ever saw! Just give us some hint of your costume needs and we're certain we can please you. So you brought your wife along to help make your selection, didn't you? We like that. A woman's taste is very nearly infallible we think, and added to our expert knowledge of materials and what is the very newest in men's fashions, the results should make you among Santa Ana's best dressed men.

"Old folks at home" needn't blush for their son's taste, and can rest assured that his suits will serve to reflect the business success he is attaining here in the Golden West.

We're quite certain that you must be assured in your own mind that we, as a store, make it a rule in every department that demands of our customers have equal consideration with those of prevailing styles. So after studying your general complexion, your physical build, and what is quite as important, your personal tastes, we feel that we can suit your requirements.

What about the family dinner at noon on "Turkey Day," with Uncle John and Aunt Mary and all little city, with Grandpa and Gramma accorded special seats of honor, glowing with joy at having all their children and their children's children to offer them love and homage, and Father ready to carve the biggest, juiciest fowl possible to secure, and roasted to a luscious turn by Mother's skilled hands?

Nothing formal at all—just a happy family gathering such as will be taking place in untold thousands of homes, but you want to be suitably dressed. How about a British lounge model? It is an outstanding style with its double breasted coat, slightly longer and with a lower waistline perhaps than that model you are wearing, but with extra chest and sleeve fullness to give added comfort. You couldn't ask a smarter model, and one that will give you better service and that comfortable well-dressed feeling.

However if you want to branch out a bit from the conservative, here are some fancy backed double breasted suits that you may find exactly to your fancy.

You prefer the single breasted model, you say? Let us show you these smart blue checks or blade swing backs then. If your fancy runs to plainer ones, here are plenty of others in any weave or material you might fancy, with perfectly plain backs. On the other hand if you have in mind a little different type, how about giving a glance at this gusset sleeve, or these models with double vents and inverted pleats?

So it is the British lounge model after all that meets your approval, is it? Oh, I see. It is the one your wife likes best. Well we depend upon her excellent taste, and are quite certain you will find it satisfactory. Its chief virtue from our own personal standpoint, aside from smartness and fine quality, is the fact that it brings out a man's best points and successfully conceals his bad ones. It adds to his apparent chest breadth and his height, partly from the styling of the coat, and partly from the vest with its smart waist line. As for the trousers, the fashionably loose drape which tends to prevent bagging at the knees, is going to give added comfort when you are so full of Mother's cooking that you feel there is danger of your being mistaken for the artfully stuffed Thanksgiving fowl itself.

NEWEST MEMBER OF BIG STORE FAMILY

"Newest member of the Vander-mast store family." That is the distinction claimed by Carl Everitt in charge of the sportswear department at the new Vander-mast store.

Everitt bases his claim on the fact that it is a bare week since he became identified with the staff, coming to Santa Ana from Hollywood where he was with Brands. In coming to Santa Ana, both Mr. and Mrs. Everitt, who are located at 1021 North Rose street, are realizing a dream that they have held for a number of years.

"We have driven through the city so frequently on our way to Balboa during the past few summers, and every time we have said how much we would like to live in Santa Ana," declared Everitt in the intervals of arranging the variety of sports garments under his supervision.

"We liked the fresh and home-like appearance of Santa Ana" he continued. "We liked the evident care that each householder gave his lawns; we liked the proximity of the walnut and orange groves, and to us it seemed that a little city of exactly the right size for home-making, could be no more advantageously located with reference to the more metropolitan features that Los Angeles can offer, the adjacent charms of the beaches, and the nearness to mountain resorts."

As a result, when opportunity offered to come to this city, make their home, it was seized.

with the greatest satisfaction. Opportunity to be identified with a new store of such modern attractions, was fully appreciated as well, and Everitt is entering upon his work with enthusiasm.

He happens to be another Kansan by birth, and had his high school and commercial college education in his native state before coming to California in 1929. On the other hand, Mrs. Everitt had her early school days in Hawaii, as she was born in Wailuku on the island of Maui where her father had an automobile agency. The family returned to California in time for the young daughter to complete her schooling in Long Beach, where she and Mr. Everitt met and married.

Men's Autumn Styles Express Variety Of Tastes

REGISTER MAN LOOKS AT FALL MODES FOR MEN

BY PAUL VISSMAN

When it comes to color and decided pattern in men's clothes "you ain't seen nuthin' yet" according to Carl Stein of Vandermasts. This flair for color is making itself manifest in the styles for fall and when the spring fashions are offered to dazzle the public they will make last spring and summer styles seem ultra-conservative.

To get the real "low-down" on what the well-dressed man will wear this year, formally, informally and on occasions when he wishes he were home in a dressing gown, curled up with a good book and an apple, there is nothing like a trip through Vandermast's new store at Fourth and Sycamore streets. When it comes to suits, and after all most every man must wear a suit, men are interested in comfort as well as style. For that reason the British lounge model, especially of the double-breasted type, is proving extremely popular this fall.

This type of suit has the full shoulders, tapering sleeve, lower waist line and soft front construction which naturally tends to give the wearer unusual comfort as well as that feeling of "dash, dash, old chap, you know that is frightfully sporting of you" if you know what I mean.

The sports type suit is single breasted with either the gusset or blouse back, allowing that surplus fullness in the back that is associated with comfort in men's suits. As for colors—well of course the double-breasted, more subdued plaids and multiple stripes, the sports types—they are definitely in color and with plenty of pattern.

Stein said that it was only recently that sports clothing of coat with contrasting slacks was considered as purely for summer wear. Fall stylists however, have gone Hollywood, Santa Anita or something and declare that the contrasting color combinations in coats and slacks are definitely "in" for fall.

Now is the time to think of topcoats (overcoat to you) according to Esquire and these nippy mornings. If one is fortunate enough to have two topcoats there are two types to choose from for that careless looking coat one wears to the football game or the races—either the full-swing coat with the Balmaccan shoulders and full belt that ties around, or the English Balmaccan without the belt. Both coats feature decided patterns in checks or herring bone.

For the man who wants a dressier coat, of the type that makes you just know he wears them! there is the roughish type like the Huddler, the more conservative type with raglan shoulders and full belt, the dressier Huddler with set-in sleeves or the Guardsman, form fitting, double breasted and coming in the popular midnight blue shade. The Huddler coat is among the more popular models because it can take a terrific beating and still look like Park Avenue. It is of wrinkle and shower proof material, with a soft, luxurious finish that makes it a favorite with the better dressed men.

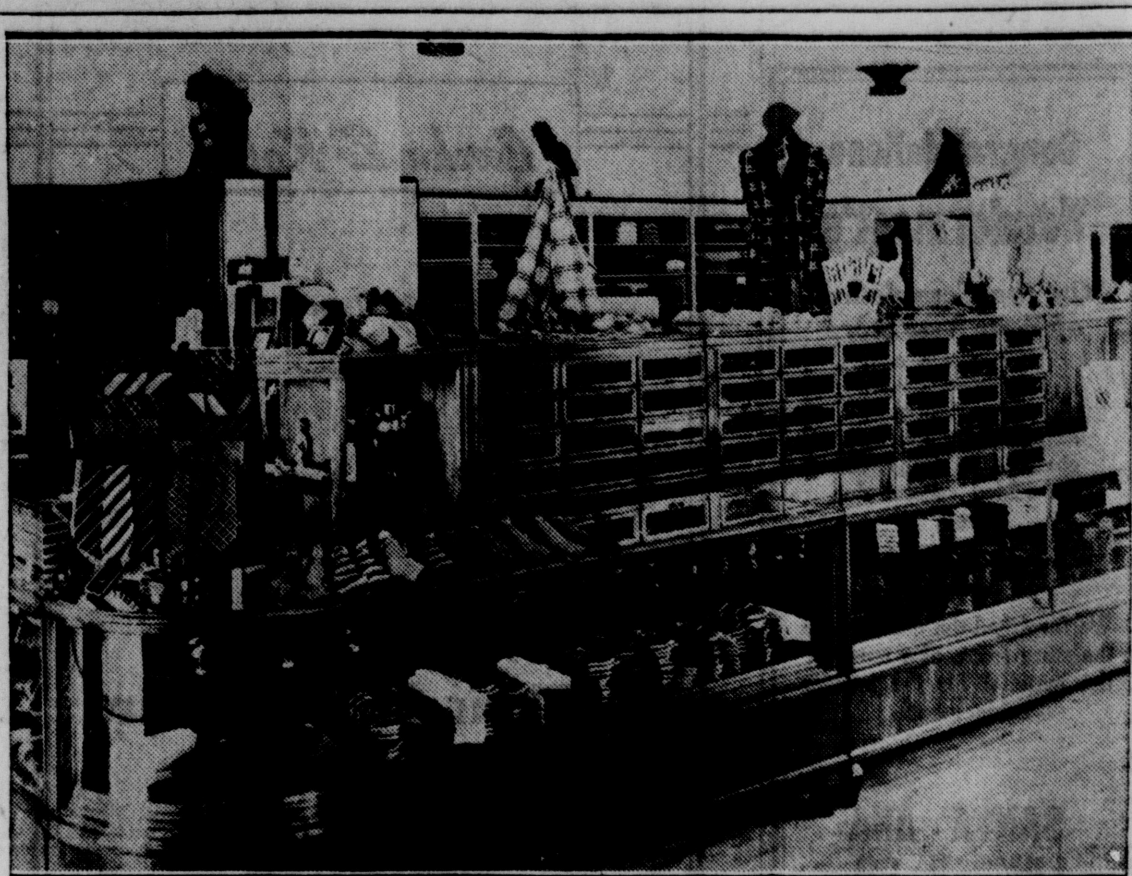

Styles in hats are definitely changing, Stein said. American manhood is facing a season of changing styles with the men apparently tiring of snap brims. While the snap brim is still immensely popular, he said, there is an increased demand for off-the-face styles, such as the Homburg and others not quite so dressy but featuring welt brims. The light-weight crushable hat is still finding favor for the sports ensemble when one spends a long time and a lot of money for clothes that look like they were just tossed on.

Among the younger fellows and the more sportily inclined the shaggy suede oxford shoe in browns and greys have become extremely popular with the Norwegian calf in wing tip styles, leading among the dressier shoes. It has been noted in the dressier last shoes have a more extremely pointed toe than in past seasons. Incidentally all the shoes offered at Vandermast's were styled for Esquire by John Curtis. While the trend to color is revealing itself in suits, topcoats and every item of men's wearing apparel it is in his shirts and ties that Mr. Public is planning really to express his long suppressed yen for color and design. The shirt with the button-down Kent collar, in checks, either violent or in soft tones is extremely popular among the better dressed men. For the man who does not care for the Kent collar there is the shirt featuring the new, Aro-Set collar that re-

STORE INTERIOR COMMANDS ATTENTION

Immediately upon entering the new Sycamore and Fourth street store of Vanderquires no starch yet looks as starched as your Aunt Emma at a cocktail party. This type of shirt is tailored in light plaid, over-plaids and soft tones. Neckwear in the imported poplins and wrinkle-proof Botany ties have followed the color-trend of the shirt and are coming in bright colors that may either harmonize or contrast with the shirt patterns in pleasing and startling effects.

At the end of a day there is nothing nicer than to slip on a pair of faultless No-Belt pajamas that, like the laundress, does away with the drawstring, pull on a two-tone flannel lounging robe and a pair of comfortable slippers, sit down with a good book for a quiet evening and then have the doorbell ring.

If the ring means that you are expected to put on formal attire and "step-out" the correct thing to wear is a double-breasted tuxedo giving the broadshouldered effect and in the midnight blue shade. The vest should be of the backless type and the shirt semi-stiff with the Aro-set collar. The hat a Homburg.

Boys' Shop Head Is Jubilant Over Big Floor Space

Sometimes the question is raised, has a woman any place other than office or alterations department, in an establishment devoted strictly to serving men's clothing needs.

For an unequivocal yes in answer to that question, it might be well to point to the Vandermast store and the unqualified success of Celia (Mrs. Murray) Vander-mast, as head of the department devoted to boys' wearing apparel. Mrs. Vandermast has been connected with this long established clothing business ever since 1929, when the store location was on East Fourth street. When the move came to the corner of Fourth and Broadway, she moved too, and at that time took over the management of the basement store, fitted up as an interesting place in which to cater to the juvenile patronage.

To see Mrs. Vandermast with her young patrons is said to be a liberal education in salesmanship, and her quiet counsel is invaluable to busy and harried parents, struggling with their selection of garments that will appeal to their children's preferences and at the same time be in good taste and of durable materials.

"I have enjoyed the basement store more than I can say," today said Mrs. Vandermast. "But you have no idea how exciting it is to anticipate having all our stock on the main floor, and having so much more room at our command." Mr. and Mrs. Vandermast were married here in Santa Ana in 1923, and live at 325 Wakeham avenue. Mrs. Vandermast holds membership with Legion auxiliary and with the auxiliary to Jack Fisher chapter, D. A. V. but other than that, has little interest in club life, since store and home duties demand all her attention. While not affiliated with the church, the Vandermasts attend First Baptist church.

Malay Orchids Sent to London SINGAPORE (U. P.)—Orchids grown in British Malay will soon be on sale in London, carried by Imperial Airways liners in special damp storage cases. In Singapore orchids cost about a penny each, although the same varieties in London rank as rarities costing 5 to 10 shillings.

C. A. SPURRIER IS AGAIN WITH STORE

Probably the fact that he has three lively sons of his own, gives C. A. Spurrier an added interest in his work at the original Vander-mast store, where the boys' department has come within his range, although he is to be mainly concerned with the economy and work goods department, under the new plan going into effect now.

Spurrier, who is a native Buckeye, has lived in California for more than 16 years, and has been connected with the Vandermast organization at different intervals, first at the original store location, later at the Broadway store where he is remaining.

He and Mrs. Spurrier live at 415 Harwood Place, and their sons are Royal, now in his first year at high school; Warner and Bobbie, both students at Julia Lathrop high school.

Spurrier's fifteen months of World War service have caused his interests in veteran organizations, and he is especially active in Jack Fisher chapter, D. A. V. in which organization he has held the post of adjutant for nearly four years.

The American Legion was organized in Paris in 1919.

THREE MUSKETEERS OF MERCHANDISING

Parthos, Aramis and D'Artagnan. One for all and all for one. Everyone remembers the immortal Three Musketeers, who have their modern counterpart so far as the Vandermast store is concerned, in Jack Wallace, Major Anderson and Warren Mann, three lively young Junior college students who form a component part of the sales force.

Jack Wallace is the oldest in point of store associations, for he has been working outside of school hours and in summer vacations ever since his high school days. This year, his second at Junior college, he has arranged his study course so that his afternoons are free for store duties in the "Varsity section." He has charge of stock and aids in waiting on customers, and his familiarity with what the young men of high school and Junior college are like and demand, is a decided asset.

Jack is a "Junior," the son of

EFFECTIVE BUSINESS CORNER

Adding greatly to the prosperous and metropolitan appearance of Santa Ana's shopping district, is the attractive new Vandermast store at the southeast corner of West Fourth and Sycamore streets. The entrance with its fine display windows, in a modernistic manner in which the store name has been worked into the decorative effect, all contribute to the attractiveness of this newest addition to the city's modern and business-like appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wallace, 1621 Spurgeon street. His junior college studies are arranged with reference to the business law course he plans to take when he enters Stanford next year after his graduation from Santa Ana Jaycee. On the local college campus he finds time between his studies and his store duties, to give to the Junior Lions and to Tavern Tattlers, among various campus interests.

Warren Mann, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Mann of Balboa Island, hasn't had quite as long selling service as has Jack Wallace but he will have been with Vandermast's a year at the Christmas holidays. He too sandwiches his junior college studies in with his salesmanship, and even sacrificed his dreams of Jaycee football in order to have his job.

When you recall that he played right half back for three years on the high school varsity, you know that means a real sacrifice. In college he is taking a commercial course preparatory to advanced business course when he enters Stanford, which is his ambition. But that is almost two years in the future, for this is his first year in junior college.

Warren has been active in Santa Ana chapter De Molay for the past two and a half years, and has advanced to the rank of senior counselor, which means that in January, he will automatically become the chapter's master counselor, the highest office in De Molay.

The latest comer to these three musketeers is Major Anderson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Major Anderson, 2412 Heliotrope Drive who became identified with the store personnel just this fall. Already he is so imbued with the store spirit that he plans to give his full time after graduation from junior college in February. Having completed his full two years of football and of track, he is taking no active part in the college sports program so is free for his store duties. His study course embodies advertising, window decorating, design, color and art courses. Major, you see, has his future so well mapped out that when he is manager of his own department, he will understand exactly what is needed in window displays and in newspaper advertising, so all his study courses are to that end.

More books have been written about Abraham Lincoln than about any other man. Napoleon held the record prior to 1870.

Forster Home Is Scene Of Party

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Oct. 28. — Mrs. Buddy Forster entertained charmingly recently at her home on McKinley avenue, when a group of friends assembled there for contract bridge. The occasion was the monthly meeting of a contract club to which Mrs. Forster belongs.

At the refreshment hour, Mrs. Forster carried out the Halloween motif in all details. At each table little pumpkin jack-o'-lanterns sat grinning snugly between tall flickering tapers of orange and black.

Those enjoying Mrs. Forster's hospitality were Mrs. Maynard Baird, of Whittier; Miss Margaret Wentz, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Robert Oats, of Montebello; Mrs. Dale Pheddraplace, of Fullerton; Mrs. Ted Hansen, of Twenty-nine Palms; Miss Mildred Dauser, of Fullerton; Mrs. Ewald Lemke, of Anaheim; Mrs. Darrel Webb, of Anaheim; Miss Catherine Adams, of Anaheim; Mrs. C. E. McFadden, of San Juan Capistrano, and Mrs. Clarence Stull, of Riverside.

The church pennant is the only flag that can be flown from the same hoist above the Stars and Stripes.

at intervals for the past seven years, starting with them at the store location from which they moved to Broadway. She will re-main at the Broadway store for she especially enjoys working in boys' clothing. Mr. and Mrs. Bates live at 111 West Second street. They are identified with Richland Avenue M. E. church, and Mrs. Bates is a member of the Rebekah lodge.

HAT STYLES SHOW WIDE VERSATILITY

"We are hearing a lot about the Homburg," explained Carl Stein of Vandermast, Inc., when approached in regard to the type of hats most in demand among Santa Ana men. "The Homburg, with its rolled brim drooping slightly at front and back, is smart and dressy and a favorite with young men. This style as well as off-the-face styles, are both here to stay, in my opinion."

Stein then proceeded to elaborate his statement, giving much valuable information that will be welcomed by men about to purchase their fall and winter needs in hats. Referring to off-the-face blocks, he explained that he meant the wider brims with a slight flange, capable of being turned up with a dashing air. Many of these hats he declared, are so proportioned that they may also be worn snapped down in front. Moreover it is no longer necessary to go back to the heavy-weight felts to get this new style effect, for such hats are being made up in lighter weight materials suitable to the milder climate of the coast states, by such firms as Stetson, Borsalino and Disney.

It is the experience of Vandermast, Inc., that off-the-face styles are just as much in demand as was the snap brim when it was first accepted in 1926. After the passing of a full decade, the same definitely careless style makes its strong appeal, although the once popular light-weight crushable type seems to be losing in favor. The masculine public is ready to change to a more formal hat style, according to Stein's opinion although the careless type, with its undoubted comfort, will always retain a place in California wardrobes.

The correct fitting of hats is an art in itself, according to store stylists. It is a subject requiring actual study, and those in the hat department at Vandermast, are coached in all essentials of correct salesmanship. No longer does a salesman steal a surreptitious glance at the hat which a customer chances to be wearing, and then bring out similar models for his inspection and approval.

Instead men of the staff are coached in the art of studying proportions and features, and then using discrimination in selecting modes to show. For example, a man with thin, narrow face, really requires a tapering crown to give him the most becoming effect, while the opposite type of full faced customer, should have the fuller crown to complement his features. In the matter of brims, the distinction is quite as pronounced. The brim with a decided curl, which the thin-faced man can wear with effective results, is not for his round faced brother.

After the study of correct proportions, comes the matter of adjustment. And this is truly an important one when it comes to appearances. The correct angle means all the difference between a nondescript effect of a hat being merely a head-covering and the dash of an actual garment of style and adornment.

The "Daring young man on the flying trapeze" must have a hat adjusted to exactly the right dashing angle of carefully studied carelessness, an apparent contradiction in terms that is nevertheless, true. But it is just as important for the conservative dresser, the average business man, be he executive, department head, "doctor, lawyer, merchant, chief," to have his hat adjusted to the angle which is most becoming to his individual type.

It is an axiom with clothiers that the average man cannot be his own best judge when it comes to hat styles. If he has been accustomed to wearing a rather narrow type of brim, a slightly wider one will seem impossible until he becomes a bit used to seeing himself with it on. A wise salesman, convinced that the wider type of brim is becoming to his customer, welcomes nothing so much as advice from wife, mother or sweetheart that may chance to be an onlooker at the process of hat fitting. For the feminine eye is certain to see at once, the style possibilities in a change of mode, and feminine persuasion, added to the style instinct of the fitter, can work wonders with a customer, reluctant to change his hat modes. As a result of this salesmanship policy in effect at Vandermast, the men at the hat department might well be called "style advisors" rather than salesmen.

Horse Belies Name

STOCKTON, Cal. (U. P.)—Because a horse named Candy Girl did not live up to its name, Charlotte Rogers has brought a $3,470 damage suit against the riding academy that rented it. The horse, she says, was "ill-tempered, fractious, skittish, shying, nervous, bucking, and dangerous."

Silk Robes

MODERN LOVER TO HIS LASS

Oh woman, in our hours of ease, gaze on your men in those and these! Gaze fondly on our virile looks graced like the duke in British books, with cocktail coat of crimson shade as bright as worn by any maid. Look on us when in bright array of satin robe, we brave the day. And if a saucy flirt of breeze should twist that robe about our knees, look on us then with utter awe! Such bright p. j.'s you never saw. Our favored satin dressing gown is not in somber gray or brown, but blazons forth in royal blue or in the grape's rich purple hue. Our socks too, rival redbird's wing or butterfly's bright coloring. While as for ties—gone is the day when these were blue or brown or gray. Now neckties sound such gaudy notes as hummingbirds' bright jeweled throats. And shirts! Why did I mention shirts? Each is so noisy that it hurts. Which proves that men recall the word that children should be seen, not heard. But reaching man's estate, I ween we're heard as fully as we're seen.

Needing Any Swim Suits?

Of course, technically speaking, this is not the season to call attention to beach and mountain attire, since swimming and boating are hot weather sports pre-eminently, and winter mountain sports require something other than slacks, sun-suits and dungarees.

Yet the fact remains that Vandermast is ready at all times to display the cleverest of swim suits, nautical attire and slacks appropriate for yachting, for the benefit of those lucky men that are thinking perhaps, of dashing off to Hawaii next week or next month.

An interesting feature of such sports garments is the fact that many of the smartest are produced very close home indeed, by the Kroesen Manufacturing company of Long Beach. This is one of the neighboring beach city's business projects that has grown by leaps and bounds since it was organized in 1923 by Gus Kroesen. His business was down near the famous Pike, and catered to the Navy by making dungarees for the seamen. The company was incorporated in 1935, and has branched out into the various fields of sports wear for both men and women.

Boys' Department Now Developed To Answer New Needs

With the transference of the first floor stock of men's clothing, furnishings and hats to the new Vandermast store at Fourth and Sycamore streets, members of the firm are working out an interesting plan at the longer-established store site at Fourth street and Broadway. This will develop yet further their catering to the needs of children and lads of elementary and junior high school ages.

This department has long been a prominent feature of the store and it is a matter of personal pride to the firm that patrons come from various Southland points, and are not confined to Santa Ana or even to Orange county. Both the class of garments sold, and the attention given to youthful customers are responsible for this.

If you, Mr. or Madam Santa Ana, have even taken your sturdy, independent, restless small son into the boys' department of the store, you know the reason why it is not at all difficult to keep Master Johnny Santa Ana quiet while his brief trousers are being fitted, or the little sports coat adjusted to his measurements. There are so many fascinating toys and animals to look at and investigate, and Mrs. Murray Vandermast, in charge of this department, is so understanding of youth's needs and temperament, that what is usually an ordeal, proves to be a pleasure instead.

Hitherto, lack of sufficient space has made it necessary to have the children's department in the basement. But now it is being transferred to the main floor of the Broadway store, where generous space is reserved for this one feature. On the opposite side of the room, clothing needs of the pre-school age will be filled. At the rear will be found the garments demanded by working men, including the uniforms required by various business houses such as service stations, automotive supply houses, etc.

Among smart new sports garments just received in readiness for the fall trade, the new corduroy sports coats are especially striking. Their color range includes in addition to dark blue and brown, a deep electric blue Spanish green and wine red.

These sports coats in narrow-wale corduroy made such an appeal to the proprietor of a popular malted milk and sandwich shop, that he is outfitting the girls of his staff in coats of wine red and of green, with tailored slacks to match.

Since the children's department is now to be found on the main floor where Mrs. Murray Vandermast will continue to cater understandingly to the clothing needs of her small customers, the basement space will be utilized in a new manner, according to present plans of Walter N. Vandermast.

"We will still need a playroom for the small children," he said today, in discussing this department. "It would be foolish to make no use of the equipment which we have in place. Then too we feel that the space would be appreciated by church and club women of the city as a place in which to hold their frequent rummage sales and bazaars. It seems very well adapted to such usage, as it is of such easy access either from Fourth street or from Broadway, and would give them all the space they could possibly need."

WHERE INFORMALITY REIGNS

In the sportswear department of the new Vandermast's store, the prospective purchaser may make a deliberate choice between the checks, plaids and solid colors of the slacks on display, and the equally varied sports coats to accompany them, many of them in the soft finished suede or leather which lends itself so well to the newest sports modes. Here too are the robes and dressing gowns for moments of absolute leisure.

University Man Is Given Charge Of Two Extremes

Where extremes meet, in the new Vandermast store, you will find John Bright. For although he has been in Santa Ana and associated with Vandermast only about a year and a half, he has been placed in charge of those extremes in men's wearing apparel, headgear and footwear, in the new store at Fourth and Sycamore streets.

His experience in such lines in the east is bearing fruit in his rapid advancement to managerial responsibilities here. For he has been interested in salesmanship ever since he was 14 years old. W. can't tell you exactly how long ago that was, but we might mention that he is still engagingly youthful, vibrant with enthusiasm, has the friendliest smile, and the brightest blond hair that just escapades being the flaming red that goes with his freckles.

He came to California from Buffalo, N. Y., where he was with a Marshall Field branch store, and where he had several years' experience not only in men's clothing, but in the shoe business as well. This experience is going to be doubly valuable now that Vandermast's plan an enlarging of the department devoted to men's footwear.

BEAU BRUMMELL'S SMART OVERCOATS

What sort of a top coat does the modern Beau Brummell require to cover his sartorial splendor when seeking out-door sports and diversions or business affairs through a chill west coast winter?

If you should happen to propound that query to W. B. McConnell at the new Vandermast store, you would certainly receive a fund of information that would help you decide upon a suitable purchase.

Do you like the solid and substantial qualities always associated with Bond street tailors? Then you will certainly like the "Royal Cameron" overcoats, with their authentic British styling. These garments, made up in brown or gray with plaid design so effectively wrought in the all-wool material that it is completely unobtrusive yet most pleasing, are double breasted with raglan shoulders, full belt and the very up-to-the-minute idea of full length side vents from armhole to hem. They are really one of the outstanding new styles of the year.

Or perhaps the Huddler will have a special appeal to you, a new Society Brand all-seasons topcoat. The fabric, a carefully balanced blend of the fine silky hair of the South American alpaca, kid mohair and fine wool, comes in medium and Oxford grays, heather green and brown, blue, dark brown and tan. But what makes the Huddler an outstanding garment is the fact that it truly lives up to its boast of an all-seasons coat.

Cram it down in your suitcase or in the rumble seat of your car when you get too warm, and it will emerge as fresh and unwrinkled as a daisy. Hold it under a faucet for hours, if you are minded to put its waterproof qualities to a test, and it will be dry as the proverbial bone. So you see you are perfectly protected even if one of the most dashing of Southland rains comes and catches you sitting in the unprotected grandstand at one of the big games. "Wrinkle proof, rain proof, cold proof and wind proof" are the claims made by the manufacturers, and you will find each claim justified—and extreme smartness to boot, in case you are like the majority of men, looking for quality, service and smartness combined.

Then there is Knit-Tex, representing an idea in price controlled garmenting throughout the United States, a garment which is never included in reduction sales. This is another "non wrinkle" coat of unusual wearing qualities, every thread of which is wool. It is developed in plain and fancy color combinations with some models in checks and plaids especially in favor among young men about town.

When it comes to the realm of formal life, and men, resplendent in full dress, are looking for a top coat that savors of formality and is the essence of correctness for any dress-up occasion, nothing could better answer their purpose than the Guards, smooth in texture, midnight blue in color, and extremely dashing as to line. It is double breasted, and is fitted in the back with folds and inverted pleats caught with a belt. The Guards is a far cry from the satin lined evening capes of an earlier generation, but it has the same dash, the same smartness and carries the same suggestion of dining and dancing down the Great White Way.

Those are but a few of the smart modes to be seen in topcoats by those interested in the matter, and dropping in to survey the pleasant new store and its definitely smart styles.

Office Assistant Changes Location With Store Moves

"This is my second move with the Vandermast's store," today declared Mrs. Evelyn Atwood as she paused in her busy routine of duties in the convenient mezzanine floor office of the new Sycamore and Fourth streets store of Vandermast, Inc.

"I have held the post of office assistant for the past seven years, and when the store was moved from its former West Fourth street location to the corner of Fourth and Broadway, I went along. So when this new move came, it was natural that I should pick up note books, pencils and typewriter and move again."

Mrs. Atwood is another "Sunflower State" Californian, having been born and reared in Governor Landon's own state. When first coming to the coast, she chose Portland as her home, but in 1920 having in the meantime acquired a husband, Park G. Atwood, who is with the George Dunton company, a decision was reached to come to California. Santa Ana has been the family home ever since, and Mrs. Atwood secured her business training here in the Santa Ana Business Institute.

If she has one special hobby, outside her home and business interests, it is riding, and she and Mr. Atwood are active members of that little group of horse lovers banded together as the "Santa Ana Riding Pals".

Mounted Section To Be Armistice Parade Feature

S. A. MERCHANTS OFFER PRIZES TO EXHIBITORS

Based upon entries already received, the equestrian division of the Armistice Day parade sponsored by the American Legion to be held in Santa Ana November 1, promises to be the finest showing of horse flesh ever seen on the streets of any city in Orange county.

The men in charge of this division of the parade are George McConnell, assisted by George Boyd, who have been given cooperating support by the merchants of Santa Ana who have donated 7 trophies which will be presented to exhibitors of fine horses in the various classes and units on Armistice Day.

These trophies will be awarded to winners in the flat saddle division as follows: Best Lady Rider, Best Man Rider, Best Pair, Best Western Division, Silver Mounted, Plain Equipment and Group in plain and silver.

Beautiful trophies also will be awarded in the sweepstakes classes of mounted divisions, group riders and drill teams.

A handsome trophy also will be presented for the best western equipped youngster, boy or girl, 15 years of age or under.

Several entries have been received from the larger riding academies of Orange and Los Angeles counties. The American Legion today extended an invitation to all owners of good horses to enter and make this division an outstanding feature of the parade.

The parade will be of four divisions this year, according to Charles Van Wyk, chairman of the parade committee. The procession will be approximately two and one-half miles long, but the route will be shorter than usual. Floats or marching units have been entered by every legion post and auxiliary in the county.

Plan Museum Program To Honor Pioneer

The story of the life of Don Juan Forster, who came to California a hundred years ago and became one of the state's greatest cattlemen, is to be told at the Bowers Museum Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The speaker will be Terry E. Stephenson, president of the Orange County Historical society.

The program has been arranged by the historical society in co-operation with the museum. Relics of the days of Don Juan Forster and Governor Pio Pico will be exhibited. Many descendants of Forster will be guests at the meeting, which will be open to the public.

JAYSEE ORPHAN KIDDIES CLUB PLANS PICNIC

Picnic plans were being formulated today for the annual Santa Ana Junior college Orphan Kids club meet which will be held at Irvine park tomorrow afternoon and evening.

The O. K. club is a jaysee service organization and membership is extended to students living away from home. At present it boasts of an enrollment of 94 members representing 18 states; with representatives from Paris, France; and Cristobal, Canal Zone.

Arrangements for the picnic were completed today by a committee composed of Evelyn Chapman, and Neil McDaniel, who are under the supervision of H. G. Scott and Miss Dorothy Decker, O. K. club advisers.

Members of the club are planning to gather at the Board of Education building at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow from where they will depart for the park. Games and contests will be held during the late afternoon, followed by a dinner and dancing in the evening.

During the picnic, a meeting will be held in which club officers will be elected for the present semester. President Fred Erdhaus, Vice President Evelyn Chapman, and Secretary Neil McDaniel, who were the club officers last spring, will be in charge of the meeting.

HAROLD HARRISON HONORED ON BALLOT

Harold P. Harrison, Santa Ana, was elected president of the Orange County Insurance Exchange Monday night when that organization held its annual meeting at Green Cat cafe. Roy Peacock, Laguna Beach, was elected vice president and C. C. Dessery, Santa Ana, was named secretary-treasurer.

Members of the executive committee named at the same session included: M. C. Beebe, Anaheim; Frank Crooke, Fullerton; Lew Wallace, Newport Beach and Clyde Newton of Orange.

James Ingham of Pasadena was the principal speaker discussing "Business Developments." In addition to the talk by Ingham mem-

RANCH WORKER GETS JUDGMENT FOR BACK PAY

Claiming he worked on four ranches belonging to E. A. Heffner and L. J. Heffner, Anaheim, during 1931, 1932 and 1933, without pay, T. N. Barnett of Placentia, yesterday won a judgment for $502.77 and costs, for wages due, in Santa Ana justice court.

Motion of A. P. Nelson, attorney for the Heffners as defendants, that the case brought by Barnett to collect his wages, be dismissed on the grounds that L. J. Heffner was declared a bankrupt following the time the wage bill was due, and therefore Barnett was barred from bringing an action independent of other creditors, was denied by Judge Kenneth Morrison when no bankruptcy papers were produced.

Barnett said he worked on the "Brookhurst," "Dad's," "Louie's" and "Brea" ranches, in the Placentia and Brea districts, for 40 cents per hour, common labor, and 50 cents per hour for tractor jobs. E. A. Heffner claimed he should not have been made party to the suit since the working agreement was between L. J. Heffner and Barnett. Barnett was represented in court by Attorney Leo J. Friis of Anaheim. Attorney Nelson said he planned to appeal the case to superior court.

JAYSEE PLANS DEBATE TEAMS

John H. McCoy, debate instructor at the Santa Ana Junior college, today revealed plans for the organization of debate teams to represent the college in the coming debate season.

The question for debate this year was decided upon at a meeting Saturday at Citrus Junior college, attended by Eastern conference debate coaches. The question is: Resolved: That congress should be empowered to fix minimum and maximum hours for industry.

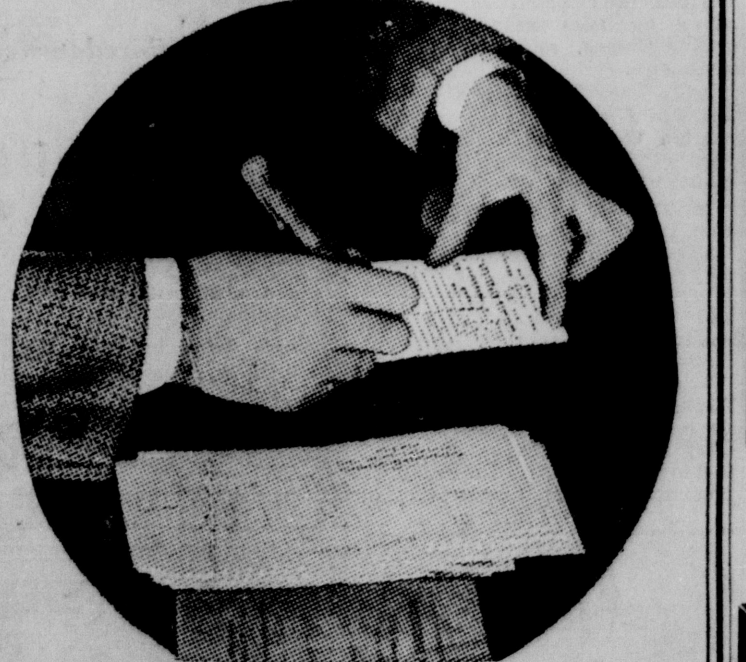

The first contest for the local team is scheduled for November when they will attend a tournament in Pasadena. A debate for the negative team is also planned for December 11.

The conference to which the local institution belongs is composed of San Bernardino, Riverside, Fullerton, Santa Ana, Citrus, Chaffey, and Pomona.

PUBLISHER, ATTORNEY DEBATE GOVERNMENT CENTRALIZATION AT ECONOMIC FORUM SESSION

JUST AS THEY have disagreed in the columns of The Register, upon fundamentals necessary to cure the nation's economic distress, Sharpless Walker, local attorney, and R. C. Hoiles, Register publisher, disagreed when they debated before the Forum for Political and Economic Education at the Junior College building last night on the subject, "Resolved, that it is to the Interest of Society that the Centralization of Government Authority, as Advocated by the Present Administration, Become the Law of the Land."

Stressing the importance of re-waste and we need to stop it. Free competition for capital will. Happers States' Rights

"Centralization of power," he continued, "takes the rights from the states, congress, the supreme court and the individual. Allowing such central control, we couldn't get our pants pressed nor raise a bushel of potatoes without getting permission. Such control takes the right of everyone to associate with whom he pleases and if government is to protect one private enterprise, it must protect all enterprises. When a dictator takes away the individual's right to practice trial and error methods to gain progress, it stops him from trying and progress ceases. The present administration has failed in regulating money and credit and in dividing the costs of government. If it cannot regulate them, how can it be expected to successfully run the nation's business? No one man is wise enough to know what business to expand; therefore, let business compete freely and new progress, new jobs, will be created.

Over-production in the general economic field is impossible. Figures show 300 new types of enterprises have been started since 1925."

Program Chairman W. H. (Ted) Blanding announced there would be no forum next Tuesday—election day. But on November 10, the debate subject will be, "Resolved, that Congress shall have the Right to Over-Rule the Supreme Court by a Three-Fourths Majority," he said.

Advocates Power Control
"We are now living in an age when most of us will see hydro-other forms of power," said Walker. "There is more than one reason why the government should control hydro-electric power enterprise. Look at the catastrophe which resulted from Insull's control. Read in the magazine, Fortune, of some time back, regarding the selling of cannons and other war munitions by private English and French interests to Germany—munitions used to destroy the lives of English and French people." In spite of two droughts in three seasons, the government so regulated farm produce as to increase prices to the point where farmers were able to pay their taxes and have some profit left, he added.

"I agree with Mr. Walker on a few points," Hoiles said. "Monopolies must be stopped. The Sherman Anti-Trust law is aimed at them. Let us repeal the Clayton amendment and stop monopolies. However, I admit one of the best things done by the present administration is its control of the gas and oil industry. But centralization of government won't stop

START SECOND YEAR OF STUDY ON FARM COSTS

The Orange County Farm Accounting Association is now closing its first year of cooperative cost accounting and is ready to start on its second year's operations. This statement comes from Edward Hall, Santa Ana, president of the association.

The need for a cooperative non-profit farm accounting association is becoming greater each year, says Hall. Farmers are finding that a good accounting system is necessary for successful farm management. A careful study of operating costs in each crop enterprise will indicate to the grower where savings can be made and more efficient methods can be put into practice.

The Orange county association is set up to assist its members analyze the efficiency of their farm business. The project was initiated by the Rural Credits committee of the Farm Bureau and has the approval of the directors of the Orange County Farm Bureau. The responsibility of getting the cooperative project under way has been assumed by a group of farm leaders interested in the value of a self-supporting accounting service to the individual member. The officers and directors of the Orange County Farm Accounting Association are Edward M. Hall, president, Santa Ana; Raymond Terry, secretary, Anaheim; Frank Latham, treasurer, Tustin; A. H. Allen, Santa Ana vice president; H. Clay Kellogg, Garden Grove; Andrew Smiley, accountant, Garden Grove; and Harold E. Wahlberg, Agricultural Extension Service.

President Calls For Meeting Of 4-H Council

Mrs. G. D. Grisst, president of the Orange County 4-H club council, has called a meeting of leaders for Tuesday evening November 3. The meeting will be held at the Farm Bureau hall, 622 North Main street, Santa Ana, at 7:30 p. m.

Besides election of officers for the ensuing year, final details of the Achievement Night program, which will be held at the Fremont school auditorium, Anaheim, on November 7, will be worked out. Other business will be reports of club activities by their leaders and a general discussion of the county-wide program for 1937.

DEAN CROMWELL SPEAKS AT J. C.

Dean Cromwell, noted University of Southern California athletic coach, was the featured speaker at the Santa Ana Junior college assembly held yesterday at 1:30 p. m. in the Willard Junior high school auditorium.

Cromwell spoke on the topic of the recent Olympic Games in Berlin. He attended the contests in the capacity of coach of sprints and pole vault for Olympic athletes. He is also well known as track coach at U. S. C.

Featured on the program with Cromwell were musical selections by the saxophone quintet which represented Orange county in the state-wide "talent tournament."

The musicians are Chuck Borland, Hank Rankin, Norman Noice, Stanley Lordson, and Dale Twigg. The assembly was conducted by Vic Rowland, president of the Associated Students, and was a regularly assembly of the college.

BEEKEEPERS OF ORANGE COUNTY GET MEET DATA

Announcement to over 300 beekeepers in Orange county has just been issued by the Farm Advisor's office that the annual meeting of the Southern California Bee men will be held Friday, November 6, at Washington Park, Pomona.

A large delegation of Orange county beekeepers will attend the meeting, according to H. J. Crawford, chairman of the Beekeepers department of the Orange County Farm Bureau.

Two Orange county men have been invited to appear on the program. W. Leroy Bell of Orange has for his subject "Will the Bee Business Show a Profit?" and Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg will present "New Developments in Agriculture of Interest to Beekeepers."

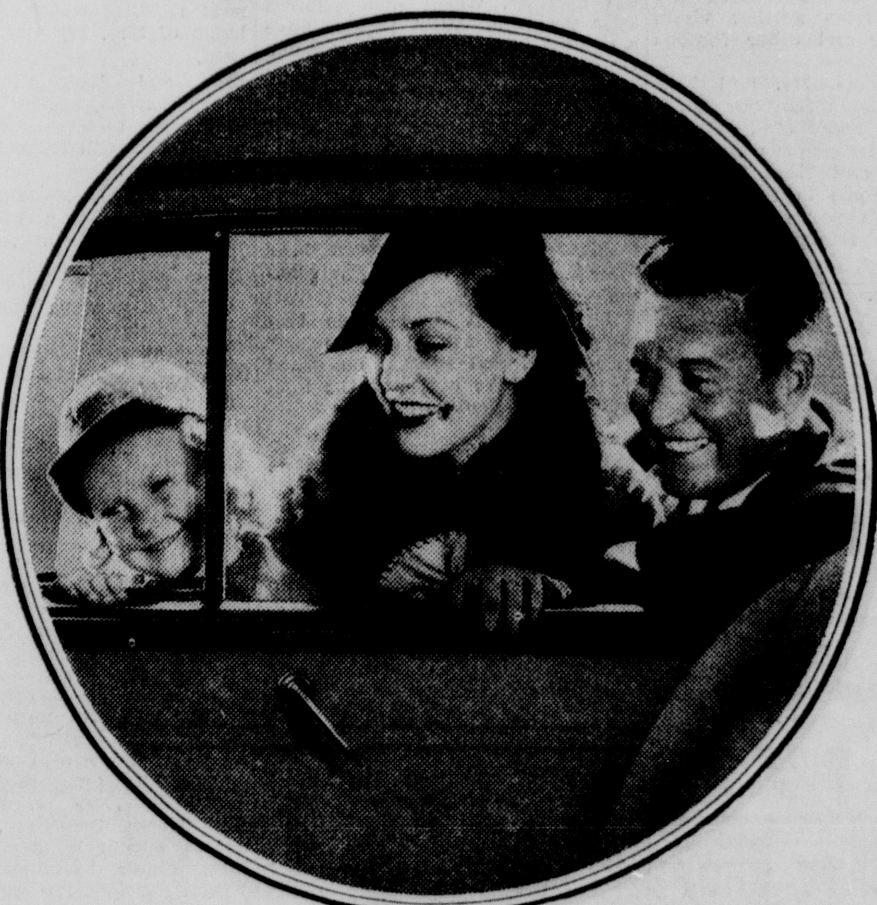

Other speakers announced on the program include the address of welcome by President Charles S. Kinzie of Arlington; "A Pessimist's Idea of the Future of Our Industry," by A. K. Whidden, president of the California State Beekeepers' association, Arlington; "Personal Experiences" by Frank R. Buchanan of Glendale; "The Queen is Controlled by the Nurse Bees," by R. Powell of Riverside; and "Improvement in Equipment to Reduce Cost," by George L. Emerson, Los Angeles.

All beekeepers are invited to attend, and bring their picnic lunches. Coffee will be served by Mrs. C. S. Kinzie, wife of the president of the association.

Canadian Honeymooners
In Southland

Mr. and Mrs. Emrys White Jr. are having some delightful guests in their Anaheim home, where a pair of young Canadian honeymooners are being entertained. They are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Keeler, of Woodstock, Ontario, Canada, and Mrs. Cole, the former Miss Marjorie Adams, was Mrs. White's closest girlhood friend.

Through a coincidence, the date of the Canadian wedding was Saturday, October 17, the same date that Mrs. White's sister, Miss Marjorie Keeler, of Pasadena, well known in this city, was wedded in Las Vegas, Nev. to Eugene Truman Olsen of Alhambra.

Since the junior Mr. and Mrs. Emrys White were wedded only in January (Mrs. White was Miss Doris Keeler) the three youthful couples are making the next week or so, one gala community honeymoon. Trips to Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Pasadena, and other Southland cities are programmed, and there are parties galore in the offing. Mrs. White and her bridegroom, Mrs. Cole, were school friends in Ingersoll, Canada, the former home of the Keeler family. Leonard Keeler is a family friend of long standing as well, so the reunion is a happy one for the young people.

The Emrys D. White home at 5115 North Broadway, is scene of many impromptu gatherings of the young people, and Mr. and Mrs. Emrys White Jr. are staging an autumn dance there Saturday evening in compliment to their guests, with Mrs. White assisting her son and daughter-in-law in all hospitable plans.

Royal Neighbors

Cornstubs, jack o'lanterns and other symbols of the season brightened M.W.A. hall Monday night for a party enjoyed by members of Magnolia camp R.N.A. Prizes in Halloween games went to Mrs. Mary Meyers and Mrs. Ruth Broderick. Coffee and doughnuts were served at the close of the evening.

On the general committee in charge of the event were Orville Mr. Herbert Birt, Maurice Birt, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and Mrs. A. C. Keck.

Announcement was made that district Royal Neighbors will meet tonight in Orange I.O.O.F. hall.

AUTUMN VACATION

Returning Saturday from a trip north, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Macurda, 1424 Spurgeon street, concluded an early autumn vacation which took them to such scenic spots as Oregon Caves, Portland, Ore., Vancouver and Victoria, B. C.

They enjoyed stopping in Seattle, Wash., with old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Louchridge, former Los Angeles high school classmates of the Macurdas. Mr. Macurda and Mr. Louchridge attended California Institute of Technology together, and the Seattle resident now is associate professor on the staff at University of Washington.

The Macurdas spent an enjoyable time in Bend, Ore., where they were privileged to make a tour of the well-known lumber mill. They traveled along the Columbia river highway, which proved to be somewhat of a disappointment in that the haze and fog prevented the Santa Anas from getting views of Mt. Rainier and other famous peaks.

Ba route home, Mr. and Mrs. Macurda visited in San Francisco, Mr. Macurda's home city. During their absence the couple's two children, Audrey and Neal Macurda, remained at home in the care of Mrs. Macurda's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. James of North Hollywood.

April Wedding
Party Guests

That Miss Luella Quandt had been Mrs. Robert Anderson since April, 1936, was the surprise announcement made to guests assembled recently for a shower in the home of Mrs. John H. Quandt in Tustin. Mrs. Quandt was joined by Mrs. Herman Kappmeyer, Mrs. Charles Van Skiver and Mrs. Herman Quandt of Orange in giving the party.

It was late in the evening that the romantic news was revealed to the group. A telegram delivered to Miss Ellen Peters gave the information that Mr. and Mrs. Robert Anderson were bridegroom and bride of April 4 in Yuma, Ariz.

The new Mrs. Anderson is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Quandt, 317 North Cleveland street, Orange, and was graduated from Orange Union High school last June. Her husband, who had his schooling in this city, is son of Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig B. Anderson, 718 North Bak street, and is in the contracting business with his father. The newly-married couple plan to live in Santa Ana.

Party Features
What had been planned as pre-nuptial became post-nuptial gifts in a very short time, and a spring bride received many interesting looking packages which were piled high in a wagon drawn by Duane Van Skiver and Charlene Mae Kappmeyer, dressed in yellow and white costumes.

The bridal gifts came as a climaxing feature of an evening spent in playing hearts. Prizes went to Mrs. August Werner, Mrs. R. W. Duker and Mrs. John Bush, who held first, second and low scores.

The four hostesses served a dessert course at small tables appointed with yellow wedding bell cups and centerpieces of yellow chrysanthemums.

In the group were Mesdames R. G. Quandt, G. W. Busch, R. W. Duker, Melvin Liemann, Carl Liemann Jr., William G. Kathe, H. C. Fitch and daughter, Esther; Henry Osterloh, C. A. Armstrong, William Nebrig and daughters, Helen and Fay; James Elliott, R. G. Friedmann, Fred Nebrig, George Pilsch, L. B. Anderson, Denver Braden, Walter Liemann, John Busch, Harold Hammel, Ruby Quandt and Miss Luella Quandt, Miss Viola Kathe, Miss Ellen Peters, Miss Marion Rodenburg, all of Orange and Santa Ana; Mrs. Otto L. Quandt and Mrs. Ray Busch of Anaheim; Mrs. Otto Quandt Jr., Lindsay, Calif.; Mrs. Louis Quandt of Los Angeles; with the new Mrs. Anderson, and the four hostesses, Mrs. John H. Quandt, Mrs. Herman Kappmeyer, Mrs. Charles Van Skiver and Mrs. Herman Quandt.

Eastern Star

Having just returned from grand chapter in Sacramento, Mrs. Flora Bruns, worthy matron of Santa Ana chapter, O.E.S., relinquished her station to her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Jernigan, Monday night for a meeting of the chapter in Masonic temple.

Mrs. Jernigan and Worthy Patron Carlisle Dennis presided over the meeting, which was followed by a program. WPA players gave a one-act comedy, "Standing Room Only," directed by Mr. Layton.

Mrs. Rose Smith, chairman of the refreshment committee, was assisted in serving by Mr. and Mrs. Ora Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pritchard, Mrs. Marie Peterman, Mrs. Della Maude Ryan and Glenn Lycan. Halloween decorations at the tables had been arranged by Mrs. Stella Whisenann.

Announcement was made that annual election of officers will take place, and reports on grand chapter will be given at the next meeting, November 8.

Mothers' Club

With some of the group working on a quilt, and others preparing carpet rags, members of Legion Mothers' club met Monday in Veterans hall for an all day event. Mrs. Fannie Reeves and Mrs. Edith Getty took charge of kitchen arrangements, while Mrs. Mabel Leach was dining room chairman for the covered-dish luncheon served at noon.

Present were Mesdames Susie Lamb, Fannie Reeves, Iona Sharp, Amy Stewart, Hattie Stowe, Lydia Robinson, Elma McKay, Cora Adams, Margaret Hill, Alma Kellogg, Edith Getty, Fannie Leach, Sarah Marvin and Mabel Leach. Mrs. Stewart, vice president, conducted a short business meeting during which plans were made for a special meeting to be held November 9 in the hall, where covered-dish luncheon will be served at noon.

Mrs. Stanley Norton and Mrs. Q. L. Hardy held first and second high scores in cards. Other members present were Mesdames William Jerome Jr., George Bradley, Woodrow Barnett, Joseph Irwin and Miss Charlene Lowell, with the hostess, Mrs. Harding.

AFTERNOON OF CARDS
Mrs. Bruce Harding entertained members of her bridge club Tuesday afternoon in her home on Tustin avenue, Halloween decorations were in evidence when dessert was served at small tables.

Mrs. Stanley Norton and Mrs. Q. L. Hardy held first and second high scores in cards. Other members present were Mesdames William Jerome Jr., George Bradley, Woodrow Barnett, Joseph Irwin and Miss Charlene Lowell, with the hostess, Mrs. Harding.

Wedding Takes Place
At Home Of Former Santa Anans

Gardens of the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Read of Santa Ana were setting Sunday, October 25, for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Lois Amelia Read and Merlin Reedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry M. Reedy of Marysville.

Announcement of the wedding was made this week to the many Santa Ana friends of Mr. and Mrs. Read and of their daughter, who attended high school and junior college in this city. Since her graduation from University of California at Berkeley in 1934, she has been employed on the tictetic staff of Stanford university hospital in San Francisco.

The bridegroom is a chemist for the Diamond Match company in Sterling City. He was graduated from University of California in 1935.

Wedding Rites
Relatives and close friends of the couple assembled for the garden wedding at which the Rev. A. E. Kelly of Santa Ana United Presbyterian church officiated.

"Musical numbers included the 'Waltz Song' from 'The Merry Widow' and 'I Love You Truly,' sung by Mrs. Maurice Henry. She was accompanied at the piano by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Perry Reedy, who also played Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride wore a white satin wedding gown fashioned princess style with short train, and a graceful veil held in place with a spray of flowers. She carried a bouquet of roses. Her sister, Mrs. Tallman, gave her away. Walter Ott of Hemet, as matron of honor, wore peach orange with brown velvet trimming and a rose corsage. Willis Jordan of La Jolla was best man.

Guests
Present for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Perry Reedy, Donald Rodney and Gerald Reedy of Marysville; Leland Yerkes, Reno, Nev.; and Mrs. G. M. Montgomery, Miss Barbara Montgomery, Lloyd Souders, Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Turner, Santa Barbara; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ott, Mr. and Mrs. William Pearce, Hemet; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Perry, Fruitvale; Willis Jordan and Miss Mary Wynne, La Jolla; the Rev. and Mrs. Kelly and Miss Maurine Harris, Santa Ana.

Mrs. Victor Montgomery, 1418 North Main street, who recently underwent an emergency operation at St. Joseph hospital, yesterday was removed to her home, where she is in the care of a special nurse. Her daughters, the Misses Gertrude and Louise Montgomery, today expressed satisfaction that she had stood the ordeal so well, and was back in her home surroundings, but pointed out that she is not yet able to receive her friends.

Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Marchant and Mrs. Effie M. Crawford, Tustin, visited Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Baldwin in Los Angeles yesterday. Mrs. Baldwin is seriously ill, it is reported.

For their latest meeting, members of the Women's Bible society were entertained in the home of Mrs. Dixie Weekly, 2053 West Eighth street, where covered dish luncheon was served. The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Ivy Olson, Newhope road.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bowen, Newport road, expect to leave tonight or tomorrow for Florida, where they will remain for an extended stay.

Mrs. R. H. McCalla and son, Bobbie, 423 South Flower street, were expected to return today from Santa Monica, where they spent the past week with Mr. McCalla's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. McCalla.

Mrs. Thornburn White and her little son, Jimmie, Red Hill avenue, Tustin, left today for a visit with Mrs. White's mother, Mrs. Earl Barr of San Diego. Mr. White will motor to San Diego Sunday to accompany his family home.

Clifford Chase of Fon du Lac, Wis., is making an extended visit in this city with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Kastorff, 1004 North Barton street.

Mrs. Roy Wise, 1127 West Seventeenth street, and Mrs. Dick Bird, 1129 West Seventeenth street, returned yesterday from a week's trip to San Francisco, where they visited friends and relatives. They also attended the races at Tanforan race track.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Reyer, 2324 North Broadway, entertained as guests Sunday, Mrs. Elmer Levenhagen of San Diego. Mrs. Reyer just returned from Denver, Colo., where she spent the past month with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Capelli.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McMahon, South Main street, have as a houseguest, Mrs. McMahon's sister, Miss Helen Ceselske of Milwaukee, who arrived Sunday for a several days' stay. Mrs. McMahon and her sister spent today in Laguna Beach, and at the San Juan Capistrano mission.

They have enjoyed trips to Long Beach and Palm Springs during the past two days.

Mrs. Bruce Harding entertained members of her bridge club Tuesday afternoon in her home on Tustin avenue, Halloween decorations were in evidence when dessert was served at small tables.

Mrs. Stanley Norton and Mrs. Q. L. Hardy held first and second high scores in cards. Other members present were Mesdames William Jerome Jr., George Bradley, Woodrow Barnett, Joseph Irwin and Miss Charlene Lowell, with the hostess, Mrs. Harding.

Church Societies
Queen Esther class of Orange avenue church had its Halloween party Friday night in the church bungalow, which was attractively decorated with chrysanthemums, favors, and place cards in the Halloween theme with candles as the only light.

The guests came in costume and prizes were given for the funniest and the fanciest. Miss Louise Haven and Maxine Ezelle took the honors. Games were enjoyed during the evening, and when it came time for refreshments to be served, the girls were led by candle light to the dining room where refreshments of sandwiches, pumpkin pie, apples, nuts, candy, and cocoa were served at a long table. At each place was a slip of paper which disclosed the bearer's fortune when passed over the flame of a candle.

Members present were the Misses Louise Haven, Barbara Vance, Jessie Mae Wiles, Vivian Haskell, Evelyn Wiles, Elsie Hoegstein, Mary White, Carolyn Beckman, Kathryn Grimes, Betty Earhart, Myra Jones, Maxine Ezelle, Alta Price, Anna de Groot, the teacher, Mrs. Eleanor Moore, and Mrs. Ada Nelson who assisted in serving.

Contract Players Dine
Informally Before
Bridge Session

That long established custom of an intimate little group of bridge enthusiasts, of dining at some favorite cafe or club in advance of an evening's contract play in some one of the various homes of members, was observed last night when Mr. and Mrs. M. Burr Wellington were hosts.

Three members of the group are absent, Emrys D. White, who is on a business trip to Montana, and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Chenoweth, who are in the East. But the remainder of the party formed a pleasant group at the Rossmore cafe for the dinner hour. Later they motored to Lemon Heights where Mrs. Wellington had her home in readiness, with tables prepared for contract play.

In the party with the Wellingtons were Mrs. Emrys White, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Spurgeon Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Carden.

Young People Enjoy
Hallowe'en Party

Ghosts and witches met the costumed guests of Miss Lowell Branson when she entertained recently in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Branson, 1213 South Parton street.

Guests were led to the backyard by a witch, up a ladder and through a bedroom window into the house, where they were met by a ghost with cold hands. They were escorted under a table by another ghost who hastened the merry young people on their way to the living room, which was gay with Halloween decorations.

Games were played, with prizes going to Miss Lois Banks and Miss Charman Carlson.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Pease and Mrs. Ida C. King assisted Mrs. Branson in serving a buffet supper, which was followed by dancing.

Luncheon Given As Benefit For Society

Mrs. Henry Schmidt was hostess yesterday afternoon in her home, 1321 South Van Ness avenue at a benefit luncheon and card party for the church altar society.

Mrs. Gus Callens and Mrs. Frank Sheelar assisted Mrs. Schmidt in serving luncheon at nine small tables decorated in Halloween colors.

Prizes in bridge were won by Mrs. Roland Langenbeck, high, and Mrs. Carl Palm of Anaheim, second; with honors in 500 went to Mrs. Antonio Osterkamp, high, and Mrs. Herbert Gloeckner, second.

During the luncheon, an Anaheim dress shop gave a style show featuring the new fall and winter styles.

Current Events Group Has Luncheon Meeting
Mesdames Charles Cogan, John Kettler and Wade Warner were hostesses at a luncheon meeting of Current Events section of Ebels society yesterday afternoon in the clubhouse. Miss Ethel Walker, Santa Ana librarian, reviewed several books on the Spanish situation, including "The Olive Field" by Ralph Bates, as a background.

Bridge was introduced later in the afternoon with prizes going to Mrs. George Osterman, high, and Mrs. Ernest Stump second, both receiving lovely Italian cut work luncheon sets.

BRIDGE LUNCHEON
Mrs. John Cannon was hostess to members of her contract bridge club yesterday afternoon, entertaining at a one o'clock luncheon in her home at 4161 Heliotrope drive. Mrs. Cannon was assisted in serving luncheon at small tables.

Prizes were won by Mrs. George Parker, Mrs. Charles Nussbaum, and Mrs. Don McDonald, who held high scores at their respective tables.

Family Reunion Staged
In Ganessa Park, Pomona

A family party of much intimate charm, planned as a complement to Washington visitors in the Southland, was staged Sunday when relatives gathered from various Southland communities for a family dinner in Ganessa park, Pomona.

Guests so pleasantly complimented were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dressel and their daughter, Mrs. Gretchen Rust, of Newport, Wash., who have been spending the past week with members of the family. They completed their visit Monday and left for the north.

The park party in Pomona was a particularly enjoyable event, partly due to the beautiful setting, and partly to the fact that it gave the Washington visitors an opportunity to meet many members of the family whom they might not have seen otherwise.

Motoring over from Santa Ana were Mr. and Mrs. David Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Catherina, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Plank, Mrs. Deane, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. White and Miss Jeanne Evans. Guests from Canoga Park included Theodore Meyer, eldest members of the family circle, accorded the honors due his 34 years, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Meyer, eldest member of the family, and Mrs. Newell. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Will Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stevens and children, Lorraine, Bonnie, Shirley, Darlene, Don, Dickie, and Patty, Pomona; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Doughty, Burbank; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Doughty and daughter, Shirley, North Hollywood; Mr. and Mrs. Otto Salk and Miss Emma Salk, Los Angeles, with Mr. and Mrs. Dressel and Mrs. Rust to complete the group.

Sharing the affair with Miss Lowell, Mrs. Lowell and Mrs. Dickson were the honorees, Miss Horton, and her mother, Mrs. J. C. Horton; Mesdames George Bradley, Don Plumb, William Jerome Jr., Joseph Irwin, Ernest Stump Jr., Q. L. Hardy, George Horton, Francis Horton, Chester Horton, Francis Horton, Kenneth Savage, Fay Horton and the Misses Loretta Spangler, Louise Rurup, Martha Wallingford, Margaret Guard, Betty Wisw II, Santa Ana; Mesdames Weldon Lambert, Allan Slater, Orville Schuchardt, Long Beach.

Many of the guests are Sigma Theta sorority sisters of Miss Horton and Miss Lowell. Miss Lowell herself has been incentive for various hospitalities in anticipation of her marriage to Britton Bowker November 7. Rehearsal for the Bowker-Wellow wedding will be an event of the weekend.

Announcements
Orange Avenue Christian church will hold a rummage sale in the Goodness building, 208 East Fourth street, Friday and Saturday, November 6 and 7. There will be a cooked food smoki, with pumpkin pies and candies as specialties. Mrs. Florence Krone, general chairman, will be assisted by Mesdames Hugh Gerrard, H. E. Switzer and E. L. Patton.

Native Daughters Thimble club will meet tomorrow for an all-day event in the home of Mrs. A. P. Dresser, 1523 French street. Covered dish luncheon will be served at noon.

Townsend club No. 3 will stage a benefit Halloween party Thursday evening in Townsend hall, 509 West Fourth street. Light supper will be served between the hours of 6 and 7:30 o'clock. Members of all Townsend clubs, and other guests are invited to attend. Messenger's orchestra will provide music for the occasion.

Episcopal Church of Messiah Women's auxiliary will meet Wednesday, November 4, at 11:30 a. m. in the church for holy communion. Covered dish luncheon at noon will be followed by a business meeting at 2 o'clock, and a program at 2:30 o'clock. T. H. Ward will give a talk on "English Cathedral." Mrs. S. W. H. Ward will call for thank offerings, which may be mailed to her at 632 North Broadway by members not planning to attend next week's meeting.

Speech Arts section of Ebels society will meet at the clubhouse tomorrow at 11:45 a. m. Mrs. Frank F. Mead and Mrs. Mark Lacy will be hostesses for the luncheon.

JUNIOR MUSIC CLUB
Mrs. Marie Stanton Eyerly was hostess for her Junior Music club yesterday afternoon in her home at 501 South Van Ness avenue, where a monthly meeting occurred.

Miss Marian Waffle presided over the business session and Miss Alice Arterburn assisted as secretary. During the study period, Mrs. Eyerly read an article on Walter Damosch, the conductor. She also gave a short talk on how music began, illustrating with pictures of ancient musical instruments. Group singing was enjoyed, and piano solos were given by Miss Patsy Williams, Ralph Tippen, and Miss Shirley Arterburn.

Miss Alice Arterburn won high scores in a musical game, and Miss Marian Waffle and Vernon Branson were given prizes for other games that were played.

Mrs. Eyerly asked her guests to find their places at a large table decorated in Halloween colors. Refreshments of chocolate, individual pumpkin pies with whipped cream, assorted cakes, and candy were served. There were Halloween favors for each guest.

Members present were Leda Leach, Alice Arterburn, Patsy Williams, Marian Waffle, Joann Winters, Maxine Waffle, Shirley Arterburn and Ralph Tippen, Vernon Branson and Junior Murphy.

Desert Motif Observed At Bridal Event

Miss Charlene Lowell paid a pretty compliment to one of her Sigma Theta sorority sisters, Miss Barbara Horton, last night at a desert bridge party in the home of the hostess' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lowell, 926 North Olive street.

Since Miss Horton and her fiancé, Hansell Coulson, expect to establish their home in Tucson, Ariz., shortly after their marriage in this city Thanksgiving day, last night's party hostess observed a desert motif in all decorative details.

Mrs. William Nelles had sent the lovely chrysanthemums used in decorating. Prickly pear and other desert plants centered tables at which guests found their places by means of place cards in cactus design. In serving dessert, Miss Lowell had assistance of her mother and sister, Mrs. Joe Lowell and Mrs. De Roy Dickson.

Presentation of crystal-shower gifts to Miss Horton came during a pleasant interval which preceded card play. Mexican figures adorned tables distributed for bridge games in which Mrs. Fay Horton scored high, receiving a group of pottery ash trays in a copper holder. Miss Martha Wallingford received a Mexican glass water jug for her second high score, and won an oxcart match holder as traveling award.

Sharing the affair with Miss Lowell, Mrs. Lowell and Mrs. Dickson were the honorees, Miss Horton, and her mother, Mrs. J. C. Horton; Mesdames George Bradley, Don Plumb, William Jerome Jr., Joseph Irwin, Ernest Stump Jr., Q. L. Hardy, George Horton, Francis Horton, Chester Horton, Francis Horton, Kenneth Savage, Fay Horton and the Misses Loretta Spangler, Louise Rurup, Martha Wallingford, Margaret Guard, Betty Wisw II, Santa Ana; Mesdames Weldon Lambert, Allan Slater, Orville Schuchardt, Long Beach.

Many of the guests are Sigma Theta sorority sisters of Miss Horton and Miss Lowell. Miss Lowell herself has been incentive for various hospitalities in anticipation of her marriage to Britton Bowker November 7. Rehearsal for the Bowker-Wellow wedding will be an event of the weekend.

Job's Daughters
Miss Dorothy Carlson, honored queen, presided over the business meeting of Job's Daughters last night in Masonic temple. It was announced that a carnival sponsored by Jobs Daughters and De Molay, will be in Santa Ana Nov. 2-8.

Plans were made to send Mrs. William Dean, guardian, to Grand Guardian Council convention in Pasadena Nov. 12

Nautical Theme Gives Charm to Party for Miss Wassum

Using a nautical theme for a party in compliment to Miss Elizabeth Wassum and her approaching marriage to Ernest H. Walth, the Misses Lois and Arden Murray gave a miscellaneous shower in their home on the Irvine ranch, Saturday.

Games introduced during the afternoon were in keeping with the theme, and prizes were won by Miss Betty Seeley, high, and Miss Virginia Taylor, low.

Mrs. O. A. Murray assisted her daughters in serving refreshments on individual trays, with the napkins through rings fashioned like life preservers, and tiny boat nut cups containing life saver candies.

Shower Gifts Were Hidden about the House, and as the guests described where they were, the honoree was required to find them.

Those asked to share the hospitality were the Misses Betty Seeley, Ruth Stutsman, Jane Hill, Virginia Taylor, Genevieve King, Wilma Potter, Frances Hanlon, Betty Seeley, the honoree and her mother, Mrs. Howard Wassum, the two hostesses and their mother, Mrs. Murray.

Boot and Spur Club Gives Benefit Party

Giving a benefit party to defray expenses for the club's entry in the Armistice Day Parade, Boot and Spur riding club members were hostesses to 100 guests recently at the Meadowlark country club.

Bridge was played, with prizes going to Mrs. Homer Derr, Santa Ana, high; A. H. Bradley, Santa Ana, second; Mrs. George L. Vance, Fullerton, low, in contract; Mrs. Elsie Siemsen, Santa Ana, high; Cedric Jones, Santa Ana, second; and Jim Getty, Santa Ana, low, in auction, with a door prize going to Mrs. Evelyn Darst of San Francisco. Prizes were presented by Mrs. Charles Frazer, business manager of the club.

Hostesses for the evening were Mesdames Delbert Lewis, Charles Frazer, Harold Mathews, Oscar Hammerstein, Jack Showers, Thomas Allen, Chad Dysart, Esther Rannels, John Ortiz, and the Misses Lillie Forsberg, Delphine Lopez, Alyce Majors, Marie La Brucherie, Nellie Hershey, Mildred Vieser, and Edna Laughlin who told fortunes during the evening.

Miss Pennock Wins Club Prize for Riding

Miss Georgie Gail Pennock is the proud possessor of a silver loving cup which she received Monday night as winner in a riding contest conducted as a feature of a weekly meeting of Boot and Spur Riding club at the Meadowlark.

Places of Hollywood was judge, declaring Miss Pennock to be the best rider in the group, and Miss Delphine Lopez, second. The contest was so enjoyable that members decided to hold similar events every three months.

Jaysee Staff Members See Scripps Gallery With Miss Egge

That recently completed and very beautiful new art building at Scripps college was Mecca yesterday afternoon for Miss Frances Egge and a little group of friends she was privileged to entertain there at a tea in connection with the opening of an exhibition of historic and contemporary prints.

Miss Egge, through her position with the art department of Santa Ana junior college, is always informed of unusual exhibitions at the college galleries, and has formed frequent little parties there, taking some of the pupils of her art classes from time to time. Yesterday she extended her invitation to faculty members, including Miss Lucinda Griffith, also of the art department; Miss Lillian Dickinson, college librarian, and the Misses Genevieve Humiston and Dorothy Decker, because of their keen interest in prints.

Millard Sheets, head of the Scripps college art department, had arranged with Edwin Farnum of the Hollywood Print Rooms, to present the remarkable display. Prints on view range from the pre-Durer period to the present day. One room has been set aside for a collection of 17 wood engravings of the Apocalypse by Dürer. Another has aquatints and lithographs. In another are woodcuts by Rockwell Kent, Gordon Craig, Bellows, Rivera, Orozco, and some by Millard Sheets himself. In one room are to be found some remarkably fine Japanese prints, more than two dozen in number. Etchings represent such masters as Rembrandt, Corot, Hatin and others.

Grill Supper Precedes Program At Church

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hoff opened their home at 1331 South Parton street Sunday evening to a group of students from Pacific Bible Seminary in Long Beach. A grill supper served at 4:30 o'clock in the gardens of the home was followed by an indoor session during which group singing was enjoyed. Loren Hemphill was at the piano.

Later in the evening the group went to South Santa Ana Church of Christ, 3060 South Main street, to take charge of evening services. Harvey Beard was guest speaker and Miss Donella Carson sang a solo "Ivory Palaces." Scripture lesson was read by Charles Fogliasso, and Miss Margaret Davidson led community singing, with Miss Helen Stanton at the piano.

Those present from the seminary were Misses Dorothy Smith, Louise Conklin, Dorothy Williams, Mary Jane Williams, Donella Carson, Margaret Davidson, Helen Stanton, Lenora Kettering, Verna Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Mills, and Miss Hazel Kirk, dean of women at the seminary; and Messrs. Peter Beard (Charles Fogliasso), Joe Conklin, Harvey Beard, Richard Miller, Louis Alan White, pastor of the church, is a senior at the seminary. Guests of the Santa Ana group were Misses Alice Whitten, Mary Pafford, Vivian Switzer, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Hemphill of Gardena, and Keith Lee.

Well Known Resident Of County Has 91st Anniversary

Mrs. Katie S. Hendricks, one of the beloved pioneer members of the community, celebrated her 91st birthday anniversary Sunday when she received congratulations from a host of interested friends throughout the Southland.

Since Mrs. Hendricks has been in ill health for several months, the observance was a very quiet one. Close friends called at the Shanklin apartment house where Mrs. Hendricks makes her home. Other friends expressed their good wishes through cards and bouquets of flowers.

Mrs. Hendricks, who was born in Belleville, Ill., October 25, 1845, has been a resident of Garden Grove for more than 18 years. She is a member of Royal Neighbors of America No. 4133, of Sedgwick W. R. C. and its Pioneer club, and of other prominent groups.

Her intimate family group includes her sister, Miss Mary L. Miller of Garden Grove and a daughter, Mrs. Edward Thurnauer of Santa Ana.

Supper Dance Features Club's Weekly Meeting

Wrycende Maegdenu club's weekly meeting last night in the Y.W.C.A. rooms was given over to a party which was in the nature of a supper dance in an attractive Bohemian setting. Four-some tables appointed in orange and black and centered with tapeline the walls.

Miss Carolyn Cushing was general chairman of the event, assisted by Miss Virginia Anthony as decorations chairman, and Miss Helen Glancy, program. Miss Glancy was at the piano for part of the supper hour, with Miss Irma Baxter playing for the remainder of the time.

Monopoly was played. Clever little potted cactus gardens rewarded Miss Rose Ethel Lesh, Miss Katherine Spicer and Miss Rosamond Hannah for their high scores at each of three tables.

Moav Pledges

— LET'S GO BUY-BUY —
With Betty Ann

This winter will see suits with jackets of all lengths, though probably the majority will be short. Some of them are rather boxy, but others are fitted, at least in front, and come just to the hips. Others are long, perhaps fitted at the waistline and then very flared in tunic fashion to below the knees. Still others are swaggy coats with matching skirts. The short suits frequently use fabric contrast, putting a bright jacket with a dark skirt, or a checked or plaid jacket with a plain skirt.

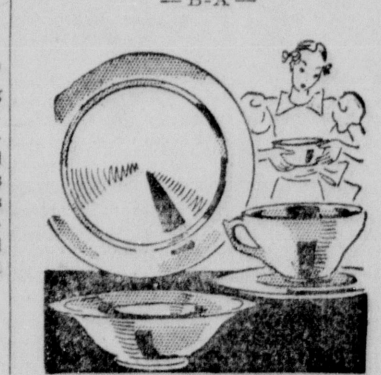

If you would be in the swing of fashion this fall, wear a dress with broad shoulders, a slim waistline, and a skirt that flares widely at the hemline—14 inches off the ground—making your legs look slender. As for materials, velvet and nubby are high fashion. Black is a first for color, closely followed by wine shades and the new spruce green.

GO NATIVE, 101 Highway at Manchester Blvd. The charm of unusual things is the magnet that is drawing shoppers to GO NATIVE, a shop featuring new and different hand-crafts from Mexico. Hand-made bubble glass, colorful baskets, art gifts of distinction, typical Mexican leather and modern rattan patio furniture. You'll love these imports and the prices will please you.

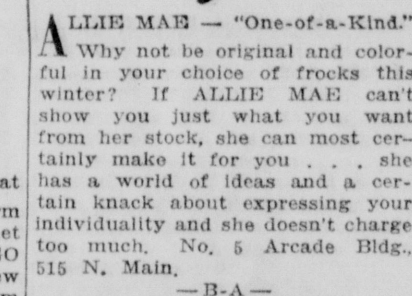

THE BOUQUET SHOP, 409 North Broadway. For your Halloween party or the best girl's corsage you will find the loveliest flowers in town at THE BOUQUET SHOP. Perhaps you can think of someone who won't be able to enjoy the festivities but who would thrill at a bouquet . . . such nice colors, too . . . fallish shades that fit right into the holiday color scheme.

TO go right to your head are the tricky cocktail hats being shown at the EL MARIE shop . . . just the kind you've been waiting for. And, of course, you will want one of their dashing sports felt in a new bright shade. This clever shop does perfectly "topping" things for brides and bridal parties. EL MARIE SHOP, 21 Arcade Bldg., 515 North Main.

PACIFIC POTTERY YARD, North Main at 29th. It's table time during the holidays and the smart hostess will brighten her table with pottery from this unusual shop. They were so sorry to disappoint you shoppers who were unable to purchase one of the popular bride's sets because of the great demand for them . . . but here's good news! Their stock is again complete . . . so come in and make your own choice of colors in this sparkling 20-piece PACIFIC POTTERY set for only $4.95 . . . but you'd better hurry!

ALLIE MAE — "One-of-a-Kind" Why not be original and colorful in your choice of frocks this winter? If ALLIE MAE can't show you just what you want from her stock, she can most certainly make it for you . . . she has a world of ideas and a certain knack about expressing your individuality and she doesn't charge too much. No. 5 Arcade Bldg., 515 N. Main.

THE SANTA ANA LINEN SHOP. 114 East Fourth. Here's just the spot for you shower-gift seekers . . . the most adorable infant things we've seen any place . . . a brand new stock of hand-embroidered dresses, robes and shoulderettes in sets complete with booties . . . dainty hand-knitted rompers . . . soft zippered bunnings with separate hoods . . . Oh, we could go on and on but you must see them. Of course, their complete line of linen will fill any personal or household need you may have . . . and at such inviting prices!

ALBERT'S HAIR CUTTING PARLOR, Moore Bldg. A complete new personality can be achieved by a flattering new coiffure. ALBERT understands every subtle detail about the art of cutting hair . . . he knows just who should wear bangs and who should have a sleek off-the-face lines. Let ALBERT help you decide upon the correct "headline" fashion for your particular type.

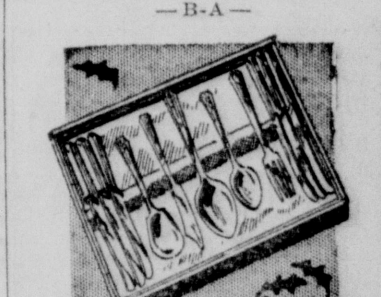

HOME CAFE, 304 N. Broadway. Take the family out to dinner on Saturday evening. THE HOME CAFE specializes in "meals served family style." And the price is only 60c. Why not give yourself a treat, and the family, too, by taking them to this popular cafe? It will be money in your pocket by eating there.

A NEW EVENING FROCK for the Halloween parties, helps to make an "event". We are showing a line of inexpensive party gowns that are new and effective and they will carry you through the party season with your head high and your chin up because you will know they are most becoming. La Grace Shop, 413 North Sycamore, Maude Goff Willsey, manager.

FRIEND - CHRISTY ELECTRIC CO., 223 North Broadway. For the dark days ahead, let us tell you about the brilliant array of personally selected floor and table lamps and lamp shades to be found at the FRIEND-CHRISTY CO. . . a widely varied selection . . . from 18th century types to smart moderns . . . many in white and each a compliment to your home.

PREBLE'S, 105 West Third Street. Many brides are purchasing their sterling at this shop . . . aye, and for a thrifty reason! For the price of plated ware you may own sterling . . . Go in and decide on your pattern from Mr. Preble's partial and complete sets. He also has fill-ins for practically every well-known pattern . . . all way below usual cost.

STANLEY'S HIGH-GRADE SHOE REPAIRING, 417 1/2 N. Broadway, opposite Broadway theater. Don't be a peacock—let your feet be as gay as your "fine feathers" and as carefree as your spirits on these crisp fall days. Whether it's heel-caps, toe-caps, half-soles or just that the good old shoes "always were too tight", Stanley himself will guarantee a job so satisfactory that you won't even want a new pair of shoes.

Madigan Won't Quit Gaels—Unless!

Buzzing to a Touchdown

Marquette University's best bet for All-America honors this year is Capt. Ray Buivid, a triple-threat back who is one of the nation's greatest passers. Here is the elusive Buivid swinging his shippy hips in action. The Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's will find this fellow a tough one to stop when they tangle with Marquette's Golden Avalanche in Chicago, Friday.

ILL FEELING AT BERLIN DENIED

Blaming American newspaper correspondents for "coloring" their stories of alleged outbursts against United States and other winning athletes by German spectators, Coach Dean Cromwell of the University of Southern California denied there was international ill feeling shown at the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin in addressing an assembly of Santa Ana junior collegians yesterday.

Cromwell was one of the U. S. coaches. The only other controversial point Cromwell touched was the Jesse Owens case. "It looks like the A.A.U. is using its power for its own benefit rather than for the American athlete," he said in discussing Owens' disbarment for refusing to run in various European cities after the Olympics. "Athletes and officials of our team were shown the utmost courtesy and consideration at Berlin," said Cromwell. "Reports to the contrary were largely exaggerated."

BAER GETS $22,500 TO BOX IN ENGLAND

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Anell Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, today confirmed reports that Baer would meet the winner of the Walter Neusel-Ben Ford bout to be held in London next month.

Revealing the contract had been signed a week ago, Hoffman said the match would be held in London in February. Baer will receive $22,500.

"We will leave Sacramento immediately after the Christmas holidays," Hoffman said. "After the London trip, if everything goes right, Max will be ready to take on Louis, Braddock, Schmeling or any of them."

WILLARD DEFEATED BY HARBOR ELEVEN

Coach Arnold Lund demanded better blocking from his Franches Willard junior high school football squad today after watching the North Ross street Indians drop a 20-6 decision to Newport Harbor's eleven yesterday. It was Willard's first setback this year.

The lineup:
Newport Harbor (20) (6) Willard
Honde, L.E. Casares
Sheffield, L.T. Liebermann
Crowley, L.G. Wooster
Furness, L.T. Wright

DAN BULGER'S WIN ENRICHES MANY IN U. S.

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 28.—(UP)—The Cambridge-shire, on the result of which small fortunes go to lucky Americans, was won today by Sir Abe Bailey's Dan Bulger. Sir George Bullock's Daytons was second, M. Benson's Laureate II, third.

Dan Bulger was heavily backed in the betting at 7 to 1. Daytons was 33 to 1 and Laureate II 100 to 6.

Dan Bulger won by two lengths. Daytons was a short head in front of Laureate II in the field of 22.

AMERICANS WIN $4,274,265

DUBLIN, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Americans won approximately $4,274,265, or more than half of the prize money in the Irish hospital sweeps on today's Cambridge race, because they held 9 tickets on Dan Bulger, the winner, 10 on Daytons, which placed, and 9 on Laureate II, which came in third.

The sweeps drew total receipts of $13,531,455, of which $8,044,825 was paid out in prizes.

Americans held 28 tickets on the first three horses, paying a total of approximately $2,550,000.

GIRL'S WINNINGS MAKES MARRIAGE POSSIBLE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—(UP)—A $500 ticket on a third place horse in the Cambridge race means wedding bells for Marjorie Wood.

"Oh boy, I could kiss you," she exclaimed to a willing reporter who informed her that Laureate II had finished third in today's race. Miss Wood had a ticket on the horse under the name of "Norme."

She said she and her fiancé, Norbert Jensen, had bought the ticket together and would be married "now, that we're financially able."

The girl works in an ice cream plant.

TWO UNEMPLOYED S. F. MEN SHARE $150,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Two San Francisco men, both of whom have been out of work a long time, were enriched by $150,000 today because they held a ticket on Dan Bulger, winner of the Cambridge-shire stakes horse race.

Nick Darras, former grocer who has been working at a WPA pick and shovel job for 51 cents an hour, and Joseph Butler, father of two children, were the lucky ones.

Darras, when informed last week he held one of the lucky tickets that had a chance at the $150,000 prize, said he and Butler had been offered $10,000 for a half interest in the ticket, but decided to hold out on the chance of getting the big prize.

A third San Franciscan, Lawrence Compagno, part owner of the General Poultry company, won $75,000 with his ticket on Dayton.

U. S. COLLECTS $1,500,000 FROM WINNERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(UP)—The U. S. government will benefit to the extent of approximately $1,500,000 from the $4,274,265 won today by American holders of tickets in the Irish hospital sweeps.

Each first prize winner of $150,000 will have to pay about $64,000 if he is single and has no dependents. That is more than a third of his winnings. Each second prize winner of approximately $75,000 will be taxed $19,000 while the third-place winners will pay about $9,000.

GOPHERS STILL 'BEAUTIFUL'

But Dumbness Disappeared When Bierman Arrived

BY STEVE SNIDER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—From out of the Northland Saturday came the Minnesota Gophers with a challenge for another National championship and a firm belief that Bernie Bierman is the secret of their power.

Minnesota took its share of defeats until Bierman established his system.

He may be no super-coach, nor yet the nation's finest, but whatever his system, it has harmonized with the temperament of players and produced a three-year dominance for Minnesota teams.

When seven great stars of the 1935 squad were graduated, a cry was sounded that Minnesota's reign would end in 1936. Without these seven, the Gophers have whipped Washington, a power in the West; Nebraska, king of the Big Six; Michigan, and high-scoring Purdue.

Cardinal points aiding Bierman's success:

1. Minnesota draws its talent from virgin territory. Major rival schools are few and far between.
2. Reorganized athletic set-up in state high schools now sends trained athletes to the university.
3. Twin cities population of

MAC TO INTERVIEW 'KILLER'

What Manner Of Man Or Beast Is This Balsamo?

BY HENRY McLEMORE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—If you are a close follower of prizefighting—and most of us are, if only because of its tremendous importance in world affairs—you undoubtedly have read of Harry Balsamo, who is known to his intimates in the profession as "The Belting Brakeman," "Slambango Balsamo," and simply "Balsamo the Bloodthirsty."

Harry Balsamo, a young man with the slanting beetle brow so often found in intellectuals and good right-hand hitters, was projected into world attention recently when he put what is known as the "slug" on one of Germany's more prominent citizens, Herr Eric Seelig. The "slug" was put on Herr Seelig in the first round of a bout in which he was favored, and stiffened him horizontally in a great hurry.

The boxing critics, to whom a lethal right hand "slug" is every bit as satisfying as a rare old first edition is to a bibliophile, immediately

The "slug" was put on Herr Seelig in the first round of a bout in which he was favored, and stiffened him horizontally in a great hurry.

But as I say Balsamo fights these tonight, and if Promoter Jacobs will promise to keep him chained I plan to descend to the dressing room and watch him warp the wallpaper with his pre-battle venom. In tomorrow's installment—and don't miss it—I will paint a word picture of a killer before and after killing.

BLACKETER TIED IN TOUCHDOWN PARADE

Archie Blacketer, of Laguna Beach, and Jimmy Oliveras of Anaheim, lead the Orange league in individual scoring after two conference football games. Each player has made two touchdowns.

STEEL-LESNEVITCH CONTEST IN MAKING

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Suey Welsh, manager of Gus Lesnevitch, said today negotiations "are about closed" for Lesnevitch to fight Middleweight Champion Freddie Steele of Tacoma at the Olympic auditorium here Nov. 17.

"The only hitch is over Steele's title," he said. "We want to make it a title bout, but Steele wants to fight over the weight."

Lewis' Eye Cut In Training But Title Fight 'On'

Although Lewis was forced to suspend training temporarily, the injury will not interfere with his scheduled title fight with Len Harvey Nov. 8.

BUCKS SEEK BERGER

It is reported that "Big" Traynor, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is ready to pay anything in reason for Wally Berger, hard-hitting outfielder of the Boston Bees. While Traynor has the Waners and Jensen in the garden, he isn't satisfied with anyone but Paul Waner, top hitter of the National league this season.

'SLIP' INSISTS ON REMAINING IN AUTHORITY

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Edward P. (Slip) Madigan, football coach at St. Mary's college, isn't worried about foreclosure proceedings threatened against the school, "unless the bankers try to run the athletic department."

Madigan, here to send his team against Marquette Friday night, said today he would not resign so long as he remains in authority.

A committee of five San Francisco investment bankers representing first mortgage bondholders threatened foreclosure proceedings late yesterday. The committee said the college had made no interest payments on $1,370,500 in bonds in the past two and one-half years.

Prosperous Year Expected Although the St. Mary's football team has not been making money in recent years, a recent survey indicated the team would bring in a large amount of cash this season.

The stately white stucco campus buildings, built in a picturesque valley among the Moraga hills east of Oakland, during a period of rising football prosperity, which still exists, cost more than the college later could afford to pay, O. D. Hamlin, the school's attorney, said in Oakland.

Hamlin declared the school will continue to operate while it negotiates with the bondholders "in an effort to work out a satisfactory method to meet the payments."

Grid Receipts Build School The school was built largely with receipts earned by St. Mary's football teams, colorful grid troupes which for several years have been playing in fast company, making intersectional forays into the east and performing before large crowds.

Almost single-handedly, "Slip" Madigan brought the school from a one-building parochial institution in Oakland to a position of gridiron pre-eminence, which in turn produced financial backing for an expansion program.

The school's athletic income, consisting principally of football box office receipts, was $140,680 for the period ending last June 30, or 37 per cent of total income.

PRELIMINARY BOYS POST FORFEIT FEES

Promoter Bob Singleton today announced the seven "guaranteed" preliminary matches that support tomorrow night's Lupe LeMon-Jimmy Dime heavyweight main event at the Orange County Athletic club.

Singleton is making all his boxers post a forfeit fee as evidence of their good faith, that they'll show up.

Ray Vargas of Atwood and Jimmy Johnson, Los Angeles Negro, hook up in the semi-final. They are the same welterweights who battled three weeks ago with Johnson, then unknown, giving the Mexican a shellacking. Johnson is a sharpshooter who beat Vargas by straight punching, always getting inside the Atwood larper's shots.

Raoul Folia of Santa Ana and Al Grayson of Los Angeles collide in the special event at 138.

Maxie Moore, Orange football player, appears in the feature preliminary. Moore's opposition is "Frenchy" Bouton, clever 138-pounder.

DONS RAGGED; COOK SUSPECTS LETDOWN

A sliphop attitude has hit Santa Ana Jaycee's camp the past few days and it has the coaching staff—Bill Cook and Blanchard Beatty—worried today lest it hinder the Dons' chances Friday night when the Dons tangle with Norman Duncan's U. C. L. A. freshmen footballers at the Municipal Bowl.

Cook turned the team loose at an early hour yesterday and ordered light workouts with the hope of reducing a growing injury list which includes Bill Greeshner, bruised knee; Bob Holmes, infected shin bone; Al Tittens, bad ankle; Roy Waer, bad cut over eye; and Joe Herbert, bruised foot. Carl Bonad, Don guard, is also out with a bad cold.

Ray Sides, diminutive stick of dynamite, was the least bothered by the apparent let-down, romping at will through any line that Cook used on defense. One 60-yard run through a broken field was as fine a piece of ball-carrying as has been seen on the Don practice field this year.

Oranges for Gators The University of Florida grid-ders are served a refreshment between halves of their games. What is it? Orange juice, of course.

CARDS AWAIT BIDS ON 'DIZ'

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Officials of the St. Louis Cardinals today launched a still hunt to find a National league club which has enough cash or good trading material—and enough competitive threat—to buy their star hurler, Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean.

Vice-President Branch Rickey's announcement that Dean was for sale was softened by the qualification that the Cards would make no special effort to dispose of the ace.

"We aren't trying to get rid of Dean," Rickey said, "but we aren't running away from an opportunity to strengthen the club."

Dean, wintering at Bradenton, Fla., was non-committal.

"I don't care who I pitch for as long as I get my money," he said. He was "put out," however, when informed of Rickey's statement that Dean "wasn't the one-man pennant winner he's supposed to be."

Know could he expect me to win a pennant single-handed," Dean fumed.

Rickey intimated he would not favor a deal which would send Diz to a club likely to be a rival of the Cardinals for the pennant.

"That's a laugh," Dean said. "I'm sold to a second division club and the Cards don't get a load of material for me in exchange, you can bet the Cards will be down in the second division too."

Possible reason for the Cards' decision to place Dean on the block, was their acquisition of Pitcher Lon Warneke, obtained from the Chicago Cubs. Warneke signed his 1937 contract Monday.

The promoter also announced that he had signed "Tarzan" Zim who probably would land Kimura Kudo, clever Japanese star and jiu-jitsu champion, as Zima's opponent. If the match is made they will wrestle the semi-final Monday night.

Riverside Back Maintains Lead In J. C. Scoring

Howard Mueda, Riverside quarterback, managed to hold his lead in Eastern Jaycee conference scoring although his team did not have a league game last week. John Casey of Pomona held second place with a touchdown in Chaffey-Pomona contest and Bill Greeshner of Santa Ana stayed in third place by scoring once against San Bernardino. Several other Dons entered the scoring column for the first time last Friday, notably Halfback Mac Beall who made two touchdowns.

NEW NASH CARS ANNOUNCED BY DEALER IN S. A.

Bigger and roomier and redesigned to the public taste in streamlined beauty, three new series of Nash LaFayette automobiles were announced today for 1937 by R. W. Townsend of Townsend Motors. The three series announced by him are:

The Nash Ambassador eight, aristocratic leader of the Nash line, built on a 125 inch wheelbase, powered by Nash eight cylinder, valve-in-head, twin ignition motor which develops 105 horsepower, and fitted with luxurious appointments. Base price of this series is only $855.

The Nash Ambassador six, generously designed on a 121-inch wheelbase, equipped with the Nash six cylinder, valve-in-head, 95 horsepower, twin ignition engine, and, like its companion Ambassador, a quality built car. This series has a base price of $755.

The Nash LaFayette "400" with 117 inch wheelbase, 90 horsepower Monitor-Sealed motor, a lightness and roominess rare in automobiles of the lowest price field, and appointments in keeping with the high Nash standard. Base price is $595.

Although all of the 1937 Nash offerings are readily recognized as members of the Nash family, each has distinguishing characteristics.

The Nash Ambassador elatoinHU the Nash Ambassador Six are identical in many respects. Radiator ornaments and treatment of headlamps, however, give different front end appearance, while treatment in decoration of the trunk in the rear also makes for ease of identification.

Upholstery trim of the Ambassadors is another point of variance. The Nash LaFayette "400" is easily recognized because the bars of its die-cast radiator grills run horizontally instead of vertically, as on the two Ambassador series.

General design improvements on all three lines are many, and bring a new and smart styling to the automotive field. Each of the new 1937 Nash series has been designed to conform to accepted streamlining principles.

Buick Adds New Body Style for 1937 In Plain-Back Straight Eight Sedan

ONE OF SIX new body styles has been added to Buick's lines for 1937 in this plain-back Series 40 Special five passenger, four door sedan. It has a 100-horsepower, valve-in-head, straight eight engine and is built on a 122-inch wheelbase chassis. Jumbo size luggage space is provided in the tail of this smart new model. It is one of the lower priced cars of the four Buick 1937 lines.

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Oct. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stoves observed their 45th wedding anniversary as dinner guests of their daughter, Mrs. Opal Price at Orange.

John Cochran, son, Jim, and daughter, Mabel, left Sunday for Arizona where they will pick cotton.

Mrs. Maude Michl of Los Angeles was calling on Westminster friends one day.

Upper classes of Westminster school had a session of community singing Friday afternoon at the regular weekly assembly hour.

Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Walker who have occupied the new stucco residence belonging to Mr. Burke, just west of the telephone office, have moved to Midway City where they took a house at 312 North Jackson street.

Soviet Seeks Famed Stallion

LONDON, (U. P.)—The Soviet government has made an unsuccessful attempt to buy the stallion Solario, winner of the St. Leger, Coronation Cup and Ascot Gold Cup. It is revealed. The price offered was not high enough.

Mining Students Wanted

QUEBEC, Que. (U. P.)—The Quebec Government has awarded 30 mining scholarships to the province's colleges in an effort to arouse the interest of students in the mining industry. The scholarships are valued at from $500 to $650.

Smart New Studebaker Coupe for 1937

Studebaker justifies its slogan "spotlight car of 1937" by pointing to the style lines of its new 3 passenger Dictator coupe as an example. Studebaker claims there is more usable luggage space in this model than in any car built—25½ cubic feet in the rear deck of the custom models. In addition there is a wide, deep shelf above the seat and a spacious storage compartment behind the driver's seat. Visibility through the rear window has also been improved, an important safety contribution.

SEA SCOUT EXPEDITION IS LAUDED IN LETTER BY BOY

While they are anxious to return to "civilization" and greet members of their families and friends, Sea Scouts who are now aboard Fred E. Lewis' yacht "The Stranger" will be sorry to end their tour of the South Seas.

This reluctance to bring to an end their summer cruise, appreciation for the opportunities offered through scouting and the educational advantages offered through the trip was expressed in a letter from Johnny McBride, one of the Santa Ana boys in the expedition, received by Harrison White, Boy Scout executive for Orange county.

The letter, dated October 7, was written when the yacht reached Honolulu from the Marquesas. McBride's letter in part follows: "Arrived here yesterday morning about 9 o'clock. We experienced wonderful weather during our passage from the Marquesas, except that it was a little warm at times. Everyone seems glad to get back to 'civilization' again. Our only regret is that we must put shoes and long pants on again so as not to look conspicuous."

"The Marquesas were found to be most interesting, especially the topography of the land and the stone work of the natives. The last island of the group was as barren as any place to be found on the desert. This island was over run with wild sheep and an occasional wild boar. Also, this island was the spot where the most of the stone adzes were made during the time of the Marquesans. The fellows had an interesting time looking for unfinished adzes among the many chip piles found."

The last day there the captain turned the whole bunch loose on the island and let them take a long hike. It was certainly enjoyed by all.

"I understand we are going to spend a few days at Kona Coast on the island of Hawaii before coming home. That, from what I hear, is a very interesting place and so we should have a good time. I guess the captain wants to add to the collection of fish he already has."

"So far, this trip has been an eventful one for me in many ways. I think it is the opportunity of a life-time for me and the other fellows. It is a good example of the opportunities offered by scouting. I have a lot more to say, but I will keep that until I can again see you."

Sorority Holds Fullerton Meet

LA HABRA, Oct. 28.—Ethel Barris of Fullerton was hostess Monday evening to the members of the Beta Chi sorority. The Halloween motif was carried out and the evening was spent playing bridge. Prizes were awarded to Martha Middleton, first; Esther Orcutt, second and out prize by Marguerite Williams.

Attending were Ethel Sanford, Ruth McNeas, Esther Orcutt, and Margaret Davies of Whittier; Mabel Snyder, Virginia Jewett, Julia Hrigoyen and Mildred Kohler of Fullerton; Marguerite Williams, Geneva Spray and Martha Middleton of La Habra.

NEW BUICK IS GENERAL TIRES' SETTING MARK SAFETY FACTOR IN POPULARITY

In providing the 1937 successors to the 1936 Buick, leader in the percentage of sales gains, the Buick engineering and styling forces have produced four series of models that will further advance Buick's popularity. This is the enthusiastic impression at the Buick showroom of Reid Motor company, following the formal presentation of the new cars last Saturday.

The immediate appeal of the new 1937 Buick with its increased performance, economy and striking style changes, is nation wide according to telegrams from the Buick factory which reports one of the biggest buying responses in the history of the General Motors unit.

Preparing for such a rush, increased factory production is gaining full momentum which means increase in frequency and size of shipments to Southern California. By November 10, it is estimated, Buick will have produced as many new cars as at the corresponding period of last year when production began a month earlier. In addition production at the new Los Angeles plant of General Motors will be a factor in supplying this market. Meantime, deliveries are being made in rotation of purchases.

Powered by two sizes of valve-in-head, straight - eight engines which incorporate the experience of 33 years and the manufacture of more than 3,000,000 motors of this type, Buick's models for 1937 are increased to 21 in ten color options. Here is a quick summary:

SERIES 40 SPECIAL—122-inch wheelbase, an increase of four inches. Horsepower advanced to 100. Eight models, including two new sedans and a convertible phaeton. Accelerates 10 to 60 miles per hour in 18.5 seconds.

SERIES 60 CENTURY—126-inch wheelbase, also increased four inches. Horsepower stepped up to 130. Six models, including two new sedans. Accelerates 10 to 60 miles per hour in 18.5 seconds.

SERIES 80 ROADMASTER—131-inch wheelbase, 130 horsepower. Three models, accelerates 10 to 60 miles per hour in 20 seconds.

SERIES 90 LIMITED—138-inch wheelbase, 130 horsepower. Four models, including new formal, six-passenger sedan. Accelerates 10 to 60 miles per hour in 20.7 seconds.

Cordelia, Ga., has a replica of an apple made of steel and concrete, 22 feet in circumference, as a monument in its public square. The "apple" weighs 5000 pounds and is mounted on a base 8 feet high.

NEWS FROM ORANGE COUNTY COMMUNITIES

Spooks, Goblins, To Take Over Anaheim Tomorrow

CITY PREPARES TO GREET HUGE CROWD AT FETE

ANAHEIM, Oct. 28.—Spooks, witches, jack-o'-lanterns and sheriffs from Pumpkin Hollow will take over tomorrow and Friday night, in what promises to be Anaheim's most spectacular Halloween celebration. Plans have been made to entertain a crowd of 50,000 visitors at the parade Friday night, which will mark the high spot of the two-day carnival.

ANAHEIM residents will be in costume the two days of the festival. There will be music and excitement on the streets at all times. Tomorrow's events, while open to everyone, are planned with the idea of making them "Anaheim's day" while Friday's events are offered as a gesture of the community to thousands of visitors from other towns.

Tomorrow night will be the merchants' Halloween costume ball at the Elks club. This is a merchants' affair, with everyone welcome to attend, providing he is in costume.

"Visitors' day" will include a morning of festivities on the downtown streets but with no formal program planned until 1 p. m. when the horse show is given at the city park ball grounds.

A vaudeville show at the city park theater will follow the parade Friday night. There is no charge for this nor for the street dance to be held at the same time in the 100 block on West Center street. The regular Elks club Halloween dance will be Friday night also.

The program for tomorrow and Friday is as follows: Tomorrow, merchants' luncheon, 7 a. m.; kangaroo court, 10 a. m.; whistler contest judging, 4 p. m.; Halloween costume ball, 9:30 p. m. Friday, horse show at the municipal park, 1 p. m.; Halloween parade, 7:30 p. m.; vaudeville show, city park, 9:30 p. m.; street dance in 100 block on West Center street, 9:30 p. m.

FUTURE FARMERS OF SAN JUAN INITIATE

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Oct. 27.—The Capistrano Chapter of the Future Farmers of America held their formal initiation services for candidates for the Green Hand and Future Farmer degrees recently in the auditorium of the Capistrano Union High school. The formal candlelight ceremonies used by all chapters of the national organization were carried out for the occasion.

Thirty persons were invited to witness the ceremonies. The presiding officers were: Freddie Hunt, president; Pancho Forster, vice-president; Takeshi Kawarantani, secretary; Ernest Deit, treasurer; Charlie Ross, reporter; Tony Alarcon, conductor; Richard Ulen, watchdog; and C. C. McCarty, advisor.

The candidates initiated to the Green Hand degree were: Billy Callia, Jose Changala, Douglas Jones, Charles Sites, John Uribe, Peter Yamauchi, James McMullen, and Noburu Fujimoto.

There are 21 members in the local organization. This membership compares very favorably with chapters from much larger schools. A Future Farmers banquet will be held Nov. 10 at the high school. This will be a lamb barbecue which the boys will prepare and serve.

Mission Group To Meet In La Habra

LA HABRA, Oct. 28.—The Orange County Woman's Home Missionary society will be entertained in La Habra next Friday, with an all-day meeting and the local Home Missionary group as the hostesses. The conference will be held at the Methodist church and will open at 9:45 a. m., continuing throughout the day, with a luncheon served by the local group at noon.

Speakers for the day are to be Mrs. Charles Robinson, conference secretary of the Quaker Eastern department, who will speak on the golden jubilee of Queen Esther work; Mrs. L. F. Sedgwick, conference president, and Mrs. LeRoy Grimm, county president of the W. C. T. U. who will speak on citizenship.

Special music will be furnished by Mrs. Cleo Beery of La Habra; Mrs. Frances Montague and Mrs. Eunice Scott of Fullerton who will give Negro spirituals.

Garden Club To Journey To Pasadena

LAGUNA BEACH, Oct. 28.—Members of the Laguna Garden club will journey to Pasadena Friday afternoon to attend the Pasadena Flower Show. The exhibit, arranged by Mrs. Charles Petty, which recently caused so much favorable comment at the State convention at Santa Maria, will be exhibited at Pasadena.

Those wishing to attend are asked to be at the Woman's Club building at nine a. m. Friday. Mrs. Malinda Woodworth, president of Laguna club, has announced that anyone offering transportation or wishing transportation to the flower show, do so by phoning her at 1192.

The flower show will be held for three days, Oct. 30, 31 and Nov. 1 and local members will attend the first day.

G. G. CLUB GUESTS AT FULLERTON HOME

GARDEN GROVE, Oct. 28.—Members of the Monday Afternoon Star club were entertained with a 1 o'clock dessert bridge Monday, at the home of Mrs. Clara Bryan in Fullerton with Mrs. Clara Wilson and Mrs. Hattie Holmes co-hostesses. Guests were seated at small tables centered with yellow chrysanthemums in green vases. A Halloween motif was carried out in the dessert course.

At the business session presided over by Mrs. Lida Mitchell a nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Phyllis Gill, Mrs. Dorothy Jentes and Mrs. Clara Bryan was appointed to name officers and report at the November meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Mitchell on Vernal road.

After an afternoon of bridge, first prize was awarded to Mrs. Ethel Schauer, second prize went to Mrs. Louis Lake and consolation to Mrs. Lida Mitchell. In behalf of the members Mrs. Mitchell read a poem written by Mrs. Dorothy Jentes and presented a purse to Mrs. Catherine Paul who is moving Saturday to Los Angeles, where she will make her home with her brother.

Present were Mesdames Ethel Schauer, Mabel Dalg, Emma Kearns, Elizabeth Collins, Louise Lake, Lida Mitchell, Helen Woodworth, Letty Lee Robbins, Anne Haster, Phyllis Gill, Anola Nearing, Catherine Paul, Dorothy Jentes, Anabel Bryan, and Mae Pearson, all of Garden Grove, Clara Wilson, Fullerton.

PROGRAM OUTLINED FOR CHURCH WORK

WINTERSBURG, Oct. 28.—"Points of Christian Living" was the subject of an address given Sunday evening at the Wintersburg Methodist church by the Rev. George Warner, pastor of First Methodist church, Santa Ana, guest speaker.

Young people of the Wintersburg church are attending this evening in Santa Ana the last of the series of Epworth League convention services, which opens at 6:15 o'clock.

The Epworth League junior choir of the church meets for rehearsal at 7:00 p. m. tomorrow with a joint rehearsal with the church choir at 7:30 o'clock.

Women of the Home Missionary society are reminded of the county rally of Home Missionary societies scheduled for 9:45 o'clock Friday morning at the La Habra First Methodist church where Mrs. Robinson, Queen Esther director who has just returned from the national convention at Lincoln, Nebraska, will tell of the convention. A talk on "Citizenship" by Mrs. LeRoy Grimm will be a feature with a young woman's group from the church singing Negro Spirituals.

100 GUESTS AT "FATHER, SON" SCOUT DINNER

COSTA MESA, Oct. 28.—Places were laid for more than 100 persons, when the annual Costa Mesa Father's and Son's banquet and program was held in the social hall of the Community church last night. The meeting was arranged by the local Boy Scout troop and the Costa Mesa Men's Brotherhood. The decorations were bouquets of flowers in yellow and gold, the troop colors of the Boy Scout Cub Scout units national and troop flags.

Judge Kenneth Morrison of Santa Ana, gave the principal talk, speaking on the theme, "The Lack of Training as Seen in the Court Room." The speaker was introduced by Judge D. J. Dodge, Justice of Peace. Judge Dodge, who is a member of the County Council of the Boy Scout movement, spoke briefly, describing the aims and problems of the district.

Harrison E. White, chief executive of the Orange County Scout council, presided at a Court of Honor immediately following the dinner. The following awards were made: Robert Winterbourne received his star badge and also merit badges for woodwork, personal health and animal industry; Robert Jackson received badges for personal health and carpentry; Leroy Shilling, personal health and carpentry; Charles Boone, second class and personal health; Tommy Grupe, second class and personal health; Walter Brown, tenderfoot; Jack Phillips, Wolf Cub, and Scoutmaster Lloyd Willcutt was awarded his Five-Year Veteran's pin and badge.

The Grammar school orchestra, under the direction of Mary Trowbridge Ridda, teacher in the school, opened the entertainment program. Stuart Price, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. S. Briggs, with Mrs. Briggs accompanying on the flute, sang several solos. Cub Scout Bill Smalley gave the proper bugle calls for the entire program.

Scout stunts included in the entertainment were boxing match between Scouts Jack Croughan and Everett Schneeweis, and Cubs Pat Healey and Tommy Mock and human pyramid by Cub Scouts Norman Trusheim, Jack Phillips, Gene Pilley, Pat Healey, Donald Tripp and Jack Hirtler.

Honor guests for the evening were Scout troop committeemen George Teaney, Goss Grable and Earl Winterbourne, Cub troop committeemen Paul Fisher, Elmer Clark and Ward Pilley, Scoutmaster Al Spencer, and Scout Camp Cook Tom Devine.

The Reverend W. I. Lowe gave the invocation and Leroy Shilling led in the Scout closing prayer. Announcement was made that a Community Halloween Carnival is being planned for Saturday night. It is to be held on the grounds at the Main unit of the elementary schools at Nineteenth street and Newport road.

Henry Abrams, president of the Men's Brotherhood, was in charge of the evening's activities.

House Stealing New Racket
EL CENTRO, Cal. (U. P.)—The latest racket developed here is stealing houses. One which the sheriff's office is looking for was apparently demolished and hauled away on trucks.

It is the forest that has been felled once that is most difficult to get through, for there a secondary growth of low-lying shrubs and vines mingles with the taller trees.

All who wish to attend or who will furnish transportation for someone else is asked to notify Mrs. A. Hall at Wintersburg, vice president of the local missionary society, as reservations for the noon luncheon must be made.

NEW OFFICERS ARE NAMED BY LA HABRA FARM CENTER

LA HABRA, Oct. 28.—R. E. Launer was this week named president of the La Habra Farm center, at that organization's annual banquet and election held at Memorial Hall. Other officers elected to guide the group for the coming year are: Ray Wheatley, vice president; Walter Beck, secretary-treasurer, and N. M. Launer, director.

At the meeting held this week, Past President C. Jack Zinn presided. More than 60 members of the organization attended. The entertainment was provided by Fanchon and Marco entertainers, Bow Boys, and Miss Lynn Mayfair.

Arthur Nelson, assistant field manager for the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, was the speaker for the evening and in his talk he urged the growers to watch the quality of the fruit shipped that the California standards be maintained in the highest manner. He said that increased competition with Florida and other sections made it imperative that only the best of fruit be shipped from California to other markets; that outward appearance as well as interior quality was most important.

Reports of the various chairmen of the farm center were given. R. E. Frantz reported on the activities of the avocado committee; Edgar Leutwiler, for the water committee; C. Jack Zinn, for the citrus department; Howard Jackson, membership; R. E. Launer, 4-club, and N. M. Launer, the directors' report. L. A. Bortz, president of the Orange County Farm Bureau, spoke briefly on "Why We Have a Farm Bureau," and Cecil Marks of the farm bureau office in Santa Ana spoke concerning the coming convention to be held at Pasadena in December.

La Habra Girls Form 4-H Group

LA HABRA, Oct. 28.—A group of girls met Tuesday afternoon for an organization meeting of a girls' 4-H club in La Habra. There has been no 4-H girls group here for two years and several were anxious to resume the work. Mrs. L. H. Brewer will be the new club leader and was assisted Tuesday afternoon in the re-organization by Mrs. R. E. Launer. Regular meetings of the new club will be held the first and third Tuesday of each month. The first meeting is to be held next Tuesday, Nov. 3, at Mrs. Brewer's home.

Girls enrolled at the first meeting were: Jane Vandenberg, Betty Goyer, Barbara Long, Wilma LeQuay, Katherine Vest and Nancy Brewer.

Buena Park Club Hears Candidate

BUENA PARK, Oct. 28.—Harry Riley of Anaheim, candidate for supervisor, was the speaker at the meeting of the Buena Park Townsend club last night at the Congregational church. He discussed proposed legislative measures of the November ballot. S. M. Craig, president, was in charge of the routine business session.

Outdoor field practice occupied the time of members of the Boy Scout troop at the meeting last evening at the home of Scoutmaster Charles Shirley on Western avenue.

OUTFALL SEWER PROPOSALS GIVEN APPROVAL

ANAHEIM, Oct. 28.—Approval of the report and recommendation of Engineer G. N. Adams to the effect that vitrified pipe, of a 36-inch size with the next alternative of a 36-inch size, be the only pipe considered in replacing 4.2 miles of the outfall sewer was given by resolution at last night's Anaheim council meeting.

Other cities and sanitary districts within the outfall sewer districts are to make their official recommendations before the outfall sewer board meets again November 5.

The council took under advisement a letter from the Electrical Contractor-Dealers of the city, called together into an organization at the instigation of City Electrician Ward Hannum, in which they recommended a few changes in the city's electrical setup.

The council voted to allow the Red Cross to enclose a bid for the coming drive in the bills from the public service department. A report of cost of the outfall sewer, Section one, during September showed the cost of maintenance to be $824.09, of which Anaheim pays $152.80, and of reconstruction to be $7211.85, of which Anaheim pays $1048.24.

HOLD PUBLIC CARD PARTY

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Oct. 27.—The members of the bridge section of the San Juan Capistrano Woman's club are busy this week perfecting plans for a public card party to be held at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, October 29, in the auditorium of the Capistrano Union High school.

There will be tables for contract and auction bridge, 500 and other games desired by those attending. Acting hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. David Ross, Mrs. Robert Callis, and Mrs. Kenneth Appointed committee chairmen are Mrs. A. W. Spoor, refreshments; Mrs. V. S. Beck, serving; Mrs. Robert Callis, tables; Mrs. M. M. Parker, posters and tallies; Mrs. E. A. Loderback, prizes.

Salute to Love

BEGIN HERE TODAY
KATE and CAROLINE MEED live on a farm, West Meadows, with their lovely, indolent grandfather, MAJOR SAM MEED, and two old colored servants, ALFIE and ZEKIE. Kate is engaged to MORGAN PRENTISS, who neglected her love for beautiful EVE ELWELL.

Major Meed loses the farm to HOPKINS HOWARD, a bitter mountaineer. Kate hates Jeff for taking her home. In spite of her father's treatment, Jeff cannot prevent himself from loving her. Kate plans a hayride, but the boys protest. She goes on a job and put her grandfather in a home for veterans. Kate, because of her love for Morgan, tries to excuse his cruel demands.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX

THE offices of the law firm of Prentiss and Elwell occupied several old-fashioned rooms over a hardware store on Center street. Though unpretentiously housed, it was one of the most important legal firms in the state. Someday the name on the window would be changed to "Prentiss, Elwell, and Prentiss," for Morgan Prentiss, Judge Prentiss's son, had entered into the partnership (on a beginner's basis) two years before, after graduation from the University of Virginia.

Morgan was alone in the office today. Judge Prentiss was trout fishing in Canada, and Mr. Elwell was in Lexington on business. Morgan had just persuaded a client to compromise with a man he wanted to sue.

"After all, Mr. Brown," Morgan pointed out, "we can't have everything in this world. It would be pleasant, I grant you, but no one ever found the way to work it."

When the client had gone Morgan reflected on his own advice. He had actually directed that statement at himself. He was thinking of his provisional proposal to Kate Meed the night before. She would accept his terms, of course, and they would be married soon. In many ways he'd be short-changed when he got Kate Meed. There were a great many things she lacked that the wife of a rising young lawyer should have—money, influence, ambition, a talent for diplomacy.

"But she stirs me," he admitted. "There's some kind of charm and power in her make-up that the others lack."

The office telephone rang. The secretary answered in an adjoining room and Morgan could hear her side of the conversation: "Yes, Eve. . . . No, your father's out of town today. Is there something I could do for you? . . . Yes, Mr. Prentiss is in. Wait. I'll call him."

Morgan picked up his telephone. "Hello, Eve!" "Hello, Morgan. I wanted to ask Dad something—I'd forgotten

San Clemente May Have New Church

SAN CLEMENTE, Oct. 28.—The regular meeting of the Solano Aid Society of the Community church will be held in the social clubhouse tomorrow afternoon, with Mrs. E. A. Nedermeyer and Miss Eunice Templin as hostesses.

At the meeting Thursday plans will be perfected for the community dinner to be held at the clubhouse Friday, November 6, for the purpose of determining whether or not to erect a new church. Lots on Avenida Granada were purchased for a church site about three years ago by the Solano club and the matter of building has been under consideration since that time.

The community church organization now holds its Sunday services in the grammar school. The Rev. J. M. Davis is pastor in charge. The Solano club, active in the church's work, was the first woman's club to be organized at San Clemente.

WESTMINSTER CHORUS MEETS

WESTMINSTER, Oct. 28.—The date for the opening of the rehearsal season for the Westminster Community chorus, local school project and which the Parent-Teacher association is sponsoring, was postponed from next Tuesday on account of it being the election date. The announcement of the new date will be given at next Monday evening's monthly P-T-A. meeting.

Besides deciding the chorus arrangement at the executive board meeting Monday afternoon, plans for a play to be presented as a benefit for the association was planned, this to be held around the first of December. The ways and means chairman, Mrs. Bert Heath, and the dramatics chairman, Miss Nellie French, were named in charge of the play. It was decided not to serve refreshments at P-T-A. meetings, only on special occasions.

The program for Monday evening's P-T-A. meeting was arranged with three of the organization chairmen: Mrs. Lola Vail, magazine chairman; Mrs. Alva-

TANGO GAME ATTACKED BY P-T-A. GROUP

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 28.—The first meeting of the Huntington Beach High school Parent-Teacher Association was held at the school cafeteria on Monday. The organization went on record as opposing the Tango proposition, which is to come up at the November election. It was decided to visit the Vienna Medical Clinic in Huntington Beach and attend the lecture tomorrow evening, Oct. 29. Members are to meet at the clinic at 7:15 p. m.

Two new chairmen were appointed at the business session, Mr. James Ranney, music, and Mr. Pearl Jones, flower chairman. The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Ned Clinton, program chairman, who introduced Mrs. C. Drown, district P-T-A. president, who gave a short talk on "Life Memberships." The other speaker, Arthur Corey, talked of the subject of "Taxes in Relation to the School."

The school trio composed of Betty McFarland, piano, Norma Rice, violin, and Marion McKelvey, flute played a group of pleasing numbers. Mrs. Anna Campbell of Westminster, accompanied by her daughter, Barbara, sang. The new flower chairman presented members of the faculty who were members of the P-T-A. colors, and M. G. Jones, the school principal, introduced the new members.

The executive board were hostesses at the social hour which followed. Refreshments were served by members of the Girls' League.

Salute to Love

he's out of town. Listen, you poor slave, leave the office to Miss Carter and come on out here for a tall, frosty julep. . . . I mean you're coming," she said as he made a protesting sound.

He went to the door of his father's office. "Miss Carter, if any one wants me, you can reach me at the Elwells."

EVE opened the white colonial door and Morgan stepped into a cool room.

"You hussy!" he said. "I've a notion to tell your father you lured me out here. He told me to stay at the office."

Eve laughed. They went into the living-room which was kept cool and shaded by Venetian blinds. There were linen covers on the furniture, and great bowls of garden flowers everywhere. Beyond the spacious living-room was the library, its shelves filled with leather-bound volumes. The setting suggested a gracious mode of living. Ease. Luxury. . . .

Morgan suddenly pictured Eve in a great city house in Washington. A senator's house. Yes, she'd fit. She'd know the steps that led there, too. She'd keep pace with a man going up. She'd not be a drag. . . .

Eve said, handing Morgan a tinling glass. "Sit down, my handsome young friend. Beside me, but not too close. On account of its being so warm, you know. Where were you last night? I tried to get you."

Morgan sipped pensively. "You're lying, of course. I saw Red Jackson in town, in white flannels, buying a box of candy. About 8 o'clock, that was. He had a date with you."

"Too true," Eve admitted. "We spent the evening eating the candy and thrashing over his story about killing the deer in Michigan. I didn't really try to phone you, of course. I was only sending out messages by mental telepathy. You didn't get them, so I knew you were far away. Occupied with some other woman."

"Kate Meed?" "I drove out there about 9," Morgan answered. "Then we went to Blue Grass Inn and danced till 1:30. A good time was had by all."

"Not too good, I hope?" said Eve shrewdly. "I mean there was a tricky moon last night." She caught the tell-tale emotions that flitted across his face. "Morgan, I hope you haven't gotten yourself really involved with Kate Meed?" "Engaged, I mean?" "It's hanging fire," Morgan replied. "I might as well be honest with you. So what—as we used to say so cutely."

RUM PROPOSALS CONSIDERED AT W. C. T. U. MEET

ORANGE, Oct. 28.—Reports of the state convention and of work being done to further the campaign for the adoption of proposition No. 9 on the November ballot and the defeat of proposition No. 3, were interesting highlights of the meeting of the W. C. T. U. at an all-day meeting held yesterday in the home of Mrs. Inez Spangler and Miss Lewina Butler, East Chapman avenue yesterday.

Mrs. R. W. Jones gave a detailed account of the state convention held recently in Bakersfield. The local option headquarters on the corner of Chapman avenue and Orange street are in charge of Alfred Higgins, with Miss Mary Heywood heading the work of those contacting voters of the vicinity. It was brought out at the meeting that the passage of No. 3 would remove the last restriction against the sale of beer to children, that if a man is arrested for drunk driving

DEPUTY U. S. COMPTROLLER SENDS VOTE FOR ASSEMBLY

ORANGE, Oct. 28.—Clyde A. Watson, former mayor of Orange who now is a candidate for the state assembly, has received his first vote, although the election will not be held until November 3.

And, believe it or not, the vote was cast about 3000 miles away from Orange county.

These unusual facts were revealed today when Mr. Watson received a letter from a former Orange man, William Prentiss Jr., who now holds the important position of first deputy comptroller, in the United States Comptroller of the Currency office at Washington, D. C.

"Dear Clyde," the letter said, "You got one vote for membership of the Assembly, 74th District, which perhaps is the first vote cast. I have just completed my absent voter's ballot which arrived today. I hope this first vote for you will bring good luck." The letter was dated October 20, 1936.

It is believed that the vote is the first vote cast here in the election.

and can prove that he has had nothing but beer, he will be constitutionally sober.

A covered dish luncheon was served at noon buffet style and Miss Carrie Heywood and Miss Adele Dutton assisted Mrs. Spangler in serving. The dining room table was spread with a lace cloth and napkins studded a Halloween motif. Chrysanthemums and autumn leaves also were used in decorating.

The business meeting was held in the morning and Mrs. Minnie Neville, president, was in charge. Mrs. C. A. McGill sang, "Garden of Prayer" and Mrs. Clarence Alden, "His Eyes On the Sparrow."

Devotional services were in charge of the pastor of the First Christian church, the Rev. William J. Holder.

DELEGATE NAMED BY GIRLS' LEAGUE

ORANGE, Oct. 28.—The Girls' league of the Orange Union High school met yesterday afternoon in the auditorium with the president, Evelyn Johnson, presiding.

One delegate was elected to accompany the president to the Southern California Federation of Girls League meeting to be held on November 7 at the John Muir Technical high school in Pasadena. Miss Maxine Watson was chosen to attend the meeting with Miss Evelyn Johnson.

The program chairman, Kathryn Sutherland, introduced Miss Lorraine Seavy, who offered two tap dances, and Miss Shirley Haynes, faculty member, who gave a reading.

RAILROAD AIDS SIGHTSEERS

BERLIN (UP)—A new type of railway car, equipped with specially wide windows and a sliding roof to enable passengers to have an uninterrupted view of the countryside, has made its appearance on the German railways.

Pair Married 67 Years Celebrate

ORANGE, Oct. 28.—Sixty-seven years ago Mr. and Mrs. William Feldner, 1704 West Chapman avenue, were married in Monroe county, Ohio. Mr. Feldner is 89 years of age and Mrs. Feldner is 85. Sons and daughters and grandchildren of the couple were present in the Feldner home yesterday afternoon and evening and in the evening ice cream was served with a beautifully decorated wedding cake.

Following their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Feldner went to western Iowa where they operated a ranch. In Ohio Mr. Feldner had been engaged in lumbering. When he retired from business in 1908 he came with his family to establish his home in Orange. He is a member of the I.O.O.F. lodge and has held membership in the organization for the past 40 years. Before her marriage Mrs. Feldner was Miss Julia Steinhoff.

Only members of the families of children of the honored couple were present.

REV. E. H. KREIDT OF OLIVE IS ELECTED CONFERENCE HEAD

ORANGE, Oct. 28.—The Rev. E. H. Kreidt of St. Paul's Lutheran church of Olive was re-elected chairman of the Sierra-Pacific pastors conference which has been in progress here since Monday morning.

Other officers selected were the Rev. A. C. Bode, of St. John's Lutheran church of Olive, vice chairman; and the Rev. H. B. Tietgen of Monrovia, secretary. The Rev. W. Theiss, the Rev. C. Damschroeder and the Rev. Floyd Dreith, all of San Diego, were appointed as a program committee to make arrangements for programs to be presented at next year's conference.

The Rev. Kreidt presided at sessions this morning and H. G. Schmelzer of Anaheim continued an explanatory talk on the first chapter of Philipians. The Rev. O. Henkel of Fontana continued a talk on "Social Life of Pastors," and the Rev. H. Hillman a discussion of the old testament. Sessions will close this afternoon.

GARDEN SECTION OF ORANGE CLUB VISITS JACKSON HOME

ORANGE, Oct. 28.—Presaging many pleasant and instructive sessions which will be held during the coming year, was the luncheon and program which marked the October meeting of the Garden section of the Orange Woman's club at the Woman's clubhouse yesterday. Mrs. Perry Grout, president, presided. H. A. Hosmer of Laguna Beach was the speaker of the afternoon.

Four new members of the section were introduced. They were Mrs. J. D. Hayes, Mrs. Marion Flippin, Mrs. L. J. Flanders and Mrs. Clara Vestal. Mrs. Lela Jacobs was a guest. Hostesses were Mrs. H. O. Russell, chairman; Mrs. L. W. Thompson, Mrs. Henry Terry, Mrs. M. L. Reed, Mrs. Will Rohrer, Mrs. E. W. Squires, Mrs. D. V. Rothberger, Mrs. B. F. Richards, Mrs. W. S. Wallace, Mrs. Frank Colfax Richmond, Mrs. Donald Smiley, Mrs. J. F. Stone, Mrs. S. W. Todd, Mrs. George H. Peterson and Mrs. George Everett Peterson, Mrs. H. F. Taylor.

Announcement was made of the Inter-County Garden club meeting at Covina, November 2. Mrs. Donald Smiley, members of the finance committee of the Woman's club, announced benefit luncheon and card party at her home November 30.

H. A. Hosmer gave an interesting talk on "Bulbs." He told the difference between true bulbs and vegetable growths which commonly are called bulbs. A true

Brain Twizzlers

By Prof. J. D. Flint

At a holiday dinner there were eleven persons. For dessert they had a plum pudding and a pumpkin pie. Each of these could be divided into four parts and no more. Five out of the eleven people can eat the plum pudding but will not eat the pie while four will eat the pie but will not eat the plum pudding. In how many different ways might the servings be made?

The Professor warns you that you are apt to be 40 off in your answer if you are not careful of duplication in groupings.

SKIPPER ENDS HIS CAREER AFTER 45 YEARS ON THE SEA

NEW YORK (U. P.)—Capt. John F. Jensen, master of the S. S. President Roosevelt of the U. S. Lines, ends a 45-year career on the sea when he retires Sept. 26. He took over command of the President Roosevelt in 1925 when Capt. George Fried was promoted to the new liner Manhattan.

Jensen commanded the army transport Finland when that ship was torpedoed Oct. 28, 1917, about 170 miles off Erest. He took the vessel to Brest, despite a hole amidships measuring 26 by 21 feet. For this deed he was commended by Secretary of War Newton D. Baker.

The son of a Danish shipmaster, Jensen was schooled in boats from

LED AUSTRIA IN COMEBACK

THE World War had left Austria almost poverty-stricken. Efforts were being made to revive the spirit of the downcast people. A new liberal republic was formed in 1920, and its first president became Dr. Michael Hainisch, popular agriculturist and manufacturer.

No better choice could have been made, for Dr. Hainisch had the background of a liberal education and a sympathetic interest in humanity. His mother, Mrs. Marianne Hainisch, was the most beloved woman in Austria, for she fought unceasingly for the recognition of women's rights in that country.

Trained from the beginning in public life, Dr. Hainisch became under minister of education when he was only 30 years old. He studied economics, and devoted himself to the improvement of farming. His training helped him, as president, to guide his country through eight trying years. Retired at 78, he still takes active interest in the progress of Austria.

Business Leader Says F. D. R. Helps 'Average Citizen'

The great popular strength of President Roosevelt, now so evident, is surprising to many people who have been misled by the tumult and the shouting of the past few years. The press has featured constant attacks upon him by individuals and special groups.

Dean C. Mildred Thompson

And now, as election nears, the campaign discloses that President Roosevelt has an amazing hold upon the affections and the support of the American people. His re-election is no longer in doubt. Then why this apparent contradiction?

The answer lies in the support which President Roosevelt is receiving from large but inarticulate groups. Sincere men and women in business and the professions appreciate his efforts and are supporting him in solid phalanx.

In this column today, we reprint a few of the unselfish reasons advanced by people who are supporting Mr. Roosevelt. First is a letter from Mr. George L. Johnson, chairman of the Board of the Endicott Johnson Corporation, one of the largest shoe manufacturing establishments in the world. His corporation employs about 19,000 people.

MR. JOHNSON'S REASON

In a letter to Henry H. Rosenfelt, of the Business Men's League for Roosevelt, Mr. Johnson said:

"Answering your letter of October 8th; I am decidedly and strongly in favor of the re-election of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"Reason: he has the courage, the conviction, the desire and the sympathy, that make him the friend of the 'Average Citizen.' His second term, in my judgment, will give him a greater opportunity to help the 'underdog.'

"People are beginning to accept the idea that the 'Average Citizen' is the most valuable to the nation. We do not want too many rich, and we certainly do not want too many poor. We have had plenty of both in my lifetime, especially the 'very rich' and the 'very poor.' We want more of the average, with enough and not too much.

"President Roosevelt's re-election would be, in my judgment, the wisest and best possible result of the next election."

DEAN THOMPSON

The Roosevelt program has an special appeal for educators, both men and women. Dean C. Mildred Thompson of Vassar College is the chairman of a group of educators seeking to bring about the re-election of the President. In telling why, Dean Thompson said:

"I shall vote for President Roosevelt because he has recognized human welfare as the first concern of government. His fundamental principles have been toward safeguarding and strengthening democratic government in America. In view of trends in the world today toward either Fascism or Communism he has done much toward keeping alive faith in orderly, progressive, popular government."

SENATOR NORBECK

Senator Peter Norbeck, of South Dakota, a lifelong Republican, has just announced his support of Mr. Roosevelt. Senator Norbeck was chairman of the Senate Finance Committee during its investigation of Wall Street financing. Said he:

"The politicians ignore the cold fact that the national indebtedness is now less than at the beginning of the Roosevelt term. It surely is, if measured in bushels of wheat and pounds of pork."

Yes, California's In The Bag - but Which Bag, Jim?

One of the most interesting developments over the week-end—Republicans, Democrats, and New Dealers alike—is the indicated swing of California out of Mr. Roosevelt's column and into Gov. Landon's.

Up to now our Good Comrades have been claiming that they had the Golden State in the bag. Comrade Farley claims the other 47 States as well, but most of us thought he was in earnest about California.

California, Here I Come.

Mr. Roosevelt also seems to have believed that he was safe enough there to leave it off his stump-speaking schedule.

Perhaps to keep Californians in good humor, he let it be known that "the critical international situation" would prevent him for venturing so far afield.

A SAD STORY, MATES

But that was sometime back. Latest Literary Digest figures from California (including the supposed Roosevelt stronghold of Los Angeles) give Landon 51.4%, Roosevelt 44.5% of the vote. And a careful private poll of Los Angeles County — NOT "scientifically weighted"—shows that while California is doubtless in the bag, there is reason to think that the bag may be the property of Alfred M. Landon.

While in California, he found a lot of his former neighbors from Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and other typical prairie states.

ADVICE TO GOOD COMRADES

Getting back to politics, however, we confess we wonder just what Mr. Roosevelt will do about the situation of which California is the latest symptom.

Our (unsolicited) advice to the New Dealers has been to try to put on a war scare of some sort in the closing days of the campaign, and then exhort the public to "Stand by the President," "Don't Swap Horses in Midstream," etc.

That MIGHT work, and our Good Comrades are welcome to the suggestion if they can use it.

TRINITY GUILD HOLDS MEETING

ORANGE, Oct. 28. — Trinity guild of Trinity Episcopal church met yesterday afternoon in the parish house with Mrs. Frank Brown presiding.

During the business session, members reviewed the reports of the recent district meeting and discussed plans for having future dinners for various organizations, including the Men's Club, etc.

A social hour followed and refreshments were served, under the chairmanship of Miss Floy Bradshaw, to the following: Mrs. Horace Rathvon, Mrs. Thomas Jessup and Mrs. Frank Galley of Garden Grove; Mesdames E. W. Jardine, Margaret Baerber, Hattie Davis, T. E. Arrowsmith, Harry Witman, N. J. Whitney, W. C. Armstrong, Frank Brown, Norman Bailey, Thomas Burnett, Jane Stephens, H. F. Softley, and the Misses Emily Burton, Floy Bradshaw and Alice Caldwell.

It was announced that the annual Halloween dance of Trinity Episcopal church will be on Friday evening, October 30 at 7:30 p. m. in the Parish House. All are cordially invited to attend.

At the present time, approximately half of the people in the United States carry life insurance.

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

Few husbands can understand why a wife should turn into a shrew for one whole week in every month.

You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

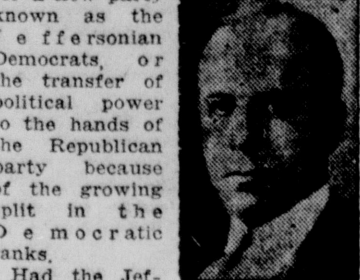

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature (and the system) thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "Smiling Through."

Day By Day In Washington

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1936)

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 28.—President Roosevelt will carry Virginia by a substantial majority, but there's a first-class revolt brewing here which may result, in two or three years, in capturing the state for a new party known as the Jeffersonian Democrats, or the transfer of political power to the hands of the Republican party because of the growing split in the Democratic ranks.

Had the Jeffersonian Democrats got under way a year ago and obtained the necessary funds for organization work in every precinct, the electoral vote of Virginia might have been decided this time by a much narrower margin and it possibly might have been won by Governor Landon.

But, fundamentally, the cleavage between the New Dealers and the traditional Democrats has been confined to a relatively small number of persons, though the Jeffersonian Democrats have stirred up much more disturbance politically than their numerical strength might seem to indicate.

The significance of these trends, however, does not lie in the present campaign or election alone. It has a deep-seated meaning for the future. It explains why Senator Carter Glass, the greatest of American statesmen of today, must remain silent, so far as making speeches for or against the New Deal is concerned, and yet cast his ballot for President Roosevelt.

The veteran Senator's position is not at all difficult to understand, and even to agree with, if one has the slightest knowledge of Virginia politics. Outside the state, many persons have criticized Senator Glass for not bolting his party. They who do so do not realize that a bolt this year would have meant the election of a rubber-stamp senator from Virginia to add to the tools of the New Deal manipulation in Congress next January.

Supposing, for instance, that Mr. Glass had announced that he would not support the President in a party sense. What would have happened?

Opinions will differ, of course, but the New Deal would have encouraged a really strong candidate in opposition. While Mr. Glass has extraordinary strength and might have won the primary, his followers throughout the state in the Democratic organization would have been subjected to severe trials and tribulations in a political way.

Thus, Senator Harry Byrd, who does not come up for reelection for four years and has for a long time been the most influential man in Virginia organization politics, has a fight on his hands now. His Wing of the PACGTQ is being undermined by James Price, who has the backing of the New Deal. In the governorship fight next year, there will be a battle between the Byrd forces and the Price faction. The lines are being formed for it now.

The New Deal, with its use of patronage and public funds, has the means of winning over some of the local organizers and workers. That's the way party organizations are built up or broken down—with federal or state patronage.

To win an election nowadays, especially in a state like Virginia, which has so long been a one-party state, it is necessary to have organization. The Republicans have never built an effective organization for the national ticket here because they have not been able to set up a good state organization to wage an opposition fight on state and local issues.

More than ever before in America, federal and state political organizations are intertwined. Senator Glass has staunch friends in the Democratic organization who have gone down the line for him throughout his long career in public life. He cannot now turn his back on his lieutenants and supporters. To do so is to expose them to factional attack.

As a matter of fact, Harry Byrd, as Governor of Virginia, made a great record, and his popularity with Virginians is undiminished. His fight is purely the kind that any independent or progressive would be confronted with in trying to beat Tammany in New York state. In fighting the Farley influence in politics in America, Senators Byrd and Glass are struggling to prevent the ultimate Tammanyizing of Virginia.

To hold their own organization intact, they must be regular in a party sense. Back in 1928, both senators were "regular" and did not hesitate to exorcise any who left the party to vote for Mr. Hoover against Al Smith. Today the position of Senators Byrd and Glass is fixed by the precedent of their own party fidelity of 1928. But this does not prevent them from developing a Democratic organization and a party platform in the state which contradicts the New Deal and reasserts true Democratic doctrine.

Incidentally, Mr. Roosevelt has recently furnished the Byrd-Glass progressives with the best argument they could have had for sticking to their guns and keeping the fight inside the Democratic party rather than straying outside. Editorial prominence, for instance, has been given in the Lynchburg News, owned by Senator Glass, to the way Mr. Roosevelt has repudiated the Democratic party nomination of the Nebraska and Minnesota primaries. Organization Democrats here are chagrined over the action. They regard it as an example of the lengths to which a presidential nominee will sometimes go to advance his own political fortunes at the expense of his party.

Senator Glass has therefore made no speeches about the presidential contest. He will cast his ballot for the straight Democratic ticket because he owes allegiance to his party in this state and because he believes the name Democrat will come more prominently into the vocabulary of American politics after next election than heretofore. Even if the New Deal is continued in power, the attack on its policies from the traditional South will make the Roosevelt supporters of 1936 wish to soft-pedal the phrase "New Deal" in favor of the word "Democrat" as the next two or three years unfold the sharp schism between the New Deal philosophy and traditional states' rights.

Senator Glass has been important to Mr. Roosevelt to make some campaign speeches for him. The story of that famous interview of a few weeks ago, in which the President flatly asked the senator to speak in his behalf, was not told accurately in the press at the time. Emphasis was placed only on the fact that Mr. Glass said he would vote for Mr. Roosevelt. Nothing was published of what actually took place in the conference itself. The reports hereabouts are that the courageous senator, with a good-natured twinkle in his eye, answered Mr. Roosevelt's request by pointing out that, in the campaign of 1932, he (Senator Glass) had made some speeches on the gold question, only to have them repudiated by Mr. Roosevelt when the campaign was over. The President is understood to have remarked that conditions had changed, whereupon it is not disclosed what Mr. Glass said in reply, but, if he had a good memory for quotations, he might have countered with a quotation from one of Mr. Roosevelt's own speeches in Fremont, Nebraska, on September 25, 1935, when he said: "Methods and machinery change but principles go on."

If Senator Glass ever did make any speeches in this campaign what could he say? The Virginia senator did express himself a few weeks ago in a newspaper interview which he has never denied. He said:

"The New Deal, taken all in all, is not only a mistake, it is a disgrace to the nation and the time is not far distant when we shall be ashamed of having wandered so far from the dictates of common sense and common honesty. If it weren't so many people who depend upon me, and by that I do not mean my family, I would rather have died than lived to see the disgrace of this era."

Senator Glass has therefore made no speeches about the presidential contest. He will cast his ballot for the straight Democratic ticket because he owes allegiance to his party in this state and because he believes the name Democrat will come more prominently into the vocabulary of American politics after next election than heretofore. Even if the New Deal is continued in power, the attack on its policies from the traditional South will make the Roosevelt supporters of 1936 wish to soft-pedal the phrase "New Deal" in favor of the word "Democrat" as the next two or three years unfold the sharp schism between the New Deal philosophy and traditional states' rights.

Senator Glass has been important to Mr. Roosevelt to make some campaign speeches for him. The story of that famous interview of a few weeks ago, in which the President flatly asked the senator to speak in his behalf, was not told accurately in the press at the time. Emphasis was placed only on the fact that Mr. Glass said he would vote for Mr. Roosevelt. Nothing was published of what actually took place in the conference itself. The reports hereabouts are that the courageous senator, with a good-natured twinkle in his eye, answered Mr. Roosevelt's request by pointing out that, in the campaign of 1932, he (Senator Glass) had made some speeches on the gold question, only to have them repudiated by Mr. Roosevelt when the campaign was over. The President is understood to have remarked that conditions had changed, whereupon it is not disclosed what Mr. Glass said in reply, but, if he had a good memory for quotations, he might have countered with a quotation from one of Mr. Roosevelt's own speeches in Fremont, Nebraska, on September 25, 1935, when he said: "Methods and machinery change but principles go on."

If Senator Glass ever did make any speeches in this campaign what could he say? The Virginia senator did express himself a few weeks ago in a newspaper interview which he has never denied. He said:

"The New Deal, taken all in all, is not only a mistake, it is a disgrace to the nation and the time is not far distant when we shall be ashamed of having wandered so far from the dictates of common sense and common honesty. If it weren't so many people who depend upon me, and by that I do not mean my family, I would rather have died than lived to see the disgrace of this era."

Senator Glass has therefore made no speeches about the presidential contest. He will cast his ballot for the straight Democratic ticket because he owes allegiance to his party in this state and because he believes the name Democrat will come more prominently into the vocabulary of American politics after next election than heretofore. Even if the New Deal is continued in power, the attack on its policies from the traditional South will make the Roosevelt supporters of 1936 wish to soft-pedal the phrase "New Deal" in favor of the word "Democrat" as the next two or three years unfold the sharp schism between the New Deal philosophy and traditional states' rights.

FOUR LANE ROADS

Reducing the number of automobile accidents is a problem that requires much thought. Mr. George Kellogg, who has made quite a study of the traffic problem, pointed out the other day that if the State had sufficient money to widen the main thoroughfares to four lanes instead of three, it would reduce the accidents by 50 per cent. He pointed out that when there are only three lanes, drivers, in trying to pass another automobile, meet the approaching automobile head-on. As traffic increases, this problem will be one crying for solution, more than even now.

HOW HIGH WAGES?

Every man who has had experience in marketing the labor of others realizes that no one knows how high wages should be. It is only the dreamer and the theorist who think they can tell how high wages should be. These are the men who are willing to be the arbiters to arbitrarily established wages.

In doing so, however, they fail to establish any rule and if millions of people are out of work as the result of the wrong wage level they attribute the cause to something else.

Every student of economics and every successful purchaser of labor knows that wages should be as high as possible to give employment to all who desire to work but they should not be so high that millions of people are unable to secure jobs.

SHIPPING STRIKE

Tonight at midnight the maritime workers and longshoremen are scheduled to strike. They have a perfect right to strike. They do not, however, have any right in any way to interfere, to intimidate, to coerce, to threaten, any other worker who desires to do the work they have refused to do.

If Society is to give any group of people a right to perform the work at wages they believe they are entitled to on a non-competitive basis, then Society will be obliged to pay tribute to this group. They have no more divine right to this job than a king has a divine right to his job.

When the public comes to realize that any excessive wages that the maritime workers receive must come out of the living standards of all who use the products, directly or indirectly, of what is handled by the ships, then Society will not consent to permit any group of men to demand a wage higher than is paid for other work of like skill and intelligence.

All government officials, city, county, state and national, if necessary, should be ready to protect the property and the lives of those who care to continue this work.

PROPOSITIONS 3 AND 9

Proper control of liquor is one of the most complicated problems facing society. Whether proposition 3 or 9 should be carried is one that takes a great deal of study in order to take a practical, long-time view of the proposition.

Believing Ray Riley, being on the Board of Equalization, which at present has control of the liquor traffic, we wrote him for his opinion on the matter. We quote a paragraph from his letter which is self-explanatory:

"I have not expressed any public opinion regarding the matter and did not intend so to do but I am keenly interested in the measure to the end that it may receive favorable consideration on the part of the voters. In fact, I am tempted to vote for both No. 9 and No. 3 on the off chance that either one or the other will carry, which will take liquor administration out of the Board of Equalization, a very much desired result so far as I am concerned, and I believe that the Board has sufficiently disqualified itself during past months to be any longer considered a satisfactory agency in the administration of liquor control."

Controller Riley, as is evident from the letter, recognizes the extreme difficulty of having the matter properly handled.

A CORRECTION

We are indebted to the analytical mind of our good friend, Lew Betts, for calling attention to an over-sight in an editorial on Monday under the heading of "Taxing Fruits of Courage."

In the article we said, "A tax on income resulting from lending money is justified," etc. This should have read, "a graduated tax on income resulting from lending money is justified."

The graduated part of the tax on income from lending of money is very important because:

First, it would encourage the small man to save because he would receive a higher rate of interest by lending his money than the rich man who loaned large amounts. This is true because a graduated tax on income resulting from lending money would retard the rich man from lending money and force him into taking risks, thus reducing the amount of money that is available for lending. It is to the interest of society to encourage the greatest possible number of people to become self-reliant property owners and have a storage of wealth for their use in their declining years.

We could not defend the straight income tax on the lending of money as it would discourage the small man from saving but a graduated tax on income resulting from lending money would correct this objection.

We thank Mr. Betts for calling our attention to this.

—George McDonald.

BELGIUM SEES DANGER

Some students of world history are analyzing the reason why Belgium has repudiated its traditional alliance with France. These students are of the opinion that Belgium really recognizes the Red menace in France; that state socialism and communism will prevail in France; that this is the real reason why they have repudiated their traditional alliance.

As one writer has written, "Sensible and courageous little Belgium refuses to take a walk with death," even in the company of an old ally. That is what any nation is doing when it depends on a communistic ally.

The United States, on the other hand, seems to take exactly the opposite view. We realize it and make an alliance with France even violating our own United States laws.

If we remember correctly, we passed a law not long ago that the United States should not lend any money to any country that repudiated its obligations to the United States. Yet, in face of this fact, Secretary Morgenthau, under the present administration, enters into an alliance with France to support the French franc. The combination we have gone into requires the United States to put up money and credit nearly equal to the combined pledges of both France and England to support this vicious pool. All this has been done without the approval of Congress, in which treaty-making powers rest, and without the consent of the people.

We do not know what this is, if it is not a flagrant violation of the powers of the President of the United States to enter in this entangling alliance with foreign countries after Congress has made laws specifically specifying that we should loan no money to nations who have not paid their war debts.

This is certainly in contrast with the courage of little Belgium which recognizes the danger of their position, and evidently believes that an alliance with France, socialistic and communistic as it now is, is even more dangerous than her geographic position.

Just so far as Washington insists on walking hand in hand with Communistic France, it is fraternizing with Communist Russia.

PROFIT OR PROFITLESS SYSTEM

Those who have the most complaint in regard to the profit motive probably do not realize that the real trouble with our economic situation for the past few decades is that it is nearer a profitless system than a profit system. Those people who have never bought labor and risked their savings for many years to pay for it, seem to believe that profits are just automatic. Here are a few figures compiled from government reports by Mr. Robert Doane, in his study, "The Measurement of American Wealth". He shows the total annual profits by major sources from 1909 to 1932.

The Register is reproducing them in the first column by periods of five years, excepting the last four which are given year by year. In the second column, we are reproducing the business losses for the same years. This second column does not include the losses of the government, institutional deficits or private losses other than business private losses. In the last column, we are reproducing the total gross annual losses by major divisions for the same years. It will be noted that business profits do not include the savings from workers. Figures are in millions.

Year	Total An'l. Bus. Profits	Business Losses	Total Losses
1918	10,061	6,735	17,629
1923	11,521	11,999	14,577
1928	13,802	14,215	17,392
1929	16,301	10,565	19,629
1930	8,063	19,806	24,022
1931	5,867	21,066	26,806
1932	2,115	23,898	31,872

It will be noted from the above that the business profits from 1913 up to 1926 are about the same as the business losses. But from 1929 on the business losses are as high as ten times as large as the business profits. These are the reasons that the actual per capita wealth, reduced to the same kind of a dollar, shows that in 1913 the per capita wealth was $2,097 and by 1932 it was reduced to $1,433.

With all the data that is available to any man who really wants to know, we still have people in public office who are wondering whether we should save or spend in order to bring us out of the depression. How poor will we have to get before we realize that we cannot increase wages without having more capital?

TAX FREE GOVERNMENTS

The late Senator Couzens accumulated a large fortune in partnership with Henry Ford. He sold his interest to Henry Ford for $30,000,000 then he invested it in government tax exempt bonds and had his income from them without paying income taxes, contributing nothing to the government which protected him in possession of so great a fortune.

Senator Couzens was a strong advocate of a tax on income, to which he paid nothing. He was the kind that refused to take risks to expand private employment, yet he was a strong advocate of taxing a man who did have courage and remained in private business.

It is a nice example of the absurdity of our present tax laws which exempt the rich man who refuses to take risks and have courage and, figuratively speaking, refuses to use his talents and seeks protection under government bonds and then insists that those who do have courage and compete in buying labor, be taxed for so doing. It is truly an example of inconsistency. The tax system should be reversed. There should be a tax on income from interest on Government Bonds but there should not be a tax on wealth used in producing more wealth and buying private labor.

SPEAKING AS AN INDIVIDUAL

Editor Register:

A few reasons why I am very anxious for the defeat of Franklin Delano Roosevelt at the election, November 3, are presented here. Having been reared a Democrat of the Kentucky-type, I am very loath to see the principles of Democracy prostituted by our present chief executive. His word amounts to nothing. He has made pledge after pledge, only to totally ignore or to repudiate them flagrantly.

Even in his acceptance speech, he solemnly promised to reduce the national expense 25 per cent; the truth of the matter, however, is, according to the statistics given in the press of the country, his administration, so far, has spent more than all of the administrations of both Democrats and Republicans, together, in the 100 years previous. Does that sound like a reduction in government expenses? Yes—in a dead pig's eye!

I vehemently resent any one, any time, anywhere, in high or low office, using any part of my "sweat like blood" tax money in an attempt to keep himself in office, thus further polluting politics—already ready far too putrid. There are many things the President has done which totally unfit him for a second term in the White House. He has attempted several times to trample under his unhallowed feet, the bulwark of our American independence, the Constitution of the United States. We already have seen far too much of the big bear brood and the alphabetical swill, concocted by the three would-be chiefs, FDR, Farley and Tugwell, but thanks to the good old Supreme Court, many of their spurious concoctions in violation of the "pure (law) food" requirements, have been declared "unfit for human consumption".

I leave it to you as to how much truth there is in the statement by Mr. Babson that there is a fifty-fifty chance for our beloved America to go Fascist at the coming election, and a six-to-ten chance that we will be destroyed by inflation. To say the least, we are in the middle of a very bad fix. An old adage is a good illustration of Roosevelt's so-called "American actions"—there scarcely could be so much smoke unless there was some fire "about."

Largely responsible for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, the President made many emphatic promises as to what would not be permitted under any circumstances, not one of them being kept. Neither will he keep the promises he is making in this present campaign, the promises which might have a slight ray of hope for the masses, or common people, the ones who pay the bills, many of which are unjust, unfair and uncalled for. Then, look at his child-like business policies of destroying cotton, corn, cattle, hogs and so on, that we, the people, might have more! That we might have more—in a dead cow's eye! Well, those policies did raise the price which the consumer, the laborer, the masses, the ones who always must pay the bulk of taxes and for the follies of our unfaithful servants, the office holders, have to pay. (We do take off hats, however, to the ones who have remained honest and efficient).

After the destruction of all of these things, wealth, we have found it necessary to turn around and import more than was destroyed, from foreign countries, thus depriving our own American citizens of the price of those imported commodities when the money is paid to business men of those other countries.

To show how far Roosevelt will go to carry his point: Former Senator Reed of Missouri charged that Roosevelt indicated he would pack the Supreme Court by increasing its membership, and challenged Roosevelt to deny it. Such an action regarding the Supreme Court would be a serious thing for a private citizen to take, much less the chief executive of the grandest nation on the face of the earth.

Judging from his actions during his term of office thus far, we are forced to believe that he would stoop to anything to carry his point. I hope the people of Santa Ana and of Orange county will help defeat such a man on November 3.

I believe anyone occupying the chair as chief executive of this nation should have at least a slight conception of the value of a dollar. I am sorry to say, Mr. Roosevelt does not seem to have. We are permitted to judge a tree by its fruit.

I believe that there are enough people in this good old America, sick and tired enough of seeing their "sweat like blood" tax money poured into alphabetical, political rat holes, to defeat the present chief executive on November 3.

E. A. COX.

Editor Register:

The political campaign is drawing to its close.

Who will be the victor, Roosevelt or Landon? That is a question of vital interest. Shall we have another four years of boondoggling, of reckless government expenditure, of pyramiding the national debt, of broken promises, of undermining the morale of the American people, by destroying the initiative and freedom in private and business affairs?

Wanting paternalism and government planning may be more or less akin to European soil; but to our free and unshackled American spirit it is detestable tyranny.

To say, "Oh, that could never happen here," is making a statement that is neither rational nor sound. It most assuredly will happen unless the New Deal is defeated on November 3, and that can be done only by casting our ballots for Governor Alf. M. Landon.

Some will say, "Governor Landon is not a great man like Roosevelt. He doesn't have his personal charm, his radio voice, nor his gifts as an orator." We agree with our friends that he does not. But, he attributes that are, for an executive of our great United States, of far greater value and superior to any of Roosevelt's qualities.

Roosevelt lacks Landon's candor, sincerity. His acceptance speech at Philadelphia was a masterpiece of deception. He made promises that he knew quite well could not be kept if the New Deal remained in force. It was a repetition of promises that were similar to those of 1932.

After his inauguration most of his own pledges were thrown to the wind. Instead he adopted and kept the promises of the candidate of the Socialist party.

To Landon the pledges of his platform are sacred. He aims to keep his promises, and has the courage and ability to do so. What he did as governor of Kansas that he will do as President of the United States. "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much."

Landon is a political "natural" and has methods of his own that work. He is a doer, not a talker. From his presence radiate honesty, simplicity and sincerity. He inspires those with whom he comes in contact with implicit faith and confidence in pulling through shadows of gloom and despondency into refreshing sunshine of peace, good will and prosperity. In this he has proved himself a master in his home life, in his business affairs, and in his executive tasks as a governor.

"My home, my country and my God," has been his motto.

HELENA S. CHRISTIANSEN.

Little Benny's
Note Book

BY LEE PAPE

We were eating supper, being liver and onions in pop's honor, and ma said, pop, do you remember the conversation we had the other day about how everybody should go to the dentist for an examination twice a year just as a voluntary precaution?

That's rite, we both agreed, and neither of us went, pop said. If I remember correctly, we sent Benny as a hostage, he said, and ma said, But you only know half the story, because I went myself in person this afternoon. I got to thinking it over again, and I realized how silly it is for people who trust to blind chance that their teeth are perfect when it would only take a dentist a few minutes to prove that they are living in a fool's paradise, and just then, low and behold I felt the coincidence of a sharp shooting pain in that doubtful upper tooth of mine, so I killed 2 birds with one stone and went rite around to Dr. Tittleman's office, she said.

What kind of an anesthetic did he give you, local or national? pop said, and ma said, Wait till I tell you. There were several people ahead of me in the waiting room, so I picked up a casual magazine at random, and it was a copy of Yahoo. You know, Willyum, the funny magazine, and rite on the very cover there was such a funny picture I had to snicker internally because I didn't want to laugh out loud in the midst of all those mournful waiting faces. But the point is, I felt so much better after my good snubbed laugh that I hardly noticed my tooth at all, so I quietly came home again. Don't you think it seems rather short sighted on a dentist's part to leave magazines like that lying around their waiting rooms, Willyum? she said.

It seems like something, pop said, and ma said, Anyway, Willyum, now you're the only one who hasn't paid a voluntary visit to the dentist's.

I except the nomination, pop said, and got in back of the sporting page and stayed there.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

STRENGTH WITHOUT TYRANNY

The most important issue of the 1936 campaign is the issue upon which the least clear thinking and plain speaking, has been spent.

I refer to the issue of centralized power. It is easy to say, "The man in the street is not interested in the Constitution. He is interested in a job, in security, in some economic hope for the future. He can't eat the Constitution. He can't wear the Constitution," and so on.

I quite agree that it is no answer to the bitter cry of human need and human insecurity and human fear of the future to say, "You must not touch the Constitution."

The Constitution is a means to an end, not an end in itself.

The Constitution has set up certain safeguards against an undue concentration of power in the Federal government or in any one branch of the Federal Government.

Since the Constitution was drafted, as Mr. Roosevelt has rightly said, some problems have become national that were then local, and can only be dealt with now on a national scale.

To say that the concentration of all power in Washington is dangerous is not to say that these problems must be left to the several states or in some twilight zone between states and nation. It is only to say that, as more problems become national and amenable only to national handling, we must see to it that the necessary increase in federal power is granted under conditions that do not insure the death of democratic self-government.

I am confident that agricultural policy must more and more have a large element of national direction, that both interstate commerce and due process of law are phrases we must redefine in terms of changed circumstances, but I am equally confident that to leave all this at the mercy of presidential decree is to Hitlerize America.

On many scores Washington must be deflated. The Federal government is doing many things it has no business doing. On the other hand, there are some very important things that must be done by the Federal government, things we dare not leave to the states.

But, to make these new controls by Washington serve instead of slay self-government, we must do several things to the Federal government. We must take away from presidents and postmaster-generals most of the patronage through which they now build machines for their self-perpetuation, and thus save presidents from the temptation to flood the country with federal employees who will keep local fences in repair. We must, or should, give presidents a decently long term and then make them ineligible for reelection, thus making it possible for presidents to think of the next generation instead of the next election. And still other things of this nature. Then we can look with less concern upon an enlargement of federal power over problems that are plainly national in importance.

When we expand federal power, we should strengthen instead of weaken the safeguards against its abuse.

OUR CHILDREN

INDIVIDUALITY

"For mercy's sake! Edith, make that child stop that awful noise."

"O no, I wouldn't do that. He will soon stop of his own accord. He will soon get tired. I don't want to suppress his individuality. That is what is wrong with so many people. They never had a chance to express themselves fully and the poor things are suffering from all sorts of difficulties."

So Malcolm went on stamping about the room and pounding the floor with a stout, walking stick. Mother had read some good books on education, and attended classes and conferences and discussed at length the freedom of the child. This was the freedom of the child in full swing.

When it came time for Malcolm to enter school mother visited many. "I went in to see the first grade in the public school, just close by, but I could never send Malcolm there. The teacher gave commands like a drill sergeant, 'Class stand,' and up they came like so many Jack-in-the-boxes. 'Class, sit,' and down they went as if pressed by a magic spring. They stood, marched, faced about—all to command—and smiled as if they thought it a good game. Poor little things. I felt so sorry for them. When I told the teacher she just laughed at me and said, 'This is where we teach them to obey orders, to move together, to feel themselves as a class working together. They like it. It is the right time for this teaching.'"

"But not for my Malcolm."

So mother visited private schools. "I never thought private schools were so rigid. They're just as bad as the public schools, really! The children have to wait for the teacher's word every time. They can't do as they like. I mean, suppose Malcolm wanted to sit by himself and sing the way he does here at home, and the teacher wanted the class to listen to a story. Well, he would HAVE to listen to the story whether he liked it or not. I asked the teacher and that is what she said. 'Of course. He would have to be cooperative.' She called it being cooperative, and the public school teacher called it learning to obey orders, but they meant the same thing in the end. My Malcolm would have to merge his individuality, and that is precisely what I do not want to happen. I'm going to have him taught at home under my own eye."

The trouble is that grown up people think of freedom from a grown-up attitude. They think that children want to do what they like to do and in the same way. That is not so. Adult freedom is the freedom of a seasoned mind and body. It is ripened experience, contact and struggle with life. Children have no such background.

Letting a child go his own, wild way is to let him go to destruction. People who do that have not read their books aright, have not listened with intelligence. They make a fatal mistake. The happy, successful child is the one free of influence.

Mr. Patri has prepared a leaflet entitled, "A Book List," giving the titles of a wide variety of books all children should read. Send for it, addressing your request to Mr. Angelo Patri, Child Psychology Department of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (5-cent) envelope.

In the Long Ago

From The Register Files
25 Years Ago Today

OCTOBER 28, 1911

Next Wednesday the big sugar refinery of the Southern California Sugar company, located two miles south of Santa Ana, will finish the season's run. The campaign for the factory shows that it has sliced and made into sugar, approximately 50,000 tons of beets. The percentage of sweetness in the beets has been high and the yield eminently satisfactory. The factory is already signing for next year, and like other Southern California factories, offers an advance of 50 cents per ton to the farmers for their beets. Both the Holly plant at Huntington Beach, and the Anaheim Sugar company plant at Anaheim have completed their seasons.

An old landmark in the house that has stood for many years at First and Main streets, was moved today to Second and Flower street, through arrangements made by the owners, Street Superintendent Robert H. English and Mrs. English. English recently sold his ranch between West Orange and Anaheim, and plans to build a cottage on part of the First and Main street lot to be occupied as a home, with either an apartment house or two cottages for renting purposes on the remainder.

Santa Ana Lumber company has begun delivery on the 154,000 feet of lumber which the city will use in construction of the reservoir on Olive street.

HERE AND THERE

The rafflesia arnoldii has blossoms 9 feet in circumference, weighs 25 pounds, but has no stems, leaves or roots. It derives all its nourishment from a species of tropical grape, on which it grows.

Arizona's petrified forest contains 25,625 acres.

Rafflesia arnoldii, the largest flower in the world, is a parasite.

At one time, the orange was a pear-shaped fruit about the size of a cherry.

The price of gasoline includes approximately 205 accumulated taxes.

Water supplies of more than 4000 American cities are now chlorinated. This practice has reduced the annual typhoid fever death rate from 25 to 4 per 100,000 of population.

FOUR LANE ROADS

Reducing the number of automobile accidents is a problem that requires much thought. Mr. George Kellogg, who has made quite a study of the traffic problem, pointed out the other day that if the State had sufficient money to widen the main thoroughfares to four lanes instead of three, it would reduce the accidents by 50 per cent. He pointed out that when there are only three lanes, drivers, in trying to pass another automobile, meet the approaching automobile head-on. As traffic increases, this problem will be one crying for solution, more than even now.

HOW HIGH WAGES?

Every man who has had experience in marketing the labor of others realizes that no one knows how high wages should be. It is only the dreamer and the theorist who think they can tell how high wages should be. These are the men who are willing to be the arbiters to arbitrarily established wages.

In doing so, however, they fail to establish any rule and if millions of people are out of work as the result of the wrong wage level they attribute the cause to something else.

Every student of economics and every successful purchaser of labor knows that wages should be as high as possible to give employment to all who desire to work but they should not be so high that millions of people are unable to secure jobs.

SHIPPING STRIKE

Tonight at midnight the maritime workers and longshoremen are scheduled to strike. They have a perfect right to strike. They do not, however, have any right in any way to interfere, to intimidate, to coerce, to threaten, any other worker who desires to do the work they have refused to do.

If Society is to give any group of people a right to perform the work at wages they believe they are entitled to on a non-competitive basis, then Society will be obliged to pay tribute to this group. They have no more divine right to this job than a king has a divine right to his job.

When the public comes to realize that any excessive wages that the maritime workers receive must come out of the living standards of all who use the products, directly or indirectly, of what is handled by the ships, then Society will not consent to permit any group of men to demand a wage higher than is paid for other work of like skill and intelligence.

All government officials, city, county, state and national, if necessary, should be ready to protect the property and the lives of those who care to continue this work.

PROPOSITIONS 3 AND 9

Proper control of liquor is one of the most complicated problems facing society. Whether proposition 3 or 9 should be carried is one that takes a great deal of study in order to take a practical, long-time view of the proposition.

Believing Ray Riley, being on the Board of Equalization, which at present has control of the liquor traffic, we wrote him for his opinion on the matter. We quote a paragraph from his letter which is self-explanatory:

"I have not expressed any public opinion regarding the matter and did not intend so to do but I am keenly interested in the measure to the end that it may receive favorable consideration on the part of the voters. In fact, I am tempted to vote for both No. 9 and No. 3 on the off chance that either one or the other will carry, which will take liquor administration out of the Board of Equalization, a very much desired result so far as I am concerned, and I believe that the Board has sufficiently disqualified itself during past months to be any longer considered a satisfactory agency in the administration of liquor control."

Controller Riley, as is evident from the letter, recognizes the extreme difficulty of having the matter properly handled.

A CORRECTION

We are indebted to the analytical mind of our good friend, Lew Betts, for calling attention to an over-sight in an editorial on Monday under the heading of "Taxing Fruits of Courage."

In the article we said, "A tax on income resulting from lending money is justified," etc. This should have read, "a graduated tax on income resulting from lending money is justified."

The graduated part of the tax on income from lending of money is very important because:

First, it would encourage the small man to save because he would receive a higher rate of interest by lending his money than the rich man who loaned large amounts. This is true because a graduated tax on income resulting from lending money would retard the rich man from lending money and force him into taking risks, thus reducing the amount of money that is available for lending. It is to the interest of society to encourage the greatest possible number of people to become self-reliant property owners and have a storage of wealth for their use in their declining years.

We could not defend the straight income tax on the lending of money as it would discourage the small man from saving but a graduated tax on income resulting from lending money would correct this objection.

We thank Mr. Betts for calling our attention to this.

—George McDonald.

BELGIUM SEES DANGER

Some students of world history are analyzing the reason why Belgium has repudiated its traditional alliance with France. These students are of the opinion that Belgium really recognizes the Red menace in France; that state socialism and communism will prevail in France; that this is the real reason why they have repudiated their traditional alliance.

As one writer has written, "Sensible and courageous little Belgium refuses to 'take a walk with death,' even in the company of an old ally." That is what any nation is doing when it depends on a communistic ally.

The United States, on the other hand, seems to take exactly the opposite view. We realize it and make an alliance with France even violating our own United States laws.

If we remember correctly, we passed a law not long ago that the United States should not lend any money to any country that repudiated its obligations to the United States. Yet, in face of this fact, Secretary Morgenthau, under the present administration, enters into an alliance with France to support the French franc. The combination we have gone into requires the United States to put up money and credit nearly equal to the combined pledges of both France and England to support this vicious pool. All this has been done without the approval of Congress, in which treaty-making powers rest, and without the consent of the people.

We do not know what this is, if it is not a flagrant violation of the powers of the President of the United States to enter in this entangling alliance with foreign countries after Congress has made laws specifically specifying that we should loan no money to nations who have not paid their war debts.

This is certainly in contrast with the courage of little Belgium which recognizes the danger of their position, and evidently believes that an alliance with France, socialistic and communistic as it now is, is even more dangerous than her geographic position.

PROFIT OR PROFITLESS SYSTEM

Those who have the most complaint in regard to the profit motive probably do not realize that the real trouble with our economic situation for the past few decades is that it is nearer a profitless system than a profit system. Those people who have never bought labor and risked their savings for many years to pay for it, seem to believe that profits are just automatic. Here are a few figures compiled from government reports by Mr. Robert Doane, in his study, "The Measurement of American Wealth". He shows the total annual profits by major sources from 1909 to 1932.

The Register is reproducing them in the first column by periods of five years, excepting the last four which are given year by year. In the second column, we are reproducing the business losses for the same years. This second column does not include the losses of the government, institutional deficits or private losses other than business private losses. In the last column, we are reproducing the total gross annual losses by major divisions for the same years. It will be noted that business profits do not include the savings from workers. Figures are in millions.

Year	Total An'l. Bus. Profits	Business Losses	Total Losses
1913	$ 6,061	$ 6,172	$ 6,745
1918	10,061	6,735	17,629
1923	11,521	11,999	14,577
1928	13,802	14,215	17,392
1929	16,301	16,565	19,629
1930	8,063	19,806	24,022
1931	5,867	21,006	26,806
1932	2,115	23,898	31,872

It will be noted from the above that the business profits from 1913 up to 1926 are about the same as the business losses. But from 1929 on the business losses are as high as ten times as large as the business profits. These are the reasons that the actual per capita wealth, reduced to the same kind of a dollar, shows that in 1913 the per capita wealth was $2,097 and by 1932 it was reduced to $1,433.

With all the data that is available to any man who really wants to know, we still have people in public office who are wondering whether we should save or spend in order to bring us out of the depression. How poor will we have to get before we realize that we cannot increase wages without having more capital?

TAX FREE GOVERNMENTS

The late Senator Couzens accumulated a large fortune in partnership with Henry Ford. He sold his interest to Henry Ford for $30,000,000 then he invested it in government tax exempt bonds and had his income from them without paying income taxes, contributing nothing to the government which protected him in possession of so great a fortune.

Senator Couzens was a strong advocate of a tax on income, to which he paid nothing. He was the kind that refused to take risks to expand private employment, yet he was a strong advocate of taxing a man who did have courage and remained in private business.

It is a nice example of the absurdity of our present tax laws which exempt the rich man who refuses to take risks and have courage and, figuratively speaking, refuses to use his talents and seeks protection under government bonds and then insists that those who do have courage and compete in buying labor, be taxed for so doing. It is truly an example of inconsistency. The tax system should be reversed. There should be a tax on income from interest on Government Bonds but there should not be a tax on wealth used in producing more wealth and buying private labor.

SPEAKING AS AN INDIVIDUAL

Editor Register:

A few reasons why I am very anxious for the defeat of Franklin Delano Roosevelt at the election, November 3, are presented here.

Having been reared a Democrat of the Kentucky-type, I am very loath to see the principles of Democracy prostituted by our present chief executive. His word amounts to nothing. He has made pledge after pledge, only to totally ignore or to repudiate them flagrantly. Even in his acceptance speech, he solemnly promised to reduce the national expense 25 per cent; the truth of the matter, however, is, according to the statistics given in the press of the country, his administration, so far, has spent more than all of the administrations of both Democrats and Republicans, together, in the 100 years previous. Does that sound like a reduction in governmental expenses? Yes—in a dead pig's eye!

I vehemently resent any one, any time, anywhere, in high or low office, using any part of my "sweat blood" tax money in an attempt to keep himself in office, thus further polluting politics—already ready for too putrid. There are many things the President has done which totally unfit him for a second term in the White House. He has attempted several times to trample under his unhalloved feet, the bulwark of our American independence, the Constitution of the United States. We already have seen far too much of the big bear brot and the alphabetized swill, concocted by the three would-be chiefs, FDR, Farley and Tugwell, but thanks to the good old Supreme Court, many of their spurious concoctions in violation of the "pure (law) food" requirements, have been declared "unfit for human consumption". Many formerly good American citizens are now sick and weak so far as our American form of government is concerned.

I leave it to you as to how much truth there is in the statement by Mr. Babson that there is a fifty-fifty chance for our beloved America to go Fascist at the coming election, and a six-to-ten chance that we will be destroyed by inflation. To say the least, we are in the middle of a very bad fix.

An old adage is a good illustration of Roosevelt's so-called "American actions"—there scarcely could be so much sickness unless there was some fire therabout.

Largely responsible for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, the President made many emphatic promises as to what would not be permitted under any circumstances, not one of them being kept. Neither will he keep the promises he is making in this present campaign. A slight ray of hope for the masses, or common people, the ones who pay the bills, many of which are unjust, unfair and uncalled for. Then, look at his child-like business policies of destroying cotton, corn, cattle, hogs and so on, that we, the people, might have more! That we might have more—in a dead cow's eye! Well, those policies did raise the price which the consumer, the laborer, the masses, the ones who always must pay the bulk of taxes and for the follies of our unfaithful servants, the office holders, have to pay. (We do take off hats, however, to the ones who have remained honest and efficient).

After the destruction of all of these things, wealth, we have found it necessary to turn around and import more than was destroyed, from foreign countries, thus depriving our own American citizens of the price of those imported commodities when the money is paid to business men of those other countries.

To show how far Roosevelt will go to carry his point: Former Senator Reed of Missouri charged that Roosevelt indicated he would pack the Supreme Court by increasing its membership, and challenged Roosevelt to deny it. Such an action regarding the Supreme Court would be a serious thing for a private citizen to take, much less the chief executive of the grandest nation on the face of the earth. Judging from his actions during his term of office thus far, we are forced to believe that he would stoop to anything to carry his point. I hope the people of Santa Ana and of Orange county will help defeat such a man on November 3.

I believe anyone occupying the chair as chief executive of this nation should have at least a slight conception of the value of a dollar. I am sorry to say, Mr. Roosevelt does not seem to have. We are permitted to judge a tree by its fruit.

I believe that there are enough people in this good old America, sick and tired enough of seeing their "sweat blood" tax money poured into alphabetical, political rat holes, to defeat the present chief executive on November 3.

E. A. COX.

Editor Register:

The political campaign is drawing to its close.

Who will be the victor, Roosevelt or Landon? That is a question of vital interest. Shall we have another four years of boondoggling, of reckless government expenditure, of pyramiding the national debt, of broken promises, of undermining the morale of the American people, by destroying the initiative and freedom in private and business affairs?

Wanting paternalism and government planning may be more or less akin to European socialism, but to our free and unshackled American spirit it is detestable tyranny.

force. It was a repetition of promises that were similar to those of 1932.

After his inauguration most of his own pledges were thrown to the wind. Instead he adopted and kept the promises of the candidate of the Socialist party.

To Landon the pledges of his platform are sacred. He aims to keep his promises, and has the courage and ability to do so. What he did as governor of Kansas that he will do as President of the United States. "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much."

Landon is a political "natural" and has methods of his own that work. He is a doer, not a talker. From his presence radiate honesty, simplicity and sincerity. He inspires those with whom he comes in contact with implicit faith and confidence in pulling through shadows of gloom and despondency into refreshing sunshine of peace, good will and prosperity. In this he has proved himself a master in his home life, in his business affairs, and in his executive tasks as a governor.

"My home, my country and my God," has been his motto.

Little Benny's
Note Book

BY LEE PAPE

We was eating supper, being liver and onions in pop's honor, and ma said, pop, do you remember the conversation we had the other day about how everybody should go to the dentist for an examination twice a year just as a voluntary precaution?

"That's right, we both agreed, and neither of us went, pop said. If I remember correctly, we sent Benny as a hostage, he said, and ma said, But you only know half the story, because I went myself in person this afternoon, I got to thinking it over again, and I realized how silly it is for people who trust to luck to chance that their teeth are perfect when it would only take a dentist a few minutes to prove that they are living in a tooth's paradise, and just then low and behold I felt the coincidence of a sharp shooting pain in that doubtful upper tooth of mine, so I killed 2 birds with one stone and went right around to Dr. Tittleman's office, she said."

What kind of an anesthetic did he give you, local or national? pop said, and ma said, Wait till I tell you. There were several people ahead of me in the waiting room, so I picked up a casual magazine at random, and it was a copy of Yahoo. You know, Willyum, the funny magazine, and rite on the very cover there was such a funny picture I had to snicker internally because I didn't want to laugh out loud in the midst of all those mournful waiting faces. But the point is, I felt so much better after my good snubbed laugh that I hardly noticed my tooth at all, so I quietly came home again. Don't you think it seems rather short sighted on a dentist's part to leave magazines like that lying around their waiting rooms, Willyum? she said.

It seems like something, pop said, and ma said, Anyway, Willyum, now you're the only one who hasn't paid a voluntary visit to the dentist's.

Thoughts On

BY GLENN FRANK

STRENGTH WITHOUT TYRANNY

The most important issue of the 1936 campaign is the issue upon which the least clear thinking and plain speaking has been spent.

I refer to the issue of centralized power. It is easy to say, "The man in the street is not interested in the Constitution. He is interested in a job in security, in some economic hope for the future. He can't eat the Constitution. He can't wear the Constitution," and so on.

I quite agree that it is no answer to the bitter cry of human need and human insecurity and human fear of the future to say, "You must not touch the Constitution."

The Constitution is a means to an end, not an end in itself. The Constitution has set up certain safeguards against an undue concentration of power in the Federal government or in any one branch of the Federal Government.

Since the Constitution was drafted, as Mr. Roosevelt has rightly said, some problems have become national that were then local, and can only be dealt with now on a national scale.

To say that the concentration of all power in Washington is dangerous is not to say that these problems must be left to the several states or in some twilight zone between states and nation. It is only to say that, as more problems become national and amenable only to national handling, we must see to it that the necessary increase in federal power is granted under conditions that do not insure the death of democratic self-government.

I am confident that agricultural policy must more and more have a large element of national direction, that both interstate commerce and due process of law are phrases we must redefine in terms of changed circumstances, but I am equally confident that to leave all this at the mercy of presidential decree is to Hitlerize America.

On many scores Washington must be deflated. The Federal government is doing many things it has no business doing. On the other hand, there are some very important things that must be done by the Federal government, things we dare not leave to the states.

But, to make these new controls by Washington serve instead of slay self-government, we must do several things to the Federal government. We must take away from presidents and postmaster-generals most of the patronage through which they now build machines for their self-perpetuation, and thus save presidents from the temptation to flood the country with federal employees who will keep local fences in repair. We must, or should, give presidents a decently long term and then make them ineligible for reelection, thus making it possible for presidents to think of the next generation instead of the next election. And still other things of this nature. Then we can look with less concern upon an enlargement of federal power over problems that are plainly national in importance.

When we expand federal power, we should strengthen instead of weaken the safeguards against its abuse.

OUR CHILDREN

INDIVIDUALITY

"For mercy's sake! Edith, make that child stop that awful noise."

"O no, I wouldn't do that. He will soon stop of his own accord. He will soon get tired. I don't want to suppress his individuality. That is what is wrong with so many people. They never had a chance to express themselves fully and the poor things are suffering from all sorts of difficulties."

So Malcolm went on stamping about the room and pounding the floor with a stout, walking stick. Mother had read some good books on education, and attended classes and conferences and discussed at length the freedom of the child. This was the freedom of the child in full swing.

When it came time for Malcolm to enter school mother visited many. "I went in to see the first grade in the public school, just close by, but I could never send Malcolm there. The teacher gave commands like a drill sergeant, 'Class stand,' and up they came like so many Jack-in-the-boxes. 'Class, sit,' and down they went as if pressed by a magic spring. They stood, marched, faced about—all to command—and smiled as if they thought it a good game. Poor little things. I felt so sorry for them. When I told the teacher she just laughed at me and said, 'This is where we teach them to obey orders, to move together, to feel themselves as a class working together. They like it. It is the right time for this teaching.'"

"But not for my Malcolm." "So mother visited private schools. "I never thought private schools were so rigid. They're just as bad as the public schools, really! The children have to wait for the teacher's word every time. They can't do as they like. I mean, suppose Malcolm wanted to sit by himself and sing, the way he does here at home, and the teacher wanted the class to listen to a story. My Malcolm would have to merge his individuality, and that is precisely what I do not want to happen. I'm going to have him taught at home under my own eye."

The trouble is that grown up people think of freedom from a grown-up attitude. They think that children want to do what they like to do and in the same way. That is not so. Adult freedom is the freedom of a seasoned mind and a ripened experience. The children have to wait for the teacher's word every time. They can't do as they like.
